Traffic Mishap Claims Life Of Monroe Woman

By JOHN TARVER
World Staff Writer

An 89-year-old Monroe woman yesterday became the seventh traffic fatality in the city this year as she was struck down about 5:30 p.m. by an automobile on South Second street at the intersection with Plum Street.

Mrs. Mary Gilbert, 1205 South Second St., was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital in Monroe after examination by coroner's office personnel.

According to police, Mrs. Gilbert was struck by a car driven by Talmadge Kerr, 48, of 904 Jackson St., Monroe. No charges have been filed in the mishap pending further investigation, authorities stated.

Officers said Mrs. Gilbert was standing near the middle of South Second, apparently watching approaching southbound traffic for a chance to cross the street. The Kerr car was going north into town when it hit the woman.

She was some distance from the pedestrian crosswalk, witnesses said.

LAST DEATH

The last traffic death in the city was that of Andres Ray White, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick R. White, 1616 South Eleventh St., Monroe.

The child died after being run over by a Post Office Department truck November 3.

Mrs. Gilbert's late husband, Hugh S. Gilbert, was Ouachita Parish truant officer for a number of years prior to his death in April 1946. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert had no children, but raised a foster son, Ronald Lee Madden, now in the veterans hospital in Little Rock, Ark.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night.

Parish Solon Asks Sustained School Support

Continued support was sought for legislators and state officials in their fight against integration by Rep. Mike John Jr. in a statement here yesterday.

John expressed gratitude for the stand that local persons have taken in the battle with the federal government ruling on integration and promised continued support in the legislature for segregated Louisiana schools.

In the statement, John pointed out ways in which citizens of Louisiana might help.

The statement follows:

"I would like to take this means and opportunity to express to the good people of Ouachita Parish my deepest gratitude and sincerest appreciation for the solid stand that represents your backing of me in my staunch fight to prevent integration in our schools and preserve the sovereign rights of the State of Louisiana.

"It is a privilege and an honor to represent you in this critical fight that means so much to so many. I am humbly grateful for the privilege of shouldering the responsibility you have placed upon me. You well know that I have been in the fight from the first, and I pledge to you that I will remain in the fight until the finish with absolutely no thought of my own personal welfare.

"From the very first day of these special sessions, I have dedicated myself to an all out fight to maintain segregation in our schools and resist federal encroachment upon our state rights.

"The past 14 days have certainly focused our minds and hearts on the cirtical situation facing us

Recounts Due In New Jersey

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Republican party organizations in five New Jersey counties Saturday obtained court orders for recounts of the Nov. 8 presidential election.

The local party units acted on orders of the Republican State Committee which met Friday and ordered the recount in the five counties which gave President-elect John F. Kennedy a 139,000-vote edge over Richard M. Nixon. Kennedy carried the state by 21,800 votes.

The National Republican Committee suggested to 11 states—including New Jersey—last week that they consider recounts. State Republican Chairman Carl Erdman said at the time he doubted a recount would reverse the results in New Jersey.

Barnett Idea On Electors Gets Rebuff

BARILOCHE, Argentina (UPI)—Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett Saturday ran into stonewall opposition with a plan to use the South's uncommitted electoral votes to pressure president-elect John F. Kennedy on civil rights. Two other governors predicted Barnett would fail.

Governors Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and James T. Blair, Jr., of Missouri, a border state, said the Mississippi idea had won no supporters among the other Southerners in the party of 28 governors visiting Argentina.

UNCOMMITTED

Mississippi has eight electoral votes committed neither to Kennedy nor to Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Alabama has six uncommitted votes. The 14 votes would not be enough to affect the outcome of the presidential election.

Blair brushed off the Barnett plan.

"It does not have a chance now and never had a chance," he said.

Hollins told United Press International at this mountain resort: "The American people are not going to stand for politicking after the election. Sixty eight million persons voted and the people have spoken."

Hollings said the idea once had interested him but an analysis of the situation showed "it is wholly impracticable."

Both Kennedy and Nixon "could answer that civil rights are a matter for the courts and both probably would flatly refuse to bargain and would be solidly backed by the nine Southern states," he said.

Confession Of Slayings Repudiated

Suspect Indicted In Cave Killings Retracts Story

OTTAWA, Ill. (UPI)—A former dishwasher who admitted he killed three women in Starved Rock State Park last March Saturday repudiated his confession.

RETRACTS STATEMENTS

Carr, a public defender, said Weger made the retraction voluntarily when he visited him in his jail cell here.

Weger's admission early Thursday broke the case of the three Chicago suburban Riverside matrons, whose beaten bodies were found lying in a shallow cave of lonely St. Louis Canyon at the park. Mrs. Lillian Oetting, 50, Mrs. Mildred Lindquist, 50, and Mrs. Frances Murphy, 47, vanished shortly after they arrived at a park lodge last March 14 for a brief winter vacation.

In his three statements detailing the killings, Weger had said the deaths resulted from an attempted purse snatching. His admission led to a grand jury indictment in the slayings.

Carr said he visited the former

Girl Slaying Is Denied At Court Trial

WETUMPKA, Ala. (UPI)—Defense attorneys for accused child killer John Wilbanks rested their case Saturday after Wilbanks testified he did not fire the rifle bullet that shattered the skull o nine-year-o'd Barbara King of Birmingham.

Wilbanks, on the stand for an hour and 45 minutes, said "I did not, so help me God" when asked by Circuit Solicitor Glenn Curlee whether he fired the shot which "sent her soul out into eternity."

DISPUTES TESTIMONY

Before beginning the final arguments the prosecution presented three rebuttal witnesses. The first was Mrs. Mary Katherine King, Barbara's mother, who disputed testimony by Wilbanks and his wife that they did not know the girl had been killed.

IN WARD FIVE

Recreation Bond Vote Set Tuesday

Eligible voters in ward five will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on a $625,000 recreation bond issue.

No official count of the number of eligible voters in ward five was available late yesterday, but the Ouachita Parish registrar of voters office estimated some 5,000 property owners would be eligible.

Polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 8 p.m., with the same 14 polling places used in regular elections to be used Tuesday.

Two propositions will be voted on, which together would raise the property taxes 2½ mills or $2.50 per $1,000 of assessment.

The first proposition pertains to the issuance of bonds for $625,000 to run 20 years for the purpose of purchasing and acquiring lands, buildings, equipment and other facilities to be used in providing recreational facilities in ward five. Millage for this proposition would amount to 1½ mills.

The second proposition to be voted on, amounting to one mill, to run for a period of ten years, would be for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating recreational facilities for ward five.

In order to pass, this bond issue must have a majority of both popular vote and assessment values represented. Voters must sign the ballots.

If passed, the $625,000 recreation programs would provide a 30,000 square feet air conditioned recreation center to be located on Seventh Street where the present existing Little Boys Baseball park is; three new lighted tennis courts; a new Little boys baseball park; a 10,000 square feet swimming pool, AAU metered; improvements on existing recre-

N. O. Violence Flares; New Legal Step Filed

Negro Runs Amok, Shot By Officers

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —A teen - age Negro boy, shouting obscenities about the courts and the white people, ran amok with a knife in the famed French Quarter Saturday and severely wounded a small white boy before he was shot down by police.

The Negro, who appeared crazed by dope, slashed away at whites along Dauphine Street just a block away from famed Bourbon Street—in the latest outbreak of racial violence brought on by tensions over integration of New Orleans schools.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

The rampage and shooting drew a big crowd in the streets of the quarter. It was an ominous start for a period which the city had hoped would be peaceful with the schools closed until Nov. 23.

The city had been relatively quiet since mob scenes and violence on Wednesday. It was awaiting the ruling of a federal court on state and school board attempts to reverse integration and get four first grade Negro girls out of the schools.

It was about noon when the morning-after quiet of the quarter was shattered by the Negro boy suddenly running into white bars and shops and cursing the proprietors.

Then he drew a four-inch knife and began slashing away at whites, screaming he didn't "give a — about the federal government

Ghanian Envoy Ignores Order To Leave Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, THE Congo (AP) — Ghanian Charge D'Affaires Nathaniel Welbeck declared Saturday night he will ignore Col. Joseph Mobutu's order to get out of the Congo by Monday.

"I do not intend to leave the Congo unless I am recalled by my government," the defiant Welbeck asserted in his official residence, which was ringed by a U.N. protective guard.

Mobutu Friday night ordered Welbeck and the rest of Ghana diplomatic staff to leave the country by Monday. Welbeck termed the explusion order a test case for "Western democratic ideals" in the Congo.

U.N. officials announced Saturday they will continue protecting the Ghana embassy grounds against any violation of diplomatic privilege. A Ghana police guard at the embassy was reinforced by a U.N. Tunisian detachment. The U.N. command said Friday it could not interfere with the Mobutu order.

Despite the latest announcement, there was still some question whether the united nations could protect Welbeck if he leaves the embassy.

Nixon Clinches Alaska's Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Late revisions Saturday in vote counts from the Nov. 8 elections put Alaska solidly into Vice President Richard M. Nixon's column and cut Democrat John F. Kennedy's winning margin to 178,774.

With 1,305 of the nation's voting units still unreported and many absentee ballots still to be counted, the totals were Kennedy 33,896,551 and Nixon 33,717,777.

Kennedy still had 300 electoral votes—31 more than the minimum needed for election. Since Alaska earlier had been considered a likely win for Nixon, the over-all electoral vote picture was not changed.

Voters Face Punishment, Bishop Says

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Archbishop James P. Davis of San Juan said Saturday that Puerto Rican Roman Catholics who voted for Gov. Luis Munoz Marin's Popular Democratic party in the Nov. 8 elections will be punished by the Church for committing a sin of disobedience.

In a letter explaining canon—church—law ruling on the spiritual authority of the Church hierarchy, the archbishop pointed out punishment should be imposed in proportion to the seriousness of the guilt. It conceivably could take the form of excommunication. An excommunicated Catholic is denied the Church sacraments.

MANY IGNORED BAN

The letter made no direct reference to the elections in which great numbers of Puerto Rican Catholics ignored the injunction by Archbishop Davis and the island's two other Catholic bishops against voting for Marin and his party. The governor polled some 58 per cent of the vote in winning re-election, and his party was re-

3 Texans Die In State Crash

CHENEYVILLE, La. (AP) — Three Texans were killed and a fourth critically injured when their car collided with a trailer truck on U.S. highway 71 about two miles north of here Saturday.

The parish coroner identified the dead as Elmer Pittman Jr., Kilgore, resident engineer for Tidewater Oil Co.; Charles W. Johnson, Winnsboro, Tidewater engineer; and Brenner C. Spangler, about 30, Kilgore, sales engineer for Dowell Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Dow Chemical.

Jack J. Williams, Longview, Oil Well Servicing Co., employe, was in critical condition at an Alexandria hospital. The four Texans were en route to Baton Rouge for Saturday night's football game between Louisiana State and Wake Forest.

The cattle truck driver escaped injury. Police said preliminary investigation indicated the truck jacknifed.

Partly Cloudy And 72 Today

The weatherman says that skies will be partly cloudy through tonight. He predicts that there will be no important temperature changes in Monroe.

The high expected today is 72 degrees. The low tonight should be about 38.

Winds will be easterly, from six to 12 miles per hour.

The high in the Twin Cities Saturday, according to Federal Aviation at Selman Field, was 68. The low recorded was 36.

CONSULTS SYMINGTON

Kennedy Studies Defense Shakeup

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy Saturday began Pentagon reorganization talks with the goal of saving taxpayers some money while gearing the nation's military might more closely to the nuclear-space age.

The talks were with Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat. Kennedy asked to study and report on how to streamline the Defense Department.

What Symington told a news conference Saturday and what Kennedy said during the campaign about economy and modernization of the Pentagon presaged possible recommendations for a far-reaching shakeup in the defense establishment.

MAY GET POST

Whether Symington, a former Air Force secretary, might get the call to direct a shakeup as the new secretary of defense remained a matter of speculation.

The Missouri senator said it wasn't discussed, that "I would rather stay in the Senate," and that he so told Kennedy last August. But he didn't rule out taking the post should Kennedy insist on it.

The president-elect and Symington, with Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., present part of the time, talked for an hour and a half in the living room of the Spanish-style Kennedy mansion on the oceanfront.

Symington told a news conference afterward that the Pentagon organization still is based fundamentally on World War II ideas, although there have been three major technological revolutions in

Louisiana Trio To Meet With Kennedy Aide

Kennedy named Clark Gifford, his liaison man with the Eisenhower administration and former White House counsel in the Truman administration, to receive the three man delegation, perhaps Monday.

The three, Chris Faser, Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' secretary, Rep. Risley Triche, Assumption Parish, a Davis floor leader, and Sen. E. W. Gravolet Jr., of Pointe-a-la-Hache, chairman of the Joint legislative Committee on Segregation, were named by Davis Friday.

They left by private plane the same day to seek the President elect's opinion about action of U.S. Judge J. Skelly Wright to prevent interference by the Legislature in New Orleans school integration.

LABELED 'J. WRONG'

U.S. Judge Target Of Capitol Effigy

A caller told the State-Times an effigy of Wright was to be burned on the Capitol steps.

The figure, labeled "J. Wrong," was made of a pair of trousers, white shirt and paper bag head, all stuffed.

On the back of the shirt was a swastika, symbol of wartime Nazi Germany, and on a piece of paper on the front was the hammer and sickle symbol of Communist Russia.

The petitions said that on Nov. 13-14 Wright, federal judge for the eastern district of Louisiana, issued temporary restraining orders, without notice of or hearing, against state officials carrying out their functions and against the legislature in enacting laws.

The petitions claimed Wright's orders were "in effect the attempted dissolution of the state legislature, and constituted a gross and tyrannical usurpation of ungranted power."

Wright ordered integration of first grades in New Orleans public schools and restrained the legislature and administrative officials from interfering with carrying out the order.

Motion Asks Remanding Of State's Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Attorneys for the Louisiana Legislature moved Saturday to have the state's suit against the Orleans Parish school board remanded from federal court to state civil district court.

The suit, filed originally in the civil district court, seeks to restrain members of the school board from administering the city's public schools and from carrying out a federal court order to desegregate.

REQUEST HEARING

The motion to remand was filed in the office of the U.S. Clerk of Court and requested a hearing for 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The maneuver was overshadowed by issues already before federal court. In Montgomery, Ala., Chief Judge Richard T. Rivers of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals said there would be no ruling until after the weekend. Rivers would not elaborate.

A three-judge federal court had under advisement three issues:

1. A plea by the Orleans Parish School Board that federally ordered integration be set aside until the state and federal governments can settle their differences in the courts.

2. A motion filed by the federal government to enjoin state and local officials from interfering with carrying out integration orders.

3. Motions asking the court to give the board full control over schools and to keep the state from interfering with the federal order to integrate.

Litigation reached a crucial stage on the eve of a week's holiday in the state's school system. State teachers' conventions, segregated, will take up the first three days of next week, to be followed by the usual Thanksgiving weekend holiday.

But it may be a payless week

Franklin Set To Send Group To Rally Here

WINNSBORO (Special) — Franklin Parish Rep. Lantz Womack, along with Winnsboro's mayor, officials and citizens, plan to attend the State Sovereignty rally in support of Gov. Jimmie Davis at the Neville High School Monroe Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Public officials who are making plans to attend the meet are urging others to go.

Final plans were laid for the rally Friday at meetings in Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard's office and the Chamber of Commerce office in Monroe.

Mayor Howard said that Gov. Davis, Sovereignty Commission Chairman Frank Voelker Jr. of Lake Providence and fifth district congressman Otto E. Passman would attend the rally and address the group.

Officials from throughout the district are urged to attend the meeting and voice their support for the fight for segregation. This appeal was made by Mayor Howard Friday.

Winnsboro Mayor Robert F. Mulhearn said yesterday that he was "100 per cent" in agreement with Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe. Mulhearn pointed out the Winnsboro Quarterback Club's Tuesday night meeting has been

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

The rampage and shooting drew a big crowd in the streets of the quarter. It was an ominous start for a period which the city had hoped would be peaceful with the schools closed until Nov. 23.

The city had been relatively quiet since mob scenes and violence on Wednesday. It was awaiting the ruling of a federal court on state and school board attempts to reverse integration and get four first grade Negro girls out of the schools.

It was about noon when the morning-after quiet of the quarter was shattered by the Negro boy suddenly running into white bars and shops and cursing the proprietors.

Then he drew a four-inch knife and began slashing away at whites, screaming he didn't "give a — about the federal government

Ghanian Envoy Ignores Order To Leave Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, THE Congo (AP) — Ghanian Charge D'Affaires Nathaniel Welbeck declared Saturday night he will ignore Col. Joseph Mobutu's order to get out of the Congo by Monday.

"I do not intend to leave the Congo unless I am recalled by my government," the defiant Welbeck asserted in his official residence, which was ringed by a U.N. protective guard.

Mobutu Friday night ordered Welbeck and the rest of Ghana diplomatic staff to leave the country by Monday. Welbeck termed the explusion order a test case for "Western democratic ideals" in the Congo.

U.N. officials announced Saturday they will continue protecting the Ghana embassy grounds against any violation of diplomatic privilege. A Ghana police guard at the embassy was reinforced by a U.N. Tunisian detachment. The U.N. command said Friday it could not interfere with the Mobutu order.

Despite the latest announcement, there was still some question whether the united nations could protect Welbeck if he leaves the embassy.

Nixon Clinches Alaska's Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Late revisions Saturday in vote counts from the Nov. 8 elections put Alaska solidly into Vice President Richard M. Nixon's column and cut Democrat John F. Kennedy's winning margin to 178,774.

With 1,305 of the nation's voting units still unreported and many absentee ballots still to be counted, the totals were Kennedy 33,896,551 and Nixon 33,717,777.

Kennedy still had 300 electoral votes—31 more than the minimum needed for election. Since Alaska earlier had been considered a likely win for Nixon, the over-all electoral vote picture was not changed.

Voters Face Punishment, Bishop Says

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Archbishop James P. Davis of San Juan said Saturday that Puerto Rican Roman Catholics who voted for Gov. Luis Munoz Marin's Popular Democratic party in the Nov. 8 elections will be punished by the Church for committing a sin of disobedience.

In a letter explaining canon—church—law ruling on the spiritual authority of the Church hierarchy, the archbishop pointed out punishment should be imposed in proportion to the seriousness of the guilt. It conceivably could take the form of excommunication. An excommunicated Catholic is denied the Church sacraments.

MANY IGNORED BAN

The letter made no direct reference to the elections in which great numbers of Puerto Rican Catholics ignored the injunction by Archbishop Davis and the island's two other Catholic bishops against voting for Marin and his party. The governor polled some 58 per cent of the vote in winning re-election, and his party was re-

3 Texans Die In State Crash

CHENEYVILLE, La. (AP) — Three Texans were killed and a fourth critically injured when their car collided with a trailer truck on U.S. highway 71 about two miles north of here Saturday.

The parish coroner identified the dead as Elmer Pittman Jr., Kilgore, resident engineer for Tidewater Oil Co.; Charles W. Johnson, Winnsboro, Tidewater engineer; and Brenner C. Spangler, about 30, Kilgore, sales engineer for Dowell Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Dow Chemical.

Jack J. Williams, Longview, Oil Well Servicing Co., employe, was in critical condition at an Alexandria hospital. The four Texans were en route to Baton Rouge for Saturday night's football game between Louisiana State and Wake Forest.

The cattle truck driver escaped injury. Police said preliminary investigation indicated the truck jacknifed.

Partly Cloudy And 72 Today

The weatherman says that skies will be partly cloudy through tonight. He predicts that there will be no important temperature changes in Monroe.

The high expected today is 72 degrees. The low tonight should be about 38.

Winds will be easterly, from six to 12 miles per hour.

The high in the Twin Cities Saturday, according to Federal Aviation at Selman Field, was 68. The low recorded was 36.

CONSULTS SYMINGTON

Kennedy Studies Defense Shakeup

The talks were with Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat, Kennedy asked to study and report on how to streamline the Defense Department.

What Symington told a news conference Saturday and what Kennedy said during the campaign about economy and modernization of the Pentagon presaged possible recommendations for a far-reaching shakeup in the defense establishment.

MAY GET POST

Whether Symington, a former Air Force secretary, might get the call to direct a shakeup as the new secretary of defense remained a matter of speculation.

The Missouri senator said it wasn't discussed, that "I would rather stay in the Senate," and that he so told Kennedy last August. But he didn't rule out taking the post should Kennedy insist on it.

The president-elect and Symington, with Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., present part of the time, talked for an hour and a half in the living room of the Spanish-style Kennedy mansion on the oceanfront.

Symington told a news conference afterward that the Pentagon organization still is based fundamentally on World War II ideas, although there have been three major technological revolutions in

Louisiana Trio To Meet With Kennedy Aide

Kennedy named Clark Gifford, his liaison man with the Eisenhower administration and former White House counsel in the Truman administration, to receive the three man delegation, perhaps Monday.

The three, Chris Faser, Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' secretary, Rep. Risley Triche, Assumption Parish, a Davis floor leader, and Sen. E. W. Gravolet Jr., of Pointe-a-la-Hache, chairman of the Joint legislative Committee on Segregation, were named by Davis Friday.

They left by private plane the same day to seek the President elect's opinion about action of U.S. Judge J. Skelly Wright to prevent interference by the Legislature in New Orleans school integration.

LABELED 'J. WRONG'

U.S. Judge Target Of Capitol Effigy

A caller told the State-Times an effigy of Wright was to be burned on the Capitol steps.

The figure, labeled "J. Wrong," was made of a pair of trousers, white shirt and paper bag head, all stuffed.

On the back of the shirt was a swastika, symbol of wartime Nazi Germany, and on a piece of paper on the front was the hammer and sickle symbol of Communist Russia.

The petitions said that on Nov. 13-14 Wright, federal judge for the eastern district of Louisiana, issued temporary restraining orders, without notice of or hearing, against state officials carrying out their functions and against the legislature in enacting laws.

The petitions claimed Wright's orders were "in effect the attempted dissolution of the state legislature, and constituted a gross and tyrannical usurpation of ungranted power."

Wright ordered integration of first grades in New Orleans public schools and restrained the legislature and administrative officials from interfering with carrying out the order.

Motion Asks Remanding Of State's Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Attorneys for the Louisiana Legislature moved Saturday to have the state's suit against the Orleans Parish school board remanded from federal court to state civil district court.

The suit, filed originally in the civil district court, seeks to restrain members of the school board from administering the city's public schools and from carrying out a federal court order to desegregate.

REQUEST HEARING

The motion to remand was filed in the office of the U.S. Clerk of Court and requested a hearing for 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The maneuver was overshadowed by issues already before federal court. In Montgomery Ala., Chief Judge Richard T. River of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals said there would be no ruling until after the weekend. Rivers would not elaborate.

A three-judge federal court had under advisement three issues:

1. A plea by the Orleans Parish School Board that federally ordered integration be set aside until the state and federal governments can settle their differences in the courts.

2. A motion filed by the federal government to enjoin state and local officials from interfering with carrying out integration orders.

3. Motions asking the court to give the board full control over schools and to keep the state from interfering with the federal order to integrate.

Litigation reached a crucial stage on the eve of a week's holiday in the state's school system. State teachers' conventions, segregated, will take up the first three days of next week, to be followed by the usual Thanksgiving weekend holiday.

But it may be a payless week

Franklin Set To Send Group To Rally Here

WINNSBORO (Special) — Franklin Parish Rep. Lantz Womack, along with Winnsboro's mayor, officials and citizens, plan to attend the State Sovereignty rally in support of Gov. Jimmie Davis at the Neville High School Monroe Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Public officials who are making plans to attend the meet are urging others to go.

Final plans were laid for the rally Friday at meetings in Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard's office and the Chamber of Commerce office in Monroe.

Mayor Howard said that Gov. Davis, Sovereignty Commission Chairman Frank Veolker Jr. of Lake Providence and fifth district congressman Otto E. Passman would attend the rally and address the group.

Officials from throughout the district are urged to attend the meeting and voice their support for the fight for segregation. This appeal was made by Mayor Howard Friday.

Winnsboro Mayor Robert F. Mulhearn said yesterday that he was "100 per cent" in agreement with Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe. Mulhearn pointed out the Winnsboro Quarterback Club's Tuesday night meeting has been national defense since that war.

"Any orgnaization which is based on World War II," he said, "could not possibly be the right type and character of organization to have in the nuclear-space age."

Symington is head of a five-man committee studying the defense structure. Although Kennedy's staff had announced Symington would bring his report along Saturday, the senator said it won't be finished before the end of the month. He said there is disagreement on some points but the committe is trying for unanimity.

Thus the Kennedy - Symington discussions were in the nature of informal, preliminary talks.

Asked if he could mention some areas of agreement, in general terms, within his committee, Symingto told newsmen: "Well, we all agree that this organization is not the right organization. And we all agree that if we have an organization which recognizes the great technological developments that have happened, are happening, and undoubtedly will happen, then, with the proper organization we will be able to get more for the taxpayers' defense dollar. On those two points we are in agreement."

Symington in the past has talked in terms of saving $5 to $10 billion a year by reorganizing the Defense Department.

And while Kennedy spoke during the presidential campaign of an emergency increase of $2.5 to $3 billion in arms spending, he also said increased efficiency in the administrative end of things could save money.

As the Democratic presidential nominee, he said in a speech drafted for the American Legion convention in Miami a month ago, "The Pentagon should be reshuffled in accordance with the logic of modern weapons systems and technology.' He said there is duplication of functions within 30 separate Pentagon offices and this must be wiped away.

Symington said his committee hopes to give recognition in its report to "the importance of arms control not only in other departments of the government, like State, for example, but also in the military itself." He said in his opinion neither the Eisenhower administration nor Congress has given sufficient attention to arms control — a term he prefers to disarmament.

With Smathers, Kennedy planned to touch again on a subject he covered Friday in a top-secret briefing provided by Director Allen W. Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency. This was the topic of Communist - directed threats to Nicaragua and Guatemala which prompted President Eisenhower to send U.S. warships and planes to seal off the western Caribbean from Cuba.

Smathers has taken a special interest in Latin-American affairs.

Kennedy tapped another of his top advisers Saturday to meet with a delegation of the Louisiana Legislature that wants to know the president-elect's stand on a federal court's enjoining the legislature from interfering with school integration in New Orleans.

Kennedy named Clark Clifford, his liaison man with the Eisenhower administration and former White House counsel in the Truman administration, to receive the three - man delegation, perhaps Monday.

With reference to the major revolutions in defense he spoke of, Symington said the first was the fading out of the B36 bomber and the entry of the B52.

The second, he said, was the development of the fixed ballistics missiles, the intercontinental Atlas and Titan for use in this country and the intermediate-range Jupiters and Thors in other countries such as England.

The third, he said, was the development of missiles on movable bases, the Minuteman on land, the Polaris on the sea.

Wilbanks said, "I stood on the front porch of my house and fired down into the edge of the water (Lake Martin)—I believe two or three times." He said he fired the rifle as a Fourth of July "Celebration of our own" because his neighbors, including the Kings, were igniting firecrackers.

Earlier the accused child killer —making his first public statement since his arrest July 6— said he "did not touch" the weapon. "I did not have my hands on it at all."

Then Erion came upon the Goss boy. He broke the ukelele, kicked and stomped the boy and cut him. It was feared the boy had a skull fracture, too.

Women began screaming "get him, get him." A police officer in a three-wheel traffic cycle took his pistol and shot from about 20 feet as Erion ducked between a small sports car and the wall. One bullet hit him in the hand and the other in the head.

The sidewalk was covered with blood in front of a bar which has segregated entrances and areas for Negroes and whites.

Police kept the crowd moving and it gradually dispersed. But the police were expected to take extra precautions in the area Saturday night when the usual Saturday revelry could lead to more trouble.

The week had been one of the unhappiest in New Orleans history.

The admission of the four girls to white schools brought knifings, stonings, cross burnings, hundreds of arrest and use of fire hoses on mobs. It brought consternation to restaurants proud of the city's famed reputation for gracious living.

The schools will be closed all next week for teachers' meetings and the Thanksgiving holiday. But New Orleans most likely will be face to face with the integration conflict on Monday, Nov. 28.

for teachers. The $2 million New Orleans payroll is due Wednesday.

Orleans Parish Supt. James F. Redmond said he was hopeful of making some arrangements to meet next Wednesday's payroll, but bankers were reluctant to make loans until the courts decide who runs the schools.

"From a practical point of view," school board attorney Samuel I. Rosenberg told the federal tribunal Friday that "the board is reaching a point that, regardless of the orders of this court, we soon will be unable to operate."

Underscoring Rosenberg's comment was a statement by State Sen. Howard Jones of St. Joseph that the Legislature next week will transfer $1.5 million dollars in school operating funds to state-chartered banks in Shreveport. Presumably the move was to put state funds out of reach of federal court orders.

In Baton Rouge, where petitions circulated for the U.S. House of Representatives to impeach Federal Judge J. Skelly Wright of New Orleans, an effigy of Wright, labeled "J. Wrong," and decorated with a swastika, appeared Saturday beside the front steps of the state's towering capitol.

Wright, who ordered the first grades of New Orleans public schools integrated Nov. 14, is one of three judges who is considering the complex of legal issues. The other members of the tribunal are U.S. District Judge J. Herbert Christenberry and Chief Judge Richard T. Rives of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

In the two elementary schools where federal marshals brought four Negro girls for integration in the first grade last Monday the white boycott was complete by the weekend. Normally the two schools have an attendance of about 1,000.

An additional 11,000 pupils were absent from other schools in the city, but it was unclear as to what percentage represented boycott and what percentage were kept home because parents feared violence.

State, city and church authorities pleaded for public order. New Orleans Catholic Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, who has said that parochial schools here would integrate no later than when public school integration became effective, issued a message Saturday "to be mindful of our moral obligation to maintain calm and balanced judgment and preserve respect for law and public order in this hour of crisis."

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Among thefts reported to police was a $500 loss of shop tools. The complaint was filed by detective Bolton Gregory, an investigator for the theft detail.

Negro Runs Amok, Shot By Officers

the courts, the white people."

Then Erion came upon the Goss boy. He broke the ukelele, kicked and stomped the boy and cut him. It was feared the boy had a skull fracture, too.

Women began screaming "get him, get him." A police officer in a three-wheel traffic cycle took his pistol and shot from about 20 feet as Erion ducked between a small sports car and the wall. One bullet hit him in the hand and the other in the head.

The sidewalk was covered with blood in front of a bar which has segregated entrances and areas for Negroes and whites.

Police kept the crowd moving and it gradually dispersed. But the police were expected to take extra precautions in the area Saturday night when the usual Saturday revelry could lead to more trouble.

The week had been one of the unhappiest in New Orleans history.

The admission of the four girls to white schools brought knifings, stonings, cross burnings, hundreds of arrest and use of fire hoses on mobs. It brought consternation to restaurants proud of the city's famed reputation for gracious living.

The schools will be closed all next week for teachers' meetings and the Thanksgiving holiday. But New Orleans most likely will be face to face with the integration conflict on Monday, Nov. 28.

for teachers. The $2 million New Orleans payroll is due Wednesday.

Orleans Parish Supt. James F. Redmond said he was hopeful of making some arrangements to meet next Wednesday's payroll, but bankers were reluctant to make loans until the courts decide who runs the schools.

"From a practical point of view," school board attorney Samuel I. Rosenberg told the federal tribunal Friday that "the board is reaching a point that, regardless of the orders of this court, we soon will be unable to operate."

Underscoring Rosenberg's comment was a statement by State Sen. Howard Jones of St. Joseph that the Legislature next week will transfer $1.5 million dollars in school operating funds to state-chartered banks in Shreveport. Presumably the move was to put state funds out of reach of federal court orders.

In Baton Rouge, where petitions circulated for the U.S. House of Representatives to impeach Federal Judge J. Skelly Wright of New Orleans, an effigy of Wright, labeled "J. Wrong," and decorated with a swastika, appeared Saturday beside the front steps of the state's towering capitol.

Wright, who ordered the first grades of New Orleans public schools integrated Nov. 14, is one of three judges who is considering the complex of legal issues. The other members of the tribunal are U.S. District Judge J. Herbert Christenberry and Chief Judge Richard T. Rives of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

In the two elementary schools where federal marshals brought four Negro girls for integration in the first grade last Monday the white boycott was complete by the weekend. Normally the two schools have an attendance of about 1,000.

An additional 11,000 pupils were absent from other schools in the city, but it was unclear as to what percentage represented boycott and what percentage were kept home because parents feared violence.

State, city and church authorities pleaded for public order. New Orleans Catholic Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, who has said that parochial schools here would integrate no later than when public school integration became effective, issued a message Saturday "to be mindful of our moral obligation to maintain calm and balanced judgment and preserve respect for law and public order in this hour of crisis."

Family Day

RUSK, Tex. (UPI)—The same day William Hofman Folman and Mrs. Thelma Opal Cavett purchased a marriage license in the county clerk's office, his son, Archie Kindon Folmanr, and her daughter, Dorothy Ann Cavett, applied for their marriage license. Justice of the Peace C. A. Protis performed both weddings.

At Sea

Aaron E. Fuller, aviation structural mechanic airman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Fuller of West Monroe, departed from San Diego, Calif., Oct. 29 while serving with Fighter Squadron 211 aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Lexington.

The carrier will join the Seventh Fleet in the western Pacific.

Tests

S. W. Jackson, director of the Ouachita Valley Vocational School, states that state civil service tests are set for December 10 at his school and he expects a sizeable number will appear to take the tests.

A number of other tests are also planned and details can be obtained by calling Mr. Jackson at his offices in West Monroe.

Elected

Herb Rinehart is named for the 17th time as secretary - treasurer of the West Monroe Kiwanis club.

Herb's first election to this office, he recalls, was when W. R. Younger and later Buddy DeLoach were presidents successively of the club.

EDITORIALS

Louisiana's Integration Crisis

The Morning World is certain now, as it was in 1954, and as it has stated many times since that the decision of the U. S. Supreme court in the segregation cases is a decision that is in itself unconstitutional. In that year the supreme court held that "segregation of children in public schools solely on the basis race, even though the physical facilities and other 'tangible' factors may be equal, "deprives the negro children" of equal educational opportunities." It held that particularly as to "children in grade and high schools" such segregation deprives the Negroes "of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the 14th amendment."

In making this decision the Supreme Court condemned itself by its own words of ignoring what the 14th amendment meant in 1868 when it was adopted and of ignoring what the Supreme Court itself had interpreted it to mean since then. With one bold faced stroke of unconscionable usurpation of power it rewrote the 14th amendment to mean what it wanted it to mean, based on its own amateurish uninformed and ill advised ideas of the "psychological knowledge" which it stated "is amply supported by modern authority." In usurping this power to amend the Federal Constitution it, without any apparent tinge of conscience, admitted in so many words that education is "the most important function of state and local government."

The decision is unconstitutional in that it is an usurpation by the Supreme Court of the authority to pass laws which under our constitution belongs solely to the legislative branch of government but more staggering in its utter disregard for the solemnity and good faith of the U.S. Constitution. The Supreme Court usurped the power to amend that great document — a power that was plainly left to the people in the manner provided in the document itself requiring the approval of three-fourths of the states.

The question of whether or not the state (should) have the right to segregate its public schools—it had that right until 1954—if it was to be re-examined, should have been the subject of a proposed constitutional amendment to be passed on by the sovereign people of the sovereign states as provided for in the constitution itself.

What makes the 1954 decision unconscionable is that the members of the Supreme Court believe, or should have known or at least should have suspected, that such an amendment to the constitution could have never been passed in the manner clearly provided for in the constitution itself — that is by ratification of three-fourths of the states.

In the face of this, this court usurped the power to make the amendments itself.

Being certain, as we are, that the Supreme Court's 1954 decision is unconstitutional it follows that all decisions based on this including the federal district court orders in the New Orleans integration crisis are themselves based on a power not belonging to, but usurped by the U. S. Supreme Court. Over and beyond this the Federal District Court in New Orleans, in its ardor in carrying out the directives of the U. S. Supreme Court, has set itself up as having dictatorial power over the governor of Louisiana, its elected state officials and the elected representatives of the people of Louisiana in its state legislature.

This last element of the case which goes to the heart of the doctrine INTERPOSITION has not yet been passed on by final procedures before the federal courts. The question should be tested through the final step of the federal judiciary — that is, before the U. S. Supreme Court.

Anyone who has made even a passing effort to keep abreast of the news during the past few historic days in Louisiana knows that the governor, the elected and appointed state officials and the members of the legislature of Louisiana have been and are making a full and complete effort to interpose themselves and the state of Louisiana between the people and the upsurped power of the federal government. NO ONE CAN EVER QUESTION THAT THEY HAVE KEPT FULL FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE OF LOUISIANA FOR WHOM THEY ARE ACTING.

The Morning World would be less than frank and would be guilty of holding out real hope in the face of what we regard as only a threat of hope if we did not state that the great weight of legal opinion is that the doctrine of Interposition will fail. It will fail not because it should but because in the end it would have to be recognized by the same supreme court of the United States that usurped the power of amending the Constitution and of forcing integration in the first place. This does not mean that the doctrine should not be tested to the last legal point possible. We have no doubt that our legislature, our governor and our state officials will do just this.

In view of the fact that Interposition may very well fail in a test before the U. S. Supreme Court, it behooves the people of Louisiana to face squarely the problems that then will confront them.

In facing these problems, we commend to our readers the advice of Louisiana's governor that the people try to view the matter without emotion:

"As difficult as it might be, try and understand that your schools and your children are not issues . . . understand that the men you selected to administer the affairs of your state are living up to the faith and confidence you placed in them."

If interposition fails, what then are the alternatives available to the people of Louisiana? These are the only ones we know of (if there are others we would like to see them pointed out.):

I.

A physical clash between Louisiana and the forces of the federal government. In short, this alternative is secession and armed conflict.

We know of no responsible opinion that recommends this alternative. The Morning World certainly does not.

The Governor has said that the state "'does not intend to use the power vested in us by the people to provoke a physical clash between our state and the forces of the federal government. This is an extreme course which would settle nothing except to prove which side has the greater might."

II.

Accept integration in our public schools and attempt to minimize its intent through the pupil placement laws now on our books and in other ways. In short, accept so-called "token integration."

First of all, it should be made clear that "token integration" will not necessarily satisfy the avaricious appetite of the U. S. Supreme Court to eat up the purely state right to provide for, regulate and administer a public school system.

In the second place we should not assume that what starts out as "token integration" even if acceptable to the Supreme Court would not become "full fledged integration."

To date the Supreme Court tacitly has held in two cases that pupil or school placement laws are constitutional if they set up adequate standards and if they are constitutionally administered. These cases involving Alabama and North Carolina school placement laws were passed on by lower federal courts and the supreme court tactily approved them by declining to review the decisions.

In this area, time is of great value to Louisiana in ultimately deciding which of the available alternatives it will choose. Time gives us a chance to determine what the Supreme Court actually is going to hold with respect to pupil placement laws and their administration.

In appraising this second alternative of "token integration" we say without any amount of reservations that the white parents as a whole of North Louisiana are not going to permit their children to attend public schools that are integrated to any substantial degree. This is a fact today, it has been for years past and it most certainly will be for the many years ahead with which we need to concern ourselves here. This is not to say that those white parents will accept what is called "token integration." We certainly do not know the answer to that and we doubt that the parents do until they have studied and have come face to face with the problems of operating private schools on a mass basis.

This brings us to a consideration of the third and last alternative.

III.

Abandon the public school system of Louisiana and set up a private school system owned and operated by parents or by non-profit organizations.

The private school system sounds easy. Actually placing it into effect will be accompanied by many problems now known to us. It would, however, entail more problems that only experience could teach us.

It must be remembered that buildings would have to be acquired or constructed, teachers employed, and an administrative staff set up. The actual cost of providing for and operating such schools is estimated at between $800 and $1500 per student per year. Very few parents are financially able to afford such an outlay. The schools would therefore make a heavy drain on the public spirited who are able to contribute to them. They would require public donations of a magnitude not even considered before. Those making these contributions, in the nature of things, should be relieved of some of the taxes they now pay that support the public school system.

When facing the problem squarely it would have to be recognized that the education of those white children now in public schools and those who would have attended them for several years to come would suffer in quality. Until the lapse of time necessary to make a mass private school system function smoothly the quality of education would be inferior to that to be obtained in the public schools of North Louisiana today.

We harbor no doubts however, that such a system can be made to work. Ultimately it may be the only course available to us.

As this paper has advocated many times in the past, we must now make preparations for the only course left to white parents.

We have not touched on the magnificent public school system provided for Negro children in North Louisiana.

If the public school system is abandoned in Louisiana, their's will go with it. Who will provide their private schools for them? Certainly, with any realism, they could not expect the white people who provide almost all the taxes that maintain their schools today, to make donations to build and maintain private schools for them if they force the closing of our public school system, white and colored. The integration of a white public school does not arise until someone in behalf of a Negro child makes application for admission to it. The responsible Negro leadership of North Louisiana could ponder their own best interest in this respect long and thoroughly.

For the time being in our actions we should follow the advice of the Governor and know that our elected officials and representatives are doing everything legally possible to protect the rights of our citizens. To use his words "the men you elected to administer the affairs of your state are living up to the faith and confidence you placed in them." We should now wait the outcome of the Interposition doctrine that will be passed on by the federal courts and perhaps ultimately by the U. S. Supreme Court. We should be prepared in our thinking and planning for the very real possibility of another adverse decision.

Another Answer

Alexandria, La.

To the Editor:

Wading through the Rev. Pervie Nichols' "Are We All To Be Bigots?", carried in your Nov. 13 issue, was a frustrating and depressing experience. To answer point by point the multitude of time - worn charges, each "scientifically" documented with misinterpreted and out-of-context quotations, would require a special edition of the Morning World.

The garbled and hopelessly confused presentation made by the minister from Jackson does serve one purpose, howeer. It gives eloquent testimony that sincere discussion of religious issues and differences is impossible with a man like the Rev. Nichols.

For him, religious discussion between Protestants and Catholics is nothing more than a shooting match in which opposing contestants snipe at each other and score winner's points by uncovering real or imaginary weaknesses.

Catholics might just as well condemn contemporary American Protestantism for the murder of Servetus at the hands of the Calvinists, the immorality of Henry VIII, and the harshness of Cromwell toward Irish Catholics. How ridiculous can we get?

The Rev. Nichols points out that "the Catholic Church is prone to meddle in political affairs," and cites as an example the recent action of the Puerto Rican bishops.

Does the problem of "political meddling" posed for Catholics by this example, differ substantially from the one posed for the Rev. Nichols by his own denomination's publication, "The Gospel Advocate? In a pre - election issue the editor of this publication stated that ministers of the Church of Christ would not only use their pulpits, but any other forum they could get to bring about the defeat of Senator Kennedy.

And there was the spectacle of three Baptist clergymen trying to put before the Democratic National Convention a petition — with 500,000 signatures, they said — opposing any Catholic for President or Vice President.

These and other incidents indicate that Catholics are not the only ones faced with embarrassing and thorny problems of "political meddling."

They also indicate the utter futility of reducing religious discussion to a matter of answering charges with counter - charges and more charges.

In spite of the antagonisms and tensions highlighted in the recent Presidential campaign, many of us still hope and work for an improvement in Protestant-Catholic relations.

In this work Protestant leadership will come from such men as Dr. John C. Bennett, editor and seminary dean, who points out that "American Protestants should realize that the Roman Church is not a vast international machine designed to overturn their liberties, if this were to become politically possible, and that they have many allies in the Catholic Church who share their belief in religious liberty on principle."

Catholic leadership will be furnished by men like William Clancy, also an editor and consultant to the Fund for the Republic who writes: "I do not believe that Catholics generally have anything that approaches an adequate understanding of what Protestantism actually is. Most of them know only what it is not. And this is a major failure in Catholic education."

There are, then, leaders in both Catholic and Protestant camps who are dedicated to the principle that differences in doctrinal belief offer no valid grounds for divorce and estrangement in the order of charity.

If the cause of religion in America is going to be advanced, it will be by men such as these, not by the likes of the Rev. Pervie Nichols.

Voters Are Rapped

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

With the present unrest in New Orleans and with politicians all over the south using this moment of racial strife to further their own political ambitions, I for one have a few observations which I would like to air to the general public.

We had two elections recently in Louisiana, the governor's and presidential, and in both the States Rights Party received a very poor showing of strength. It is now history that the opportunity was given to all the south to vote States Rights and thus save the south from integration.

If the south had voted according to own way of life in the Southlands, Kennedy today would be bargaining with us and our children would be going to school as usual. The south would have a big "sayso" in Washington. But such was not to be. What happened? Opportunists in politics turned their backs on the States Rights and voted "Democratics for Nixon". They sold the south to men who sent the National Guard to Little Rock and to men who would force a Negro into the Cabinet. Where is the logic in this? Today they raise their voices for States Rights and would have us believe they are sincere. Today they send telegrams and denounciations to the mayor of New Orleans for his actions in the present crisis. What would Mayor Howard do if tomorrow the same were to take place in Monroe? Allow the people to get out of hand and have mob rule. We are not fooled. Now we turn to Kennedy and want to know how he feels towards the south. Now we are willing to go on our knees to Kennedy when we had the opportunity of making him come to us. Now the Democratics for Nixon must feel a little awkward in their position. Why not ask Nixon about what he feels about the whole affair. Maybe he wants another Little Rock? Politics and Poker are true of some of our local opportunists.

Letter To Wright

Oak Grove, La.

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Judge J. Skelly Wright of New Orleans by an Oak Grove student. A copy of the letter, which is reproduced below, was sent to us.)

J. Skelly Wright:

Due to the situation of our state I hope you will read and apply this message to your heart and soul.

Since our nation was founded, we, the American citizens have felt proud of our God-given country that has had all the blessings of God.

Our nation was colonized under God by Christian people, for Christian purposes. One cannot fail to see the hand of God in this nation's history. She has been blessed as no other nation has.

In the eyes of the outside world this is the land of the free people, but in the heart of this nation the secret is hidden. The high courts of this land have taken a Godly nation in their own hands as dictators, for they have turned that which was good and helpful into that which is bitter and injurious.

Amos 12:15 "For ye have turned judgment (justice) into gall (bitterness) and the fruit of the righteous into hemlock (poison). Ye which rejoice in a thing of nought, which say, have we not taken to us horns by our own strength?

You might say, we can take care of ourselves, but God says "Because you have rejected me and my will the forces of destruction must fall."

Judge J. Skelly Wright! When you walk down through the valley of the shadow of death to face judgment, there will be no supreme courts to comfort and guard you. When you stand before the face of an angry God there will be no N.A.A.C.P., "Negro" with the purse to pay your way to heaven.

Please read the book of Amos and get a glimpse of a comparison to our supreme courts. May God have mercy on your soul is our daily prayer. If God intended for us to mix, we would have all been black or all white.

A WOMAN WRITES

THERE was a lad in uniform . . . Across the distant sea . . .
To whom I gave my youthful heart . . . In turn for his to me . . .
It happened in a long ago . . . With all the world at war . . .
And though there finally came peace . . . Of him I saw no more . . .
The years have crumbled into dust . . . And I am old and gray . . .
So there is nothing left to do . . . But just for him to pray . . .
The tragic memories of love . . . Still linger in my heart . . .
And so I firmly feel that we . . . Have never been apart . . .
But I, at last, am happy now . . . For soon I, too, will go . . .
And somewhere on a field alone . . . His love again will know.

Louisiana's Integration Crisis

The Morning World is certain now, as it was in 1954, and as it has stated many times since that the decision of the U. S. Supreme court in the segregation cases is a decision that is in itself unconstitutional. In that year the supreme court held that "segregation of children in public schools solely on the basis race, even though the physical facilities and other 'tangible' factors may be equal, "deprives the negro children" of equal educational opportunities." It held that particularly as to "children in grade and high schools" such segregation deprives the Negroes "of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the 14th amendment."

In making this decision the Supreme Court condemned itself by its own words of ignoring what the 14th amendment meant in 1868 when it was adopted and of ignoring what the Supreme Court itself had interpreted it to mean since then. With one bold faced stroke of unconscionable usurpation of power it rewrote the 14th amendment to mean what it wanted it to mean, based on its own amateurish uninformed and ill advised ideas of the "psychological knowledge" which it stated "is amply supported by modern authority." In usurping this power to amend the Federal Constitution it, without any apparent tinge of conscience, admitted in so many words that education is "the most important function of state and local government."

The decision is unconstitutional in that it is an usurpation by the Supreme Court of the authority to pass laws which under our constitution belongs solely to the legislative branch of government but more staggering in its utter disregard for the solemnity and good faith of the U.S. Constitution. The Supreme Court usurped the power to amend that great document — a power that was plainly left to the people in the manner provided in the document itself requiring the approval of three-fourths of the states.

The question of whether or not the state (should) have the right to segregate its public schools—it had that right until 1954—if it was to be re-examined, should have been the subject of a proposed constitutional amendment to be passed on by the sovereign people of the sovereign states as provided for in the constitution itself.

What makes the 1954 decision unconscionable is that the members of the Supreme Court believe, or should have known or at least should have suspected, that such an amendment to the constitution could have never been passed in the manner clearly provided for in the constitution itself — that is by ratification of three-fourths of the states.

In the face of this, this court usurped the power to make the amendments itself.

Being certain, as we are, that the Supreme Court's 1954 decision is unconstitutional it follows that all decisions based on this including the federal district court orders in the New Orleans integration crisis are themselves based on a power not belonging to, but usurped by the U. S. Supreme Court. Over and beyond this the Federal District Court in New Orleans, in its ardor in carrying out the directives of the U. S. Supreme Court, has set itself up as having dictatorial power over the governor of Louisiana, its elected state officials and the elected representatives of the people of Louisiana in its state legislature.

This last element of the case which goes to the heart of the doctrine INTERPOSITION has not yet been passed on by final procedures before the federal courts. The question should be tested through the final step of the federal judiciary — that is, before the U. S. Supreme Court.

Anyone who has made even a passing effort to keep abreast of the news during the past few historic days in Louisiana knows that the governor, the elected and appointed state officials and the members of the legislature of Louisiana have been and are making a full and complete effort to interpose themselves and the state of Louisiana between the people and the upsurped power of the federal government. NO ONE CAN EVER QUESTION THAT THEY HAVE KEPT FULL FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE OF LOUISIANA FOR WHOM THEY ARE ACTING.

The Morning World would be less than frank and would be guilty of holding out real hope in the face of what we regard as only a threat of hope if we did not state that the great weight of legal opinion is that the doctrine of Interposition will fail. It will fail not because it should but because in the end it would have to be recognized by the same supreme court of the United States that usurped the power of amending the Constitution and of forcing integration in the first place. This does not mean that the doctrine should not be tested to the last legal point possible. We have no doubt that our legislature, our governor and our state officials will do just this.

In view of the fact that Interposition may very well fail in a test before the U. S. Supreme Court, it behooves the people of Louisiana to face squarely the problems that then will confront them.

In facing these problems, we commend to our readers the advice of Louisiana's governor that the people try to view the matter without emotion:

> "As difficult as it might be, try and understand that your schools and your children are not issues . . . understand that the men you selected to administer the affairs of your state are living up to the faith and confidence you placed in them."

If interposition fails, what then are the alternatives available to the people of Louisiana? These are the only ones we know of (if there are others we would like to see them pointed out.):

I.

A physical clash between Louisiana and the forces of the federal government. In short, this alternative is secession and armed conflict.

We know of no responsible opinion that recommends this alternative. The Morning World certainly does not.

The Governor has said that the state "'does not intend to use the power vested in us by the people to provoke a physical clash between our state and the forces of the federal government. This is an extreme course which would settle nothing except to prove which side has the greater might."

II.

Accept integration in our public schools and attempt to minimize its intent through the pupil placement laws now on our books and in other ways. In short, accept so-called "token integration."

First of all, it should be made clear that "token integration" will not necessarily satisfy the avaricious appetite of the U. S. Supreme Court to eat up the purely state right to provide for, regulate and administer a public school system.

In the second place we should not assume that what starts out as "token integration" even if acceptable to the Supreme Court would not become "full fledged integration."

To date the Supreme Court tacitly has held in two cases that pupil or school placement laws are constitutional if they set up adequate standards and if they are constitutionally administered. These cases involving Alabama and North Carolina school placement laws were passed on by lower federal courts and the supreme court tactily approved them by declining to review the decisions.

In this area, time is of great value to Louisiana in ultimately deciding which of the available alternatives it will choose. Time gives us a chance to determine what the Supreme Court actually is going to hold with respect to pupil placement laws and their administration.

In appraising this second alternative of "token integration" we say without any amount of reservations that the white parents as a whole of North Louisiana are not going to permit their children to attend public schools that are integrated to any substantial degree. This is a fact today, it has been for years past and it most certainly will be for the many years ahead with which we need to concern ourselves here. This is not to say that those white parents will accept what is called "token integration." We certainly do not know the answer to that and we doubt that the parents do until they have studied and have come face to face with the problems of operating private schools on a mass basis.

This brings us to a consideration of the third and last alternative.

III.

Abandon the public school system of Louisiana and set up a private school system owned and operated by parents or by non-profit organizations.

The private school system sounds easy. Actually placing it into effect will be accompanied by many problems now known to us. It would, however, entail more problems that only experience could teach us.

It must be remembered that buildings would have to be acquired or constructed, teachers employed, and an administrative staff set up. The actual cost of providing for and operating such schools is estimated at between $800 and $1500 per student per year. Very few parents are financially able to afford such an outlay. The schools would therefore make a heavy drain on the public spirited who are able to contribute to them. They would require public donations of a magnitude not even considered before. Those making these contributions, in the nature of things, should be relieved of some of the taxes they now pay that support the public school system.

When facing the problem squarely it would have to be recognized that the education of those white children now in public schools and those who would have attended them for several years to come would suffer in quality. Until the lapse of time necessary to make a mass private school system function smoothly the quality of education would be inferior to that to be obtained in the public schools of North Louisiana today.

We harbor no doubts however, that such a system can be made to work. Ultimately it may be the only course available to us.

As this paper has advocated many times in the past, we must now make preparations for the only course left to white parents.

We have not touched on the magnificent public school system provided for Negro children in North Louisiana.

If the public school system is abandoned in Louisiana, their's will go with it. Who will provide their private schools for them? Certainly, with any realism, they could not expect the white people who provide almost all the taxes that maintain their schools today, to make donations to build and maintain private schools for them if they force the closing of our public school system, white and colored. The integration of a white public school does not arise until someone in behalf of a Negro child makes application for admission to it. The responsible Negro leadership of North Louisiana could ponder their own best interest in this respect long and thoroughly.

For the time being in our actions we should follow the advice of the Governor and know that our elected officials and representatives are doing everything legally possible to protect the rights of our citizens. To use his words "the men you elected to administer the affairs of your state are living up to the faith and confidence you placed in them." We should now wait the outcome of the Interposition doctrine that will be passed on by the federal courts and perhaps ultimately by the U. S. Supreme Court. We should be prepared in our thinking and planning for the very real possibility of another adverse decision.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

Another Answer

Alexandria, La.

To the Editor:

Wading through the Rev. Pervie Nichols' "Are We All To Be Bigots?", carried in your Nov. 13 issue, was a frustrating and depressing experience. To answer point by point the multitude of time - worn charges, each "scientifically" documented with misinterpreted and out-of-context quotations, would require a special edition of the Morning World.

The garbled and hopelessly confused presentation made by the minister from Jackson does serve one purpose, howeer. It gives eloquent testimony that sincere discussion of religious issues and differences is impossible with a man like the Rev. Nichols.

For him, religious discussion between Protestants and Catholics is nothing more than a shooting match in which opposing contestants snipe at each other and score winner's points by uncovering real or imaginary weaknesses.

Catholics might just as well condemn contemporary American Protestantism for the murder of Servetus at the hands of the Calvinists, the immorality of Henry VIII, and the harshness of Cromwell toward Irish Catholics. How ridiculous can we get?

The Rev. Nichols points out that "the Catholic Church is prone to meddle in political affairs," and cites as an example the recent action of the Puerto Rican bishops.

Does the problem of "political meddling" posed for Catholics by this example, differ substantially from the one posed for the Rev. Nichols by his own denomination's publication, "The Gospel Advocate? In a pre - election issue the editor of this publication stated that ministers of the Church of Christ would not only use their pulpits, but any other forum they could get to bring about the defeat of Senator Kennedy.

And there was the spectacle of three Baptist clergymen trying to put before the Democratic National Convention a petition — with 500,000 signatures, they said — opposing any Catholic for President or Vice President.

These and other incidents indicate that Catholics are not the only ones faced with embarrassng and thorny problems of "political meddling."

They also indicate the utter futility of reducing religious discussion to a matter of answering charges with counter - charges and more charges.

In spite of the antagonisms and tensions highlighted in the recent Presidential campaign, many of us still hope and work for an improvement in Protestant-Catholic relations.

In this work Protestant leadership will come from such men as Dr. John C. Bennett, editor and seminary dean, who points out that "American Protestants should realize that the Roman Church is not a vast international machine designed to overturn their liberties, if this were to become politically possible, and that they have many allies in the Catholic Church who share their belief in religious liberty on principle."

Catholic leadership will be furnished by men like William Clancy, also an editor and consultant to the Fund for the Republic who writes: "I do not believe that Catholics generally have anything that approaches an adequate understanding of what Protestantism actually is. Most of them know only what it is not. And this is a major failure in Catholic education."

There are, then, leaders in both Catholic and Protestant camps who are dedicated to the principle that differences in doctrinal belief offer no valid grounds for divorce and estrangement in the order of charity.

If the cause of religion in America is going to be advanced, it will be by men such as these, not by the likes of the Rev. Pervie Nichols.

Voters Are Rapped

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

With the present unrest in New Orleans and with politicians all over the south using this moment of racial strife to further their own political ambitions, I for one have a few observations which I would like to air to the general public.

We had two elections recently in Louisiana, the governor's and presidential, and in both the States Rights Party received a very poor showing of strength. It is now history that the opportunity was given to all the south to vote States Rights and thus save the south from integration.

If the south had voted according to own way of life in the Southlands, Kennedy today would be bargaining with us and our children would be going to school as usual. The south would have a big "sayso" in Washington. But such was not to be. What happened? Opportunists in politics turned their backs on the States Rights and voted "Democratics for Nixon". They sold the south to men who sent the National Guard to Little Rock and to men who would force a Negro into the Cabinet. Where is the logic in this? Today they raise their voices for States Rights and would have us believe they are sincere. Today they send telegrams and denounciations to the mayor of New Orleans for his actions in the present crisis. What would Mayor Howard do if tomorrow the same were to take place in Monroe? Allow the people to get out of hand and have mob rule. We are not fooled. Now we turn to Kennedy and want to know how he feels towards the south. Round-A-Bout

With Ezra Adams, State Editor

Public schools of eight northeast Louisiana parishes are closed for the next week for Thanksgiving holidays Thursday and Friday, and to give teachers an opportunity to attend conventions in Baton Rouge Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Closes all week are the schools of Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, Jackson, LaSalle, Lincoln, Ouachita and Winn parishes.

Public schools of Franklin, East Carroll, West Carroll, Union, Richland, Madison, Tensas, and Morehouse, parishes will be closed Thursday and Friday only, with substitute teachers filling in for delegates to the conventions.

Al. M. Cobb, of Jena, writes this about Junction City, La. Ark.; "At one time in the far past a large dug well served many of the citizens with their drinking water for their places of business. This well was supposed to be in such a position on the state line that separates these two towns so that you were drinking water from the following: 2 states — Arkansas and Louisiana; 1 county —Union; 2 parishes — Union and Claiborne; 1 township — the Arkansas side; two wards — the Louisiana side; and 2 towns."

Members of the Royal Ambassador chapter, First Baptist church, Jonesville, recently received an award as the only R.A. chapter in Louisiana to attain "Approved Status" — highest honor a chapter can receive.

The chapter last week observed Focus Week with a special display in the church, telling of the R. A. work, and other activities including attendance at the area R. A. Congress in Alexandria.

State Senator J. C. Gilbert of Sicily Island was guest speaker at the Jonesville Junior Guild meeting held a few days ago. He discussed state welfare and aid to dependent children.

Rebuilding a part of the downtown business district in Waterproof destroyed over a week ago by fire is being planned.

Mayor Louis Preis Sr. said he wanted to thank volunteer fire fighters in Waterproof, and the fire departments of Newellton, St. Joseph, Ferriday and Natchez for responding to an appeal for help to control the big blaze in which four businesses were destroyed.

The highway department last week installed two blinker lights at Start as a caution to motorists on Highway 80 and on approaching streets.

One of the lights was placed on each side of the village on Highway 80.

Last summer, four accidents occurred in one weekend at the intersection of Highway 80 and the Clear Lake road, resulting in two daths and several persons injured.

Plans will get underway at a board meeting of the Gravity Drainage District No. 2 in Tensas parish Tuesday to construct the North Tensas Watershed Project.

Property owners of the parish voted last Tuesday for the project, with only two votes against the proposal, according to A. G. McIntosh, drainage board secretary.

On Tuesday, the board meets with representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the state Department of Public Works to begin work on plans for the project. Construction is expected to begin next spring.

In Crossett, Ark., four delegates have been named to the Arkansas Education Association Council. They are Mrs. Annette Hobgood, Norman Junior High school; Robert Truax, Crossett Senior High; and Orrell Grider and William C. Hoover, representating the Crossett elementary schools.

The council meets in Little Rock Dec. 10.

Crossett voters will elect a school board director for School District 52 or Dec. 6. Three candidates will be on the ballot, Mrs. Robert Hudgens, E. E. Lucky, and John Henry Allen, who is asking re - election. The only other issue in this school election will be the approval of the present millage rate of 29 mills for the Crossett district.

DINK THAD LLOYD, center receives congratulations from P. F. Watzek, President of The Crossett Company, upon receiving an award for 50 years of service and association with The Crossett Company. Looking on is Charles L. Finch, who was presented with a 50-year award by Ashley Drew and Northern Railway Company. The awards, $500 savings bonds, were presented at the fourteenth annual service award banquets Thursday and Friday nights. Thirty-one other employees were recognized for 25 or more years of service to the two companies. In the background is The Crossett Company's new corporate symbol, which was introduced at the ceremonies.

Wisner Woman Files Suit In Husband's Death

JONESVILLE (Special) — A $413,000 law suit has been set for jury trial in the Seventh Judicial District court on Monday, Nov. 21.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Joyce King Swillie of Wisner against the General Motors Corporation, et al, in the death of her husband, Rufus Swillie, who was crushed to death in his gravel truck about 12:45 p.m., Tuesday, May 19, 1959, near Jonesville.

The suit is asking $198,000 for Swillie for the loss of love and affection of her husband, loss of support and material assistance, grief, sorrow, mental distress and anguish and funeral expenses. It is also stipulated in the suit seeking $125,000.00 for Pamela Joy Swillie and $90,000.00 for Rufus Scotty Swillie, minor children of the deceased.

Swillie's two - ton Chevrolet truck, loaded with 10 cubic yards of gravel, plunged headon into an 8-foot embankment at the intersection of the Sandy Lake and Jonesville - Harrisonburg highways. As the truck cab nosed into the ditch the frame of the truck snapped off at a point behind the cab. The loaded truck bed then crashed into the rear of the cab, folding it up like an accordion. The gravel piled in on top of the folded cab containing Swillie's crushed body.

District Judge Jesse C. McGee is scheduled to begin the case Monday with the selection of a jury.

Dedicate LSU At Alexandria December 3

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Dedication ceremonies for Louisiana State University's newest campus will be held here December 3 with top University administrators and members of the Board of Supervisors in attendance, Dean Martin D. Woodin has announced.

The dedication program is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. following a regular meeting of the board which begins at 9 a.m.

The program will include addresses by John J. Doles, chairman of the Board of Supervisors; President Troy H. Middleton and James Bolton, chairman of the Area Planning Committee of the Alexandria - Pineville Chamber of Commerce. Dean Woodin will preside.

Now in its first semester of classes, LSU at Alexandria has an enrollment of 322 students from 11 parishes. Three buildings are being used for classes, administrative offices, laboratories, library and student activities.

The LSU Board last month authorized President Middleton to commission the firms of Barron, Heinberg & Brocato and Glankler & Broadwell, both of Alexandria, as associated architects to begin work on designing a permanent building for the instructional needs of the two - year institution. The Pan American Enginers have been commissioned to design the necessary trunk line utilities in anticipation of the future development on the 3,100 acre site.

Winnsboro Man Speaker At Baptist Meet

HARRISONBURG (Special) — Floyd Brown, Winnsboro businessman, will be the featured speaker for the Ouachita Baptist Associational Brotherhood meeting to be held with Harrisonburg First Baptist church, Tuesday night, Nov. 22, at 7:15 p.m., according to Rev. Walter G. Barnard, district secretary. The meeting will be held in the Harrisonburg Baptist Church.

The program has been arranged by Charlie F. Walker, associational brotherhood president. The theme is "Why I Tithe Through My Church."

Other parts of the program will feature laymen from local churches. Jimmy Wilson will read the Scripture and lead in prayer. Walter Dans will speak on "The Scripture Teaches Tithing Through The Church." W. A. Book will speak on "The Blessings of our Tithes to the World and E. W. Walker will speak on "The Blessings that Come from Tithing." The Pleasant Grove male quartet will bring special music.

Laymen and pastors are invited to attend this meeting, stated Rev. Barnard.

Jonesville Sets Services For Thanksgiving

JONESVILLE (Special) — The annual community Thanksgiving service will be held this year at the First Methodist church, Jonesville, with Rev. J. O. McNair, pastor of the First Baptist church, Jonesville, preaching the sermon.

The public is encouraged to attend this service on Wednesday, Nov. 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The choir of the First Methodist church will render special Thanksgiving music and the pastors of other churches in the community will participate in the service.

Each year the service is conducted in a different church in town with a minister from another church bringing the Thanksgiving message.

Young Escapee Caught After Chase, Gun Play

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP)—A young escapee was recaptured early Saturday near West Point after a highway patrolman shot off a rear tire of a stolen car. The capture followed a chase at speeds of more than 100 miles per hour.

Officers said Sammy Dew, 17-year-old George County youth, broke out of the juvenile section of the Jackson County jail Friday night by prying open a casement window with a piece of pipe pulled from plumbing equipment.

The slight, 125 - pound youth crawled through a narrow opening measuring only six by 18 inches.

Chief Deputy Harold Jones said the boy fled in a car stolen from a theater parking lot only 800 yards from the jail. Dew was recaptured by highway patrolman Tom Hester.

He had been indicted Friday by the county grand jury on charges of helping six prisoners escape from the jail Sept. 1.

VIDALIA (Special) — Members of the Concordia Parish School Board Thursday awarded a contract for the construction of a band hall at the Ferriday High School and for erection of a one story brick veneer gymnasium building for the Concordia Parish Training School for Colored at Vidalia.

According to Parish Superintendent of Education Hugh A. Bateman the contract for the band hall at Ferriday was awarded to the M and M Contracting Company of Winnsboro. They were low bidders at a cost of $39,300, Bateman said.

The contract for the two classroom and gymnasium building for the Concordia Parish Training School was awarded to Don A. Baxter and Son, Sicily Island at a cost of $122,987.00. The other bidders were the same as those who had previously bid on the band hall project.

Newellton Coed In 'Who's Who' In Mississippi

FERRIDAY (Special) — Miss Betty Clyde Ratcliff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Ratcliff of Newellton, has been named for membership in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" at Mississippi State College for Women, at Columbus, Miss.

Miss Ratcliff, a graduate of the Newellton High School, was recommended by an MSCW committee representing faculty, administration and students, who select the membership of Who's Who on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extra curricular activities, citizenship and service to the college and promise of future usefulness.

A home economics major, she is a ember of Phi Upsilon Omicron home economics club, student Education Association; Student Christian Association, Theatre Guild and Black List Social Club. She was a member of Lantern, freshman honorary society, and served as treasurer of the Rogue social club.

Her picture will appear with 21 others selected from MSCW campus in the "Who's Who Year Book" which gets national distribution. She will receive her degree from MSCW in January.

Winn Group On Industry Meets

WINNFIELD (Special) — The Winn Parish Industrial Corp. will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Westside auditorium, Glenn Smith, president, announced.

Smith said that a speaker from the state department of Commerce and Industries is slated to appear at a meeting, open to members and interested parties.

Political Action

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (UPI) — The Young Democrats Club at Southwest Texas State College was forced to elect a new vice president when it discovered its old one was a Republican.

National Board Admits Crossett High School

CROSSETT (Special) — Crossett High School was one of 27 secondary schools admitted to membership by the College Entrance Examination Board at its annual meeting in New York on October 26th.

Each school has full privileges and responsibilities of membership, including voting and attendance at various meetings during the year.

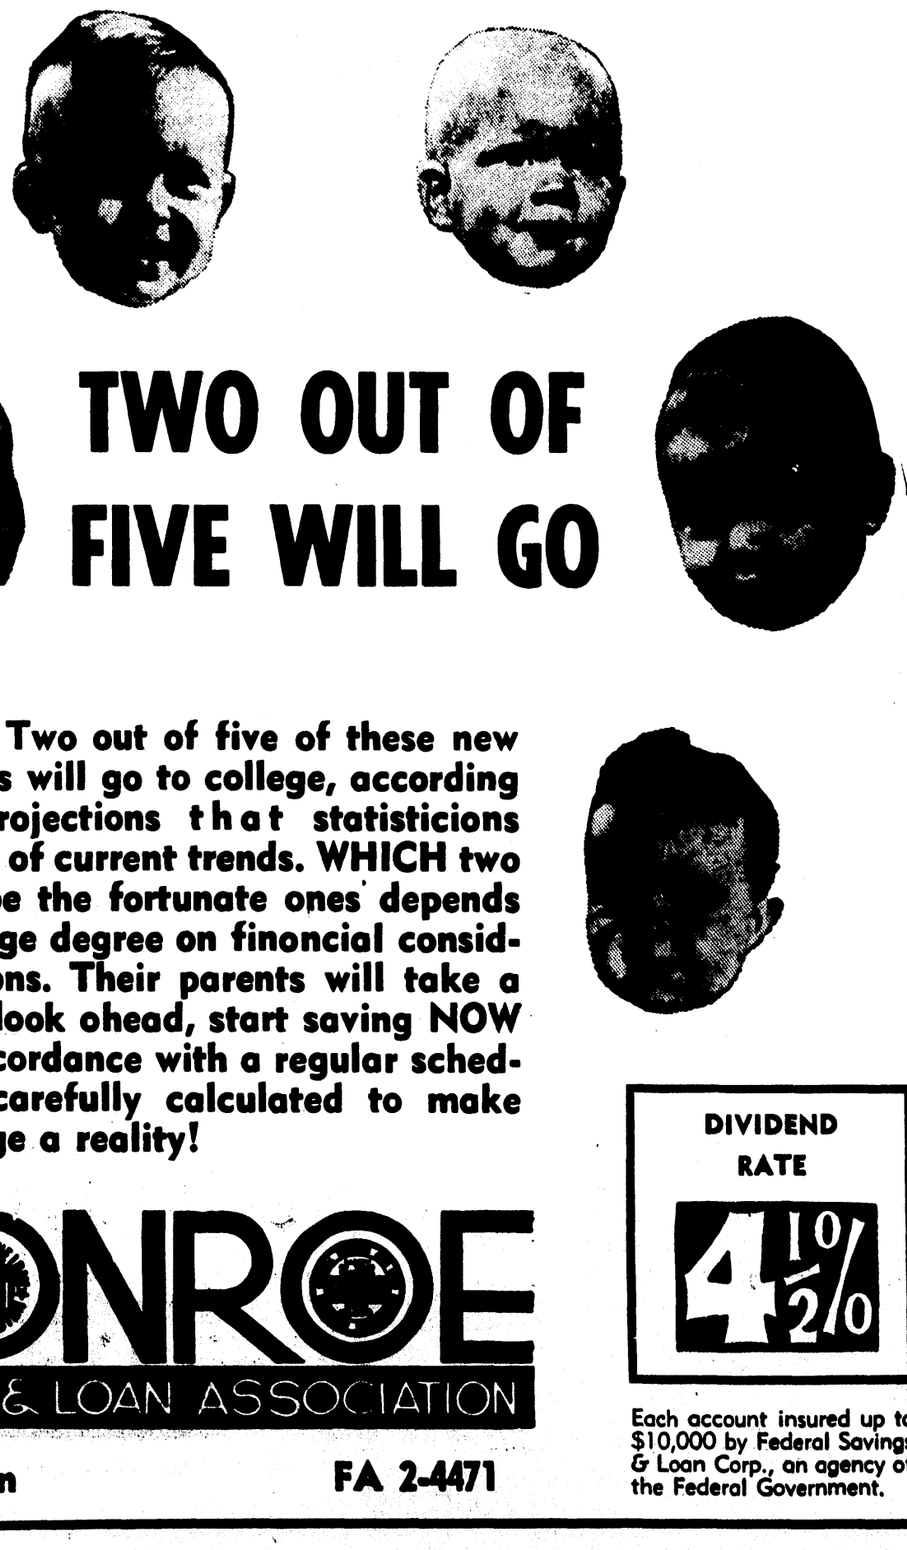

In other actions the board voted to admit a record number of new college members (63), bringing the total membership to 350 colleges and universities, 77 secondard schools and 38 educational associations.

Board services and programs include a variety of tests for college counseling, admissions and placement; the Advanced Placement Program; the College Scholarship Service; a series of supporting publications in each area of activity.

Round-A-Bout

With Ezra Adams, State Editor

Public schools of eight northeast Louisiana parishes are closed for the next week for Thanksgiving holidays Thursday and Friday, and to give teachers an opportunity to attend conventions in Baton Rouge Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Closes all week are the schools of Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, Jackson, LaSalle, Lincoln, Ouachita and Winn parishes.

Public schools of Franklin, East Carroll, West Carroll, Union, Richland, Madison, Tensas, and Morehouse, parishes will be closed Thursday and Friday only, with substitute teachers filling in for delegates to the conventions.

Al. M. Cobb, of Jena, writes this about Junction City, La. Ark.; "At one time in the far past a large dug well served many of the citizens with their drinking water for their places of business. This well was supposed to be in such a position on the state line that separates these two towns so that you were drinking water from the following: 2 states — Arkansas and Louisiana; 1 county —Union; 2 parishes — Union and Claiborne; 1 township — the Arkansas side; two wards — the Louisiana side; and 2 towns."

Members of the Royal Ambassador chapter, First Baptist church, Jonesville, recently received an award as the only R.A. chapter in Louisiana to attain "Approved Status" — highest honor a chapter can receive.

The chapter last week observed Focus Week with a special display in the church, telling of the R. A. work, and other activities including attendance at the area R. A. Congress in Alexandria.

State Senator J. C. Gilbert of Sicily Island was guest speaker at the Jonesville Junior Guild meeting held a few days ago. He discussed state welfare and aid to dependent children.

Rebuilding a part of the downtown business district in Waterproof destroyed over a week ago by fire is being planned.

Mayor Louis Preis Sr. said he wanted to thank volunteer fire fighters in Waterproof, and the fire departments of Newellton, St. Joseph, Ferriday and Natchez for responding to an appeal for help to control the big blaze in which four businesses were destroyed.

The highway department last week installed two blinker lights at Start as a caution to motorists on Highway 80 and on approaching streets.

One of the lights was placed on each side of the village on Highway 80.

Last summer, four accidents occurred in one weekend at the intersection of Highway 80 and the Clear Lake road, resulting in two daths and several persons injured.

Plans will get underway at a board meeting of the Gravity Drainage District No. 2 in Tensas parish Tuesday to construct the North Tensas Watershed Project.

Property owners of the parish voted last Tuesday for the project, with only two votes against the proposal, according to A. G. McIntosh, drainage board secretary.

On Tuesday, the board meets with representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the state Department of Public Works to begin work on plans for the project, Construction is expected to begin next spring.

In Crossett, Ark., four delegates have been named to the Arkansas Education Association Council. They are Mrs. Annette Hobgood, Norman Junior High school; Robert Truax, Crossett Senior High; and Orrell Grider and William C. Hoover, representating the Crossett elementary schools.

The council meets in Little Rock Dec. 10.

Crossett voters will elect a school board director for School District 52 or Dec. 6. Three candidates will be on the ballot, Mrs. Robert Hudgens, E. E. Lucky, and John Henry Allen, who is asking re - election. The only other issue in this school election will be the approval of the present millage rate of 29 mills for the Crossett district.

DINK THAD LLOYD, center receives congratulations from P. F. Watzek, President of The Crossett Company, upon receiving an award for 50 years of service and association with The Crossett Company. Looking on is Charles L. Finch, who was presented with a 50-year award by Ashley Drew and Northern Railway Company. The awards, $500 savings bonds, were presented at the fourteenth annual service award banquets Thursday and Friday nights. Thirty-one other employees were recognized for 25 or more years of service to the two companies. In the background is The Crossett Company's new corporate symbol, which was introduced at the ceremonies.

School Board Lets Contract In Concordia

VIDALIA (Special) — Members of the Concordia Parish School Board Thursday awarded a contract for the construction of a band hall at the Ferriday High School and for erection of a one story brick veneer gymnasium building for the Concordia Parish Training School for Colored at Vidalia.

According to Parish Superintendent of Education Hugh A. Bateman the contract for the band hall at Ferriday was awarded to the M and M Contracting Company of Winnsboro. They were low bidders at a cost of $39,300, Bateman said.

The contract for the two classroom and gymnasium building for the Concordia Parish Training School was awarded to Don A. Baxter and Son, Sicily Island at a cost of $122,937.00. The other bidders were the same as those who had previously bid on the band hall project.

Wisner Woman Files Suit In Husband's Death

JONESVILLE (Special) — A $413,000 law suit has been set for jury trial in the Seventh Judicial District court on Monday, Nov. 21.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Joyce King Swillie of Wisner against the General Motors Corporation, et al, in the death of her husband, Rufus Swillie, who was crushed to death in his gravel truck about 12:45 p.m., Tuesday, May 19, 1959, near Jonesville.

The suit is asking $198,000 for Swillie for the loss of love and affection of her husband, loss of support and material assistance, grief, sorrow, mental distress and anguish and funeral expenses. It is also stipulated in the suit seeking $125,000.00 for Pamela Joy Swillie and $90,000.00 for Rufus Scotty Swillie, minor children of the deceased.

Swillie's two - ton Chevrolet truck, loaded with 10 cubic yards of gravel, plunged headon into an 8-foot embankment at the intersection of the Sandy Lake and Jonesville - Harrisonburg highways. As the truck cab nosed into the ditch the frame of the truck snapped off at a point behind the cab. The loaded truck bed then crashed into the rear of the cab, folding it up like an accordion. The gravel piled in on top of the folded cab containing Swillie's crushed body.

District Judge Jesse C. McGee is scheduled to begin the case Monday with the selection of a jury.

Dedicate LSU At Alexandria December 3

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Dedication ceremonies for Louisiana State University's newest campus will be held here December 3 with top University administrators and members of the Board of Supervisors in attendance, Dean Martin D. Woodin has announced.

The dedication program is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. following a regular meeting of the board which begins at 9 a.m.

The program will include addresses by John J. Doles, chairman of the Board of Supervisors; President Troy H. Middleton and James Bolton, chairman of the Area Planning Committee of the Alexandria - Pineville Chamber of Commerce. Dean Woodin will preside.

Now in its first semester of classes, LSU at Alexandria has an enrollment of 322 students from 11 parishes. Three buildings are being used for classes, administrative offices, laboratories, library and student activities.

The LSU Board last month authorized President Middleton to commission the firms of Barron, Heinberg & Brocato and Glankler & Broadwell, both of Alexandria, as associated architects to begin work on designing a permanent building for the instructional needs of the two - year institution. The Pan American Enginers have been commissioned to design the necessary trunk line utilities in anticipation of the future development on the 3,100 acre site.

Winnsboro Man Speaker At Baptist Meet

HARRISONBURG (Special) — Floyd Brown, Winnsboro businessman, will be the featured speaker for the Ouachita Baptist Associational Brotherhood meeting to be held with Harrisonburg First Baptist church, Tuesday night, Nov. 22, at 7:15 p.m., according to Rev. Walter G. Barnard, district secretary. The meeting will be held in the Harrisonburg Baptist Church.

The program has been arranged by Charlie F. Walker, associational brotherhood president. The theme is "Why I Tithe Through My Church."

Other parts of the program will feature laymen from local churches. Jimmy Wilson will read the Scripture and lead in prayer. Walter Dans will speak on "The Scripture Teaches Tithing Through The Church." W. A. Book will speak on "The Blessings of our Tithes to the World and E. W. Walker will speak on "The Blessings that Come from Tithing." The Pleasant Grove male quartet will bring special music.

Laymen and pastors are invited to attend this meeting, stated Rev. Barnard.

Jonesville Sets Services For Thanksgiving

JONESVILLE (Special) — The annual community Thanksgiving service will be held this year at the First Methodist church, Jonesville, with Rev. J. O. McNair, pastor of the First Baptist church, Jonesville, preaching the sermon.

The public is encouraged to attend this service on Wednesday, Nov. 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The choir of the First Methodist church will render special Thanksgiving music and the pastors of other churches in the community will participate in the service.

Each year the service is conducted in a different church in town with a minister from another church bringing the Thanksgiving message.

Young Escapee Caught After Chase, Gun Play

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP)—A young escapee was recaptured early Saturday near West Point after a highway patrolman shot off a rear tire of a stolen car. The capture followed a chase at speeds of more than 100 miles per hour.

Officers said Sammy Dew, 17-year-old George County youth, broke out of the juvenile section of the Jackson County jail Friday night by prying open a casement window with a piece of pipe pulled from plumbing equipment.

The slight, 125 - pound youth crawled through a narrow opening measuring only six by 18 inches.

Chief Deputy Harold Jones said the boy fled in a car stolen from a theater parking lot only 500 yards from the jail. Dew was recaptured by highway patrolman Tom Hester.

He had been indicted Friday by the county grand jury on charges of helping six prisoners escape from the jail Sept. 1.

Southern Demos Congress Target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D) Pa., advocated party action Saturday night which could cost such Southerners as Sens. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia and James O. Eastland their committee chairmanships in the new Congress.

He did not mention either Byrd or Eastland by name but urged that Democrats who "failed to support" the candidacy of President-elect John F. Kennedy or opposed the Democratic platform be barred from heading Senate committees.

Byrd is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee which passes on all tax legislation; Eastland is chairman of the Judiciary Committee which controls most civil rights bills.

Byrd declined to support either presidential candidate this year. Eastland came out in support of Kennedy but is known to oppose strongly the liberal civil rights planks in the platform.

In another development, Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N. J., said he opposed any attempt by Republicans and Southern Democrats in the Senate to team up "to block progressive legislation" in the next Congress.

He hinted that the success of liberal Republican candidates in the election indicated such a maneuver was opposed by the voters.

"Speaking for myself, and I am sure I am not alone in this, I believe Republicans should join the Democratic majority in supporting constructive legislation," Case said in a statement.

"While we shall have to examine the specifics of any particular proposal, we should not block merely for the sake of obstructionism," Case said.

Clark urged that the Senate Democrats block appointment of new members to a committee if they oppose the party's platform pledges in the area in which the committee has jurisdiction.

Clark's proposals, set forth in letters to Democratic members of the Senate, obviously was aimed at southern senators.

The Pennsylvania Democrat said his proposals were designed to insure that committee posts be filled "in such a way as to reflect the true centers of democratic strength in the nation."

"We must not approve the designation of committee chairmen and new appointees to key committees of members who have failed to support the national ticket," Clark said, "or those who oppose the platform pledges in the area in which the committee has jurisdiction."

Parish Solon Asks Sustained School Support

as a people and as a state. As we stand at the cross - roads of decisions, it is very apparent to all that history is in the making in Louisiana. I therefore again appeal to every one of you to join in, and re - double your efforts to the efforts being made by your State Legislature to wake up Louisiana.

"The very life of this state, as well as that of the United States hangs in the balance. If we lose this goal line stand against the onslaught of federal encroachment being exercised by unwarranted, unconstitutional judicial decree, we will have lost all rights long guaranteed to us under the Constitution.

"Thus far in the special session, I have received only one unsigned letter condemning me for my 100 per cent forthright stand on every bill and resolution. Over against that, I want to say that it will take me a month to answer the hundreds and hundreds of letters and telegrams supporting my stand. We in the Ouachita delegation know how you feel, and you the people have the record vote to know how we have performed. I think it is befitting at this time to publically state to you that I, along with your other Representative Lawrence Gibbs are recorded with a 100 per cent roll call attendance record and as voting for every bill and resolution before the House that would keep our schools open and segregated, and would resist the efforts of Judge Wright to prevent us from exercising our rights as guaranteed to us under the Constitution of the State of Louisiana and the United States.

"For over 100 years the right of the State of Louisiana to maintain and operate its public school system has been guaranteed to us by the Constitution of the United States. Even a 10th. grade civic student can read and intelligently ascertain this. Certainly, the minds of the legal profession know that only certain, specified rights were delegated to the federal government with all other states rights expressly reserved to the several states. Not even a ridiculous stretch of the imagination can conceive of public education being granted to the federal government. State supported public education has always been a right of the state. It must always remain a State's right. Public education is supported by state resources, and state tax dollars. What right has the Supreme Court to overnight captivate and subjugate the control of state public education? Under the Constitution it has absolutely no right for there is absolutely nothing in the Constitution of the United States, nor any law passed by the Congress that entitles them (the Supreme Court) to take away from us the right to administer our own public school facilities.

"The Supreme Court has no right to make laws. As a separate branch of our government they are charged with the responsibility of judicial interpretation only. But in recent years, we have seen the Supreme Court assume the role of lawmaker, even usurping the executive power of the President and the legislative power of Congress. Permitted to do so, they are now appointing themselves as Judge, Jury and Prosecuting Attorney. This will lead to dictatorship and tyranny and ultimately divest every individual of every right.

"This trend toward complete control of every state and its citizens by a Supreme Court must stop and now is the time to stop our head - long plunge into national disaster. In this effort we must not fail, for if we do history will record that as Louisiana was beat down to her knees so was the rest of the nation knocked flat of her back.

"Admittedly, we are in the final round of the fight. We are in the fourth quarter of the ball game. We are being called on to make a desperate goal line stand. If we will form a solid wall against the attack, we stand an excellent chance to repeal and reverse the attacker. Every individual has a stake in this fight. Don't a single one of you think for one moment that this applies only to the other person. The outcome of this fight will effect you and your children's children whoever you are, wherever you are.

"Many, many have asked me just what they could do to help in this struggle. Well, for what it is worth, I do not hesitate to go on record as recommending certain safeguards and certain procedures.

"Let me remind you of a great truth in the realm of human events and happenings. The strongest force in the world is home of the brave and the land of the free, was founded by our forefathers who were willing to fight and die for their freedom and liberty. Public opinion must once more rise to peacefully demand that our basic state's rights be preserved and protected. As a State, and as a Nation, we the people must proclaim against our constitutionally guaranteed rights being denied us. We must re - state our determination that this be a government of the people, for the people and by the people . . . and not a state or nation dictated to by judicial decree predicated upon an unwise, immoral, unchristian effort to radically change and alter the entire social and biological structure of our society.

"Now, as to what you might do to help.

"1. Continue your valiant stand behind your governor, superintendent of education, legislature and other elected officials in our fight.

"2. Attend the Fifth District rally at Neville High School on Tuesday night at 8 p.m. to signify your solid stand for sovereign rights.

"3. Sign one of the petitions being circulated calling for the impeachment of Judge Skelly Wright.

"4. Accept the slogan to "Wake Up Louisiana" against the evils of integration and the dangers of federal encroachment in all areas.

"5. Take pen and paper, four minutes time and a four cents stamp and express your convictions to Judge Skelly Wright, the U. S. Supreme Court.. the President of the United States and the members of Congress. Remember the power of public opinion. Now is the time to express it.

"6. Be on guard against those ultra - liberal, brainwashed individuals who would lull you into a deep sleep and then steal away into the night with your basic freedom. You do not have to be brainwashed. Stand up for Americanism. Rebuff and repulse every idea and ism that is un - American and subversive.

"7. Finally, pray for a Divine guidance in this fight against integration. Integration, through indoctrination, can and will result ultimately in inter - marriage. God, in His basic biological birth of the races separated us by the color of our skin. It is not within our duty to alter this plan. We must not sell the birthright and bloodright of our children."

Dietetic Group Elects Officers

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—Mrs. Emily Bullock, Baton Rouge, Saturday was elected president of the Louisiana Dietetic Association.

Other officers elected at the closing session of the association's annual convention were Miss Rose Ann Mangham, New Orleans, president - elect; Miss Marlene Bond, Monroe, secretary, and Mrs. Martha Brown, Baton Rouge, treasurer.

Los Angeles Bus Strike Is Settled

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A four-day transit strike that threatened to knock the whole town off its trolley was tentatively settled Saturday.

Odds are that streetcars and buses will resume their runs Monday.

The settlement, a surprise to many, came after an eight-hour negotiating session that wound up in the early morning hours. Only Friday striking mechanics had voted to reject an offer by the Metropolitan Transit Authority.

The new contract, which would run 27 months, is subject to ratification Sunday by the Amalgamated Transportation Union. Approval is expected. Terms of the agreement will not be announced until the union votes.

Some 900 mechanics walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday in defiance of a court order. Superior Judge Lloyd S. Nix last month issued a restraining order forbidding a strike. He extended the order the day before the strike began.

Thursday Nix told eight leaders of the union to call off the strike by midnight Sunday or appear in court Monday to show cause why they shouldn't be cited for contempt.

The settlement appears to have removed the possibility of contempt action.

Some of the most memorable traffic jams in the city's history developed during the first two days of the strike. Although freeway traffic was generally not much worse than normal, there were dense tieups around the downtown section.

Downtown parking lots were jammed. Operators were turning away strangers to save space for regular customers.

The situation eased somewhat after the first two days. Improvement was attributed to expert police control, increased use of car pools and voluntary distribution of the traffic load over more hours.

The strike left some 400,000 commuters without public transportation. The Transit Authority provides street service in Los Angeles and runs interurban buses to adjoining suburbs and to Riverside, Orange and San Bernardino counties.

Students Visit Dallas In Tour

They visited the Federal Reserve Bank, the Ford Motor Co. assembly plant and Proctor & Gamble. The students were accompanied by Thomas R. McCann, associate professor of economics.

The students were from three classes in economic principles and one course in money and banking.

Voters Face Punishment, Bishop Says

turned to a majority in the legislature.

In his letter to the island's Roman Catholic priests, Archbishop Davis Friday quoted a Catholic Church law which says, "To those who obstinately disobey the Roman pontiff—the Pope—or the bishop proper who orders or legitimately prohibits something, there will be punishment in proportion to the seriousness of the guilt without excluding the censures (which cover excommunication)."

The Rev. Thomas Maisonet, pastor of San Juan Cathedral, told his congregation last Sunday that voters who disobeyed the bishops' voting prohibition committed a sin and he would not give them the sacrament of Holy Communion until they confessed and repented their action.

Felisa Rincon de Gautier, the Catholic woman mayor of San Juan, said Wednesday she would challenge Father Maisonet's right to deny her the sacrament. She said she voted for Munoz Marin and the Popular Democrats and did not consider it a sin. The mayor said she intends to receive Communion at San Juan Cathedral Sunday without confessing her vote.

Archbishop Davis' letter also reminded the priests of another Church law which declares that, "Ministers who would venture to administer sacraments to those who by divine and ecclesiastical law are prohibited to receive them should be suspended from administering sacraments."

The pre-election pastoral letters climaxed several months of feuding between Catholic authorities Munoz Marin over issues involving birth control and sterilization, religious instruction for school children and common law marriage.

Southern Demos Congress Target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D) Pa., advocated party action Saturday night which could cost such Southerners as Sens. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia and James O. Eastland their committee chairmanships in the new Congress.

He did not mention either Byrd or Eastland by name but urged that Democrats who "failed to support" the candidacy of President-elect John F. Kennedy or opposed the Democratic platform be barred from heading Senate committees.

Byrd is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee which passes on all tax legislation; Eastland is chairman of the Judiciary Committee which controls most civil rights bills.

Byrd declined to support either presidential candidate this year. Eastland came out in support of Kennedy but is known to oppose strongly the liberal civil rights planks in the platform.

In another development, Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N. J., said he opposed any attempt by Republicans and Southern Democrats in the Senate to team up "to block progressive legislation" in the next Congress.

He hinted that the success of liberal Republican candidates in the election indicated such a maneuver was opposed by the voters.

"Speaking for myself, and I am sure I am not alone in this, I believe Republicans should join the Democratic majority in supporting constructive legislation," Case said in a statement.

"While we shall have to examine the specifics of any particular proposal, we should not block merely for the sake of obstructionism," Case said.

Clark urged that the Senate Democrats block appointment of new members to a committee if they oppose the party's platform pledges in the area in which the committee has jurisdiction.

Clark's proposals, set forth in letters to Democratic members of the Senate, obviously was aimed at southern senators.

The Pennsylvania Democrat said his proposals were designed to insure that committee posts be filled "in such a way as to reflect the true centers of democratic strength in the nation."

"We must not approve the designation of committee chairmen and new appointees to key committees of members who have failed to support the national ticket," Clark said, "or those who oppose the platform pledges in the area in which the committee has jurisdiction."

Parish Solon Asks Sustained School Support

as a people and as a state. As we stand at the cross - roads of decisions, it is very apparent to all that history is in the making in Louisiana. I therefore again appeal to every one of you to join in, and re - double your efforts to the efforts being made by your State Legislature to wake up Louisiana.

"The very life of this state, as well as that of the United States hangs in the balance. If we lose this goal line stand against the onslaught of federal encroachment being exercised by unwarranted, unconstitutional judicial decree, we will have lost all rights long guaranteed to us under the Constitution.

"Thus far in the special session, I have received only one unsigned letter condemning me for my 100 per cent forthright stand on every bill and resolution. Over against that, I want to say that it will take me a month to answer the hundreds and hundreds of letters and telegrams supporting my stand. We in the Ouachita delegation know how you feel, and you the people have the record vote to know how we have performed. I think it is befitting at this time to publically state to you that I, along with your other Representative Lawrence Gibbs are recorded with a 100 per cent roll call attendance record and as voting for every bill and resolution before the House that would keep our schools open and segregated, and would resist the efforts of Judge Wright to prevent us from exercising our rights as guaranteed to us under the Constitution of the State of Louisiana and the United States.

"For over 100 years the right of the State of Louisiana to maintain and operate its public school system has been guaranteed to us by the Constitution of the United States. Even a 10th. grade civic student can read and intelligently ascertain this. Certainly, the minds of the legal profession know that only certain, specified rights were delegated to the federal government with all other states rights expressly reserved to the several states. Not even a ridiculous stretch of the imagination can conceive of public education being granted to the federal government. State supported public education has always been a right of the state. It must always remain a State's right. Public education is supported by state resources, and state tax dollars. What right has the Supreme Court to overnight captivate and subjugate the control of state public education? Under the Constitution it has absolutely no right for there is absolutely nothing in the Constitution of the United States, nor any law passed by the Congress that entitles them (the Supreme Court) to take away from us the right to administer our own public school facilities.

"The Supreme Court has no right to make laws. As a separate branch of our government they are charged with the responsibility of judicial interpretation only. But in recent years, we have seen the Supreme Court assume the role of lawmaker, even usurping the executive power of the President and the legislative power of Congress. Permitted to do so, they are now appointing themselves as Judge, Jury and Prosecuting Attorney. This will lead to dictatorship and tyranny and ultimately divest every individual of every right.

"This trend toward complete control of every state and its citizens by a Supreme Court must stop and now is the time to stop our head - long plunge into national disaster. In this effort we must not fail, for if we do history will record that as Louisiana was beat down to her knees so was the rest of the nation knocked flat of her back.

"Admittedly, we are in the final round of the fight. We are in the fourth quarter of the ball game. We are being called on to make a desperate goal line stand. If we will form a solid wall against the attack, we stand an excellent chance to repeal and reverse the attacker. Every individual has a stake in this fight. Don't a single one of you think for one moment that this applies only to the other person. The outcome of this fight will effect you and your children's children whoever you are, wherever you are.

"Many, many have asked me just what they could do to help in this struggle. Well, for what it is worth, I do not hestitate to go on record as recommending certain safeguards and certain procedures.

"Let me remind you of a great truth in the realm of human events and happenings. The strongest force in the world is home of the brave and the land of the free, was founded by our forefathers who were willing to fight and die for their freedom and liberty. Public opinion must once more rise to peacefully demand that our basic state's rights be preserved and protected. As a State, and as a Nation, we the people must proclaim against our constitutionally guaranteed rights being denied us. We must re - state our determination that this be a government of the people, for the people and by the people . . . and not a state or nation dictated to by judicial decree predicated upon an unwise, immoral, unchristian effort to radically change and alter the entire social and biological structure of our society.

"Now, as to what you might do to help.

"1. Continue your valiant stand behind your governor, superintendent of education, legislature and other elected officials in our fight.

"2. Attend the Fifth District rally at Neville High School on Tuesday night at 8 p.m. to signify your solid stand for sovereign rights.

"3. Sign one of the petitions being circulated calling for the impeachment of Judge Skelly Wright.

"4. Accept the slogan to "Wake Up Louisiana" against the evils of integration and the dangers of federal encroachment in all areas.

"5. Take pen and paper, four minutes time and a four cents stamp and express your convictions to Judge Skelly Wright, the U. S. Supreme Court.. the President of the United States and the members of Congress. Remember the power of public opinion. Now is the time to express it.

"6. Be on guard against those ultra - liberal, brainwashed individuals who would lull you into a deep sleep and then steal away into the night with your basic freedom. You do not have to be brainwashed. Stand up for Americanism. Rebuff and repulse every idea and ism that is un - American and subversive.

"7. Finally, pray for a Divine guidance in this fight against integration. Integration, through indoctrination, can and will result ultimately in inter - marriage. God, in His basic biological birth of the races separated us by the color of our skin. It is not within our duty to alter this plan. We must not sell the birthright and bloodright of our children."

Los Angeles Bus Strike Is Settled

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A four-day transit strike that threatened to knock the whole town off its trolley was tentatively settled Saturday.

Odds are that streetcars and buses will resume their runs Monday.

The settlement, a surprise to many, came after an eight-hour negotiating session that wound up in the early morning hours. Only Friday striking mechanics had voted to reject an offer by the Metropolitan Transit Authority.

The new contract, which would run 27 months, is subject to ratification Sunday by the Amalgamated Transportation Union. Approval is expected. Terms of the agreement will not be announced until the union votes.

Some 900 mechanics walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday in defiance of a court order. Superior Judge Lloyd S. Nix last month issued a restraining order forbidding a strike. He extended the order the day before the strike began.

Thursday Nix told eight leaders of the union to call off the strike by midnight Sunday or appear in court Monday to show cause why they shouldn't be cited for contempt.

The settlement appears to have removed the possibility of contempt action.

Some of the most memorable traffic jams in the city's history developed during the first two days of the strike. Although freeway traffic was generally not much worse than normal, there were dense tieups around the downtown section.

Downtown parking lots were jammed. Operators were turning away strangers to save space for regular customers.

The situation eased somewhat after the first two days. Improvement was attributed to expert police control, increased use of car pools and voluntary distribution of the traffic load over more hours.

The strike left some 400,000 commuters without public transportation. The Transit Authority provides street service in Los Angeles and runs interurban buses to adjoining suburbs and to Riverside, Orange and San Bernardino counties.

Students Visit Dallas In Tour

They visited the Federal Reserve Bank, the Ford Motor Co. assembly plant and Proctor & Gamble. The students were accompanied by Thomas R. McCann, associate professor of economics.

The students were from three classes in economic principles and one course in money and banking.

Christmas Opera Scheduled Here

The story in music of a small crippled boy who makes a gigantic wish — and gets it — will be performed here when the opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors" is presented Nov. 28.

This feature attraction of the Northeast State Concerts Association begins at 8:15 p.m. in Neville High School Auditorium.

After Gian - Carlo Menotti's "Amahl" the association will present the smash Broadway hit "Fiorello!" Dec. 2, also in Neville High Auditorium.

Admission to the performances is by membership only. Season memberships may be purchased at the dean's office, division of fine arts, Northeast State College.

Menotti was commissioned in 1951 to write an opera with a Christmas theme. Thus "Amahl" was written. The composer has said of his works:

"As it happens, my operas are not cold, intellectual creatures: they are rather nice to look at, impulsive and warm-hearted — too warm-hearted at times, so it seems. Although you may enjoy listening to their voices through a speaker, if you are to know them well. I still recommend that you should spend an evening with them in the theater."

The part of the mother in the opera will be played for the first time by Arlene Saunders, and that of Amahl by Lee Bratton, also making his first appearance. Other members of the cast will be from the original performance, which had its world premiere Christmas Eve, 1951. Included from that original cast are the Three Kings— played by Andrew McKinley, Davis Aiken and Leon Lishner.

This year's tour takes the cast as far west as Denver, as far south as Monroe and as far north as Michigan. The agenda for future seasons calls for a tour of California and a trip to France.

Satellite Data Reveals Clouds Of Cosmic Dust

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Clouds of cosmic dust in the paths of earth satellites have been discovered by Explorer I, the nation's first orbital vehicle, a scientist said Saturday.

Dr. Albert Hibbs, chief of the division of space sciences at jet propulsion laboraotry, said the discovery is the second major accomplishment of Explorer I.

This satellite, which is still in orbit almost three years after launching Jan. 31, 1958, also detected the hazardous belts of radiation around the earth.

Hibbs said the dsicovery of the orbiting dust clouds was made by continude examination of data obtained during the four months Explorer I's radio was in operation. The data shows a sharp change in the amount of lust encountered as the satellite changes altitude.

"This effect could be caused only by a cloud of micrometeorites (dust particles) in closed orbits around the earth," he said.

The satellite's orbit ranges from 224 to 1,573 miles above the earth.

Hibbs said the dust comes from outer space, is trapped by the earth's atmosphere, and stays in orbit until it finally falls into dense air ond burns up. From time to time the tiny particles are replaced by more cosmic dust.

Case Opposes Coalition To Block Liberals

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the biggest Republican vote winners in the recent election, Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, said Saturday he wants no part of a coalition "to block progressive legislation in the coming session" of Congress.

Case, who rolled up a 335,000-vote margin to win another six-year Senate term, discounted speculation that the 36 Republican senators will join with Southern Democrats on many issues. Such speculation has centered on some of the proposals advanced by President-elect John F. Kennedy.

"This is certainly not my view of what the role of the Republican minority will be," Case said in a statement. "Speaking for myself, and I am sure I am not alone in this, I believe Republicans should join the Democratic majority in supporting constructive legislation."

Case predicted that Republican Sens. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky — who also won re-election by wide margins, will take the same position he does.

In winning re-election, Case bucked the trend in his state, which Kennedy carried by almost 22,000 votes. So did Saltonstall in winning by 306,000 votes. Kennedy carried Massachusetts, his home state, by 511,000. Cooper ran ahead of the GOP national ticket in Kentucky, winning by 195,000 votes to the margin of 78,000 it gave to Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

To The Property Owners Of Ward 5 !!!

On November 22nd you are – without sufficient preparation – being called upon to pledge your properties for the payment of a tax (2½ mills, we are informed) for the purpose of funding and operating Recreational facilities in the City of West Monroe, Louisiana.

The individuals inserting this advertisement have never before found themselves in opposition to ANY CIVIC UNDERTAKING of CONFIRMED MERIT, but having studied what limited facts have been made available we have come to these conclusions:

1. As far as we can determine, the program is not well planned, or necessarily one which would meet the community needs as might be outlined by authorities in the recreational field, and applicable to the needs of this community.

2. The current time is a 'dangerous' time to undertake the capital investment required in this field, for the reason that facilities of a public nature cannot be restricted to the use of a particular group of people, to the exclusion of others, and any effort to do so might, in effect, serve as a 'challenge' to contending groups who thrive on such 'litigation'.

3. That the proposed 'recreation program' has not been thoroughly explained to this community . . . nor have the property owners, of which we are but humble members, been in any way 'consulted' as to wisdom of the program, nor has their advice been sought as to their ability to pay this additional taxation.

4. Further, that there is a definite obligation on the part of our community to refrain from enacting those tax obligations which would work an unnecessary hardship in the industry which, admittedly, furnishes the economic-lifeblood of this community–our pulp and paper production industry. Roughly over one-fifth of the costs of this program would be borne by our paper industry which even now is investing many millions of dollars in plant and equipment in an effort to modernize its facilities, and solve existing production problems which it faces by reason of national economic ills of the industry, reflected in decreased sales of its product. Rather than penalize, we as a community should demonstrate our loyalty by refraining from those governmental practices which bring additional burdens to a local industry so vital to the welfare of us all.

5. As a final word of caution, we now comment thot it has been the opinion of many that by reason of the name West Monroe Recreation District Commission' the application of tax assessments to those areas outside the municipal or corporate limits may not be altogether proper, or legal.

FOR THE REASONS WE SET OUT ABOVE, WE RESPECTFULLY URGE THE TAXPAYERS TO REJECT THE HASTILY CALLED RECREATION BOND ISSUE...AND ON NOVEMBER 22ND VOTE 'NO' FOR YOUR COMMUNITY.

Japan Faces Major Test In Election

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's voters have their say Sunday on conservative Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda's appeal for a mandate against neutralism in the cold war and in favor of the military alliance with the United States.

They will choose 467 member of the House of Representatives, from which a new government will be formed.

The balloting provides the first major test of sentiment on the turbulent events that jarred world confidence in Japan's young Democracy — street rioting that forced cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit in June and the assassination of Socialist party leader Inejiro Asanuma last month.

Ikeda has billed the election as a referendum on the central issue behind the June riots — continued military alliance with the United States.

To gain the mandate Ikeda is seeking, the conservatives have to win heavily and exceed their traditional postwar 2-to-1 margin over the leftist opposition.

When the old house was dissolved last month, this was the lineup: Liberal-Democrats 283, Socialists 122, Democratic Socialists 40, independents 2, Communists 1, vacancies 19.

Newspapers forecast slight gains for the Socialists and the coservatives at the expense of the moderate Democratic Socialists.

Much interest has centered on the moderate Democratic Socialists.

Much interest has centered on the latter party's future. Its members split off from the Socialists a year ago. Its leaders bitterly criticized leftist violence and supported democratic institutions during the Nixon-Kennedy style television debates that gave an American flavor to the three-week campaign.

POLITICAL, ECONOMIC

Bishops Assail Group Pressures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops of the United States Saturday urged all Americans to emphasize personal responsibilities and resist group pressures—political and economic.

Lamenting the rise of the complaint "organization man," the bishops declared: "The heroes of our history have not been blind forces but stouthearted persons; our worthy national goals have been achieved not as a result of environment but by men who made their environment. A strong and responsible nation is fashioned by responsible persons, not group pressures."

Revival of a strong sense of personal responsibility lies primarily in the field of religion, the 227 prelates said in a statement issued after their three-day annual meeting at Catholic University. The statement was signed by 15 members of the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, including the five U. S. cardinals, in behalf of all the bishops.

The paper did not specify any political, economic or social situation but said a sense of personal responsibility is declining at a time of excessive preoccupation with material security. This, it said, occurs at the expense of spiritual well being.

"Uniformity of thought and supine loyalty to the organization, whether it be the industrial corporation, the labor union, or the political party, are too often encouraged and rewarded," the bishops said.

They added: "The organizational man, cloaked in a sort of anonimity, rather than the responsible individual, is favored and advanced. The preparation for this condition is found even in the field of education, where emphasis is placed on adapting oneself to the thinking of the group."

Signs of what the bishops condemned as "these basically moral evils" are found in family life, they said, as well as in frequent lack of responsible leadership in management and labor.

"The failure of parents to fulfill their responsibilities, as revealed in the frequency of divorce, desertion and broken homes, is a national disgrace," the statement said. "Any delinquency of parents may well be reflected in the delinquency of youth, which is now commonly considered our greatest national domestic problem."

A tendency to pass on responsibility also may be seen in international affairs, the bishops said. While "admitting the undoubted value of a policy of supporting the United Nations," they said, citizens of all countries should evaluate its decisions rather than merely adhere to it.

Churchill Sits Up In Bed After Restless Night

LONDON (UPI) — Sir Winston Churchill was able to sit up in bed and chat with his wife Saturday despite a restless night with a broken small bone in his back.

The Churchill ensign showing him to be "lord warden of the cinque ports" flew gaily over his country home at Chartwell. Villagers know that as long as he lives, the flag will continue to fly.

A medical bulletin said the 85-year-old "greatest living Englishman" had a second disturbed night in his London home "but the pain of his injury is less."

He sat up in his special "spinal" bed to talk with his wife, Clementine, his physiotherapist, Miss Martyn Jones, and his physician, Lord Moran.

He had been in some pain Friday from the injury suffered Tuesday night when he slipped on a throw rug in his home.

Miss Jones called him "a wonderful patient." He has had long experience as one. In a sense, Churchill's life has been one bruise and broken bone after another.

After World War II he suffered pneumonia. Two years ago on the French Riviera he suffered pleurisy and a bronchial disturbance. He has suffered two strokes, heart attacks, a hernia, paratyphoid fever, a ruptured kidney and now is bothered by the infirmities of age.

Rep. Abernethy Believes Purge Can Be Stopped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Thomas Abernethy, D-Miss., says he is "reasonably confident" conservatives can stop a Democratic party purge of Rep. William Colmer, D-Miss., from the House Rules Committee.

Abernethy said Friday that "Bill Colmer's position on the committee is so important toward perpetuating conservative policy that all conservatives, regardless of party, will stand behind him."

A behind-the-scenes drive is on to oust Colmer from the powerful committee because he fought the election of John F. Kennedy as president.

Some pro-Kennedy Democrats are trying for the outer to break up the two-Democrat, four - Republican coalition that could otherwise be expected to continue its policy of bottling up liberal legislation.

Abernethy was one of the two Mississippi Democratic congressmen who backed the party ticket. The other loyalist in November was Rep. Frank Smith.

The other four — Colmer and Reps. John Bell Williams, Jamie Whitten, and Arthur Winstead — Supported the unpledged electors bolt, which was victorious in Mississippi.

Big Avalanche Buries Climbers

TOKYO (UPI) — A mighty avalanche roaring down the slopes of 12,397-foot-high Mt. Fuji buried 55 student mountain climbers Saturday but rescuers saved the lives of most of the trapped party.

Rescuers reported that five persons were known dead and five others missing. They said that 30 of the 45 climbers rescued had suffered injuries.

The massive snow slide was triggered at the 11,000-foot level of the famed mountain, engulfing the students who were practicing mountain climbing techniques at the 8,000-foot level. The student group included 10 co-eds.

Student Daisaburo Watanabe, 19 although injured, managed to free himself from the huge drifts and made his way to an alpine station at an altitude of 7,000-feet to give the alarm.

A rescue team reached the scene some four hours after the slide struck.

Police Probing May Continue

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The East Baton Rouge Parish grand jury meets Tuesday amid speculation a police probe may continue.

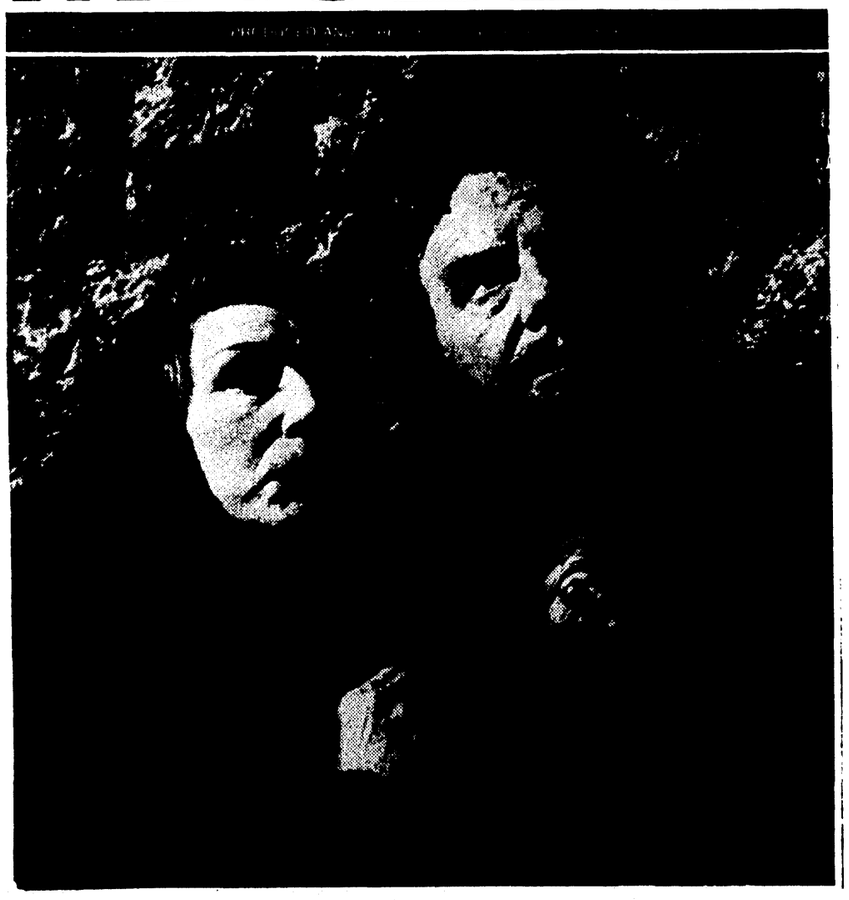

No reports were filed Thursday before the jury recessed for the weekend.

Maj. Wingate White, chief of the city detectives division, and several members of the police department appeared before the jury during the week.

RECEIVES HOMAGE

Final Rites Held For Clark Gable

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — The last rites for Clark Gable were held Saturday with all the dignity and respect that Hollywood's king commanded during his 20-year reign.

Unlike the near-riotous behavior that has marred rites for Hollywood heroes of the past—Rudolph Valentino and Tyrone Power, to name two—a saddened crowd of 300 fans stood reverently a goodly distance from Forest Lawn's Church of the Recessional.

Inside to hear the Episcopol rites conducted by an Air Force chaplain was a virtual Who's Who of the Gable era of movie history.

There was Mervyn Le Roy, the director who spotted Gable in a Los Angeles play and took him to Darryl Zanuck, then boss at Warner Bros., only to have Zanuck reject him because of those famous big ears.

And crying unashamedly during the rites was Norma Shearer, the MGM star who got slapped by the unknown Gable in "A Free soul." That was 1931, and the king, in effect, ascended his throne with that display of he-man screen lovemaking.

There was Frank Capra, the director who took Gable out of the heavy casting rut and put him in the classic "It Happened One night." It won Gable the 1934 Oscar for the year's best actor.

Among the pallbearers was Spencer Tracy, who, with Gable, gave MGM such great hits as "Test pilot" and "Boom Town."

Robert Taylor and James Stewart, other MGM stalwarts in the movies' golden age, were pallbearers, too.

And crying as though her heart were breaking was actress Virginia Grey, a long-ago Gable girl friend. She had been invited by Kay Gable, the blonde widow who had tolerantly ordered that her husband's body be entombed beside that of another great love of Gable's life—actress Carole Lombard, his third wife who perished in an air crash.

Actress Marion Davies, in a rare public appearance, was there recalling "Cain and Mabel," the last movie she ever made. Gable was her costar in that mid-30s hit.

Comedian Jack Oakie, an old pal of Gable's, was serious-faced throughout the rites, but when the rites were over and most of the mourners had gone, he wisecracked with the straggling fans.

Earlier some of the fans had tried to get past barricades for a closer look at the weeping widow, but a huge security force of MGM police and studio people had no trouble keeping things orderly.

Slipping by, almost unnoticed, was playwright Arthur Miller who scripted "The Misfits," the last picture Gable made. His costar was Marilyn Monroe, Miller's recently estranged wife. With him was director John Huston.

No eulogy was delivered by the Rev. Johnson E. West. He read the simple Episcopal service before a big bower of flowers. The casket was closed during the rites.

Mrs. Gable, an expectant mother, took her last look Friday at the face of her husband, 59, a face that looked virile even in death.

Midway in the rites the chaplain asked the star - studded congregation to pray silently. At that, an Air Force bugler, part of a March Air Force Base honor guard, sounded taps.

It was a touching tribute to the millionaire movie star who, at 41 — three years above the draft ceiling — enlisted as a private and later flew five combat missions as a gunnery officer over World War II European targets.

At the end of the rites the chaplain took the flag from a nearby standard and presented it to the widow, who sat in a private family room off the sanctuary of the little chapel.

She left with her two children by a previous marraige to sugar heir Adolph Spreckels Jr. Her eyes were damp, but she was composed. Five months pregnant and with a history of angina pectoris, a heart disease, she seemed to bear up well.

Cemetery attendants closed the doors of the chapel, and Gable's body remained inside alone. He may not be entombed until next week. It was the kind of funeral he wanted.

"I don't want to be a freak," he confided to friends before his death.

Gable died Wednesday night from a heart attack. He had suffered a coronary thrombosis 10 days earlier and had seemed on the road to recovery.

Ike Takes Day Off From Duties

He called two bridge - playing companions from Washington—presidential crony George E. Allen and Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther—to join him at his vacation headquarters this weekend.

Eisenhower took a "breather" at the end of a busy week of top-level conferences that resulted in major policy decisions with global impact.

Even so, it seemed likely he would be kept posted on the Navy's anti-invasion patrol he directed to protect Guatemala and Nicaragua from Communist - led attack.

Allen was on hand early this morning to play golf with the President. Gruenther is former commander of NATO and now head of the American Red Cross.

He's got a long way to grow—guide him carefully

Who says it's a small world?

Not a little fellow. To him it looks awfully big. And how he grows to face it depends on you.

Teach him well. Teach him Love. Love of God and of his fellow man. Let him see it in your daily life. And he will grow—loving and loved.

Teach him Respect. Live in such a way that he can respect you. Then teach him to respect others and that which belongs to others. And he will grow—seeking not to destroy but to build. And he himself will be respected.

But above all, teach him Faith. And he will gain a strength that will not fail him. Teach him Faith and it will add to his happiness. Teach him Faith . . . and he will never be alone.

Give him this legacy . . . Love, Respect, Faith. And he will grow in strength to be a man.

POLITICAL, ECONOMIC

Bishops Assail Group Pressures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops of the United States Saturday urged all Americans to emphasize personal responsibilities and resist group pressures—political and economic.

Lamenting the rise of the complaint "organization man," the bishops declared: "The heroes of our history have not been blind forces but stouthearted persons; our worthy national goals have been achieved not as a result of environment but by men who made their environment. A strong and responsible nation is fashioned by responsible persons, not group pressures."

Revival of a strong sense of personal responsibility lies primarily in the field of religion, the 227 prelates said in a statement issued after their three-day annual meeting at Catholic University. The statement was signed by 15 members of the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, including the five U. S. cardinals, in behalf of all the bishops.

The paper did not specify any political, economic or social situation but said a sense of personality is declining at a time of excessive preoccupation with material security. This, it said, occurs at the expense of spiritual well being.

"Uniformity of thought and supine loyalty to the organization, whether it be the industrial corporation, the labor union, or the political party, are too often encouraged and rewarded," the bishops said.

They added: "The organizational man, cloaked in a sort of anonimity, rather than the responsible individual, is favored and advanced. The preparation for this condition is found even in the field of education, where emphasis is placed on adapting oneself to the thinking of the group."

Signs of what the bishops condemned as "these basically moral evils" are found in family life, they said, as well as in frequent lack of responsible leadership in management and labor.

"The failure of parents to fulfill their responsibilities, as revealed in the frequency of divorce, desertion and broken homes, is a national disgrace," the statement said. "Any delinquency of parents may well be reflected in the delinquency of youth, which is now commonly considered our greatest national domestic problem."

A tendency to pass on responsibility also may be seen in international affairs, the bishops said. While "admitting the undoubted value of a policy of supporting the United Nations," they said, citizens of all countries should evaluate its decisions rather than merely adhere to it.

Rep. Abernethy Believes Purge Can Be Stopped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Thomas Abernethy, D-Miss., says he is "reasonably confident" conservatives can stop a Democratic party purge of Rep. William Colmer, D-Miss., from the House Rules Committee.

Abernethy said Friday that "Bill Colmer's position on the committee is so important toward perpetuating conservative policy that all conservatives, regardless of party, will stand behind him."

A behind-the-scenes drive is on to oust Colmer from the powerful committee because he fought the election of John F. Kennedy as president.

Some pro-Kennedy Democrats are trying for the outer to break up the two-Democrat, four - Republican coalition that could otherwise be expected to continue its policy of bottling up liberal legislation.

Abernethy was one of the two Mississippi Democratic congressmen who backed the party ticket. The other loyalist in November was Rep. Frank Smith.

The other four — Colmer and Reps. John Bell Williams, Jamie Whitten, and Arthur Winstead — Supported the unpledged electors bolt, which was victorious in Mississippi.

Big Avalanche Buries Climbers

TOKYO (UPI) — A mighty avalanche roaring down the slopes of 12,397-foot-high Mt. Fuji buried 55 student mountain climbers Saturday but rescuers saved the lives of most of the trapped party.

Rescuers reported that five persons were known dead and five others missing. They said that 30 of the 45 climbers rescued had suffered injuries.

The massive snow slide was triggered at the 11,000-foot level of the famed mountain, engulfing the students who were practicing mountain climbing techniques at the 8,000-foot level. The student group included 10 co-eds.

Student Daisaburo Watanabe, 19 although injured, managed to free himself from the huge drifts and made his way to an alpine station at an altitude of 7,000-feet to give the alarm.

Police Probing May Continue

No reports were filed Thursday before the jury recessed for the weekend.

Maj. Wingate White, chief of the city detectives division, and several members of the police department appeared before the jury during the week.

Final Rites Held For Clark Gable

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — The last rites for Clark Gable were held Saturday with all the dignity and respect that Hollywood's king commanded during his 20-year reign.

Unlike the near-riotous behavior that has marred rites for Hollywood heroes of the past—Rudolph Valentino and Tyrone Power, to name two—a saddened crowd of 300 fans stood reverently a goodly distance from Forest Lawn's Church of the Recessional.

Inside to hear the Episcopol rites conducted by an Air Force chaplain was a virtual Who's Who of the Gable era of movie history.

There was Mervyn Le Roy, the director who spotted Gable in a Los Angeles play and took him to Darryl Zanuck, then boss at Warner Bros., only to have Zanuck reject him because of those famous big ears.

And crying unashamedly during the rites was Norma Shearer, the MGM star who got slapped by the unknown Gable in "A Free soul." That was 1931, and the king, in effect, ascended his throne with that display of he-man screen lovemaking.

There was Frank Capra, the director who took Gable out of the heavy casting rut and put him in the classic "It Happened One night." It won Gable the 1934 Oscar for the year's best actor.

Among the pallbearers was Spencer Tracy, who, with Gable, gave MGM such great hits as "Test pilot" and "Boom Town."

Robert Taylor and James Stewart, other MGM stalwarts in the movies' golden age, were pallbearers, too.

And crying as though her heart were breaking was actress Virginia Grey, a long-ago Gable girl friend. She had been invited by Kay Gable, the blonde widow who had tolerantly ordered that her husband's body be entombed beside that of another great love of Gable's life—actress Carole Lombard, his third wife who perished in an air crash.

Actress Marion Davies, in a rare public appearance, was there recalling "Cain and Mabel," the last movie she ever made. Gable was her costar in that mid-30s hit.

Comedian Jack Oakie, an old pal of Gable's, was serious-faced throughout the rites, but when the rites were over and most of the mourners had gone, he wisecracked with the straggling fans.

Earlier some of the fans had tried to get past barricades for a closer look at the weeping widow, but a huge security force of MGM police and studio people had no trouble keeping things orderly.

Slipping by, almost unnoticed, was playwright Arthur Miller who scripted "The Misfits," the last picture Gable made. His costar was Marilyn Monroe, Miller's recently estranged wife. With him was director John Huston.

No eulogy was delivered by the Rev. Johnson E. West. He read the simple Episcopal service before a big bower of flowers. The casket was closed during the rites.

Mrs. Gable, an expectant mother, took her last look Friday at the face of her husband, 59, a face that looked virile even in death.

Midway in the rites the chaplain asked the star - studded congregation to pray silently. At that, an Air Force bugler, part of a March Air Force Base honor guard, sounded taps.

It was a touching tribute to the millionaire movie star who, at 41 — three years above the draft ceiling — enlisted as a private and later flew five combat missions as a gunnery officer over World War II European targets.

At the end of the rites the chaplain took the flag from a nearby standard and presented it to the widow, who sat in a private family room off the sanctuary of the little chapel.

She left with her two children by a previous marraige to sugar heir Adolph Spreckels Jr. Her eyes were damp, but she was composed. Five months pregnant and with a history of angina pectoris, a heart disease, she seemed to bear up well.

Cemetery attendants closed the doors of the chapel, and Gable's body remained inside alone. He may not be entombed until next week. It was the kind of funeral he wanted.

"I don't want to be a freak," he confided to friends before his death.

Gable died Wednesday night from a heart attack. He had suffered a coronary thrombosis 10 days earlier and had seemed on the road to recovery.

Ike Takes Day Off From Duties

He called two bridge - playing companions from Washington—presidential crony George E. Allen and Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther—to join him at his vacation headquarters this weekend.

Eisenhower took a "breather" at the end of a busy week of top-level conferences that resulted in major policy decisions with global impact.

Even so, it seemed likely he would be kept posted on the Navy's anti-invasion patrol he directed to protect Guatemala and Nicaragua from Communist - led attack.

Allen was on hand early this morning to play golf with the President. Gruenther is former commander of NATO and now head of the American Red Cross.

He's got a long way to grow—guide him carefully

Who says it's a small world?

Not a little fellow. To him it looks awfully big. And how he grows to face it depends on you.

Teach him well. Teach him Love. Love of God and of his fellow man. Let him see it in your daily life. And he will grow—loving and loved.

Teach him Respect. Live in such a way that he can respect you. Then teach him to respect others and that which belongs to others. And he will grow—seeking not to destroy but to build. And he himself will be respected.

But above all, teach him Faith. And he will gain a strength that will not fail him. Teach him Faith and it will add to his happiness. Teach him Faith . . . and he will never be alone.

Give him this legacy . . . Love, Respect, Faith. And he will grow in strength to be a man.

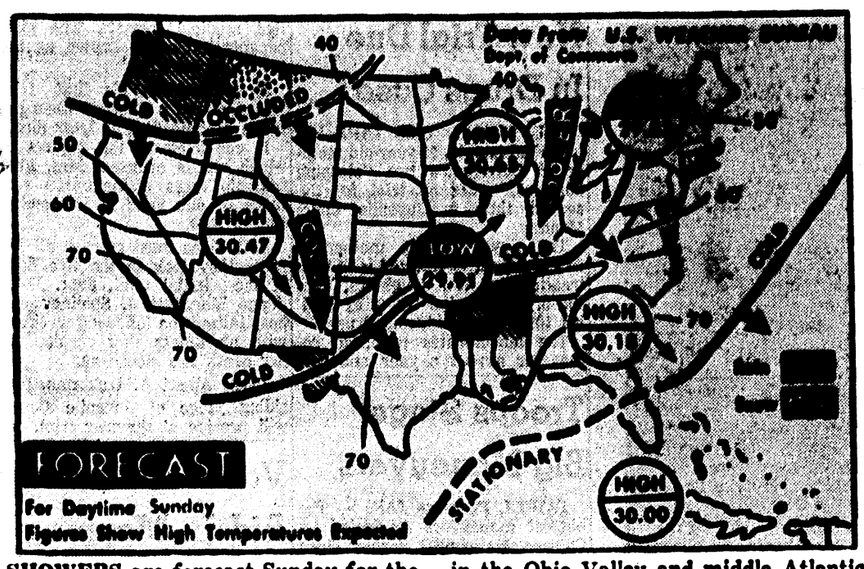

Find the strength for your life . . . worship together this week

MAP SUMMARY

Too high pressure systems over the continental U.S dominated the weather pattern Saturday afternoon. Most of the Eastern third of the nation was covered by high pressure with resultant clear skies and rather mild temperatures. The second high pressure area centered over the Plateau Region produced widespread sunny but cool weather over Plateau Regions and the Northern plains. Skies remained cloudy during the afternoon over Southern Texas and drizzle was reported at San Antonio. Winds were gusty over much of Kansas and Oklahoma and there was a great deal of cloudiness over the Lakes and locally in the Ohio valley. Light rain was reported off the Southern New England coast. In the far West rain continued in western sections of Washington and Oregon. Amounts have in general totaled around ¼ to ½ inch. Skies were cloudy in Northern California but were clear in Southern California.

Afternoon temperatures throughout the Plateau and Northern Plains were mostly in the 40's or low 50's but in a few spots the temperature failed to reach 40. The rain held readings to the mid-40's in the Northern Pacific Coast Region but in California the 60's and 70's were common. Mild temperatures in the 60's and 70's were also experienced over the mid and South Atlantic States and in the southern plains. Stations in Florida reached the 80-degree mark.

Outlook for Sunday—cloudy with some intermittent rain is forecast for the North Pacific States. Fair and slightly warmer is the indication for much of the Rocky Mountain region as well as in the Central and Northern Plains. Sunny and warm weather will continue in Central and Southern California. Partly cloudy to cloudy skies are expected in the Southern Plains and portions of the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys with some scattered showers or rain indicated. The East and South will continue to have fine weather and afternoon temperatures will be a little warmer. Variable cloudiness will prevail in the Lakes Region.

Deaths

Miss Mary Traylor

OAK RIDGE (Special) — A former school teacher and mercantile business operator here, Miss Mary Edna Traylor, died unexpectedly Saturday morning at the age of 82.

She died at the Oak Ridge home of a cousin, George Files, where she had been residing.

She was born and raised in Oak Ridge, and was a teacher in the public schools for many years. Later she engaged in the mercantile business with two sisters.

Funeral services will be held 1:30 p.m. Sunday here at the Episcopal Church with Father Richard Wilson officiating.

The body will lie in state at Blackwell and Golden Funeral Home in Bastrop until noon Sunday, when it will be taken to the church.

She is survived by several cousins.

Pallbearers will be W. H. Files, Warren White, E. C. Files, N. W. Mott, Norman McDuffie, D. B. Folse, E. A. Barham, and W. M. Nolan.

Mrs. L. W. Owens

TALLULAH (Special) — Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Mrs. L. W. Owens, 56, who was killed in an automobile accident Thursday morning at her home at Casa Robles, Calif.

Mrs. Owens was a former resident of Vicksburg, Miss., and had been in California for the past three years. She was a member of the Church of God of Prophesy in Vicksburg.

Final rites are scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday in Crothers Funeral chapel in Tallulah with the Rev. Thadis Powell officiating. Interment will be in Silver Cross Cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, L. W. Owens; two sons, W. J. Owens of Oakland, Calif., and Howie Lewis Owens of Casa Robles; two daughters, Mrs. William Blair and Miss Bobbie Jean Owens, both of Casa Robles; 11 grandchildren, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jobe of Tallulah; two brothers, J. B. Jobe Jr., and Charlie Jobe, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Kirkland and Mrs. Tech Fondren, both of Tal-Fondren, both of Tallulah.

Henry B. Smith

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Henry B. Smith, 54, died Saturday in a Farmerville clinic after a short illness.

Funeral services will be held today at 3 p.m. at the Farmerville Church of Christ with Bro. F. C. Bailey, assisted by Bro. Kenneth Lane Brantley, officiating. Burial will be in the city cemetery under the direction of Spears-Kimball Funeral Home of Farmerville.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Floy Richmond Smith, Farmerville; two brothers, W. C. Smith, Shreveport, and Rassie G. Smith, Mobile, Ala.; five sisters, Mrs. Broadus Taylor and Mrs. Gladden Hearn, both of Farmerville, Miss Carmen Smith and Mrs. Leslie Mosely, both of Shreveport, and Mrs. George Carrol, Junction City, Ark.

Museum Plans Highlight Local Society Meeting

Plans for the growth and development of the museum collection now housed at Northeast State College were discussed at a recent meeting of the Ouachita Genealogical Society.

Five officers for the coming year were also elected at the meeting.

Officials stated that plans were made to contact prominent people in the Twin Cities who are interested in forming a historical Society for the express purpose of directing the museum. Steps are also being taken to move the collection to more spacious quarters.

Officers elected to serve the Genealogical society include Mrs. Aline Bannister, president; Mrs. Jewel Caraway, vice president; Mrs. Abbey Leckie, recording secretary; Mrs. Travis Tynes, corresponding secretary; and Fred Culver, treasurer.

Nixon Makes Trip To Nassau

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon flew in from Miami Saturday and plans to spend two or three days in this resort city.

Nixon was accompanied by Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, G. C. Rebozo, a Miami friend, and a Secret Service agent. They registered at the Balmoral Club.

It was learned they plan to go sightseeing and perhaps do some fishing in Bahamian waters but Nixon told friends he expects to be back in Washington for Thanksgiving next Thursday.

Mrs. Nixon and their two daughters returned to Washington from Miami, where the vice president and his family spent more than a week at a villa on an island following the strenuous presidential campaign.

Charles J. Shea Services Monday

Charles J. Shea Sr., 59, 310 Mill St., West Monroe, died at 12:45 p.m. yesterday in a local hospital following a short illness.

Mr. Shea was a native of Little Rock, Ark., but had lived in the Monroe area for several years.

The body will lie in state at Kilpatrick's Funeral Home in West Monroe. A rosary service will be held for Mr. Shea in the funeral home chapel Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

Funeral services will be in the chapel Monday at 10:30 a.m. with the Rev. Father Vitus of the St. Paschal Catholic Church of West Monroe officiating.

Interment will follow in Hasley Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's.

Mr. Shea is survived by his widow, Mrs. Charles J. Shea Sr. of West Monroe; two sons, Charles J. Shea Jr., and John William Shea, both of Monroe; a daughter, Mrs. R. R. Wroten of Rayville; a brother, James Shea of Alexandria, and one grandchild.

U.S. Orders FBI Voting Fraud Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The FBI has been ordered by the Justice Department to investigate a number of complaints of alleged voting fraud in the presidential election, it was learned Saturday.

Neither the department attorneys working on voting fraud complaints nor the FBI would comment on the cases of alleged irregularities under investigation.

But informed sources said the department had received a tremendous volume of mail urging investigation of improper election activities and that a number of FBI inquiries were already underway.

The sources said, however, that it was still too early to determine whether mail relating to the election was heavier than normal for presidential election years.

They also said that many of the letters and telegrams received by the department merely suggested the possibility that voting frauds had occurred, without spelling out charges.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, who has been in Florida with Vice President Richd M. Nixon this week, could not be reached for comment. He warned prior to the election that the government would prosecute violations of the federal voting laws.

Rogers instructed federal district attorneys to be on the lookout for possible violations of federal voting statutes.

The Justice Department would become involved in the recount process going on in some states only if recounts turned up evidence of fraud.

On Friday, the Republican National Committee announced it is sending representatives into eight states to take a "close hard look" at the election results. The inquiry would be made in Illinois, Texas, Missouri, New Mexico, Nevada, South Carolina, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—all carried narrowly by President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The latest tabulation by United Press International showed:

Kennedy 33,996,082 votes or 50.1509 per cent of the vote; Nixon 33,791,441 or 49.8490 per cent, and others 448,412.

Queen, Prince Spend Weekend With Friends

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are spending their wedding anniversary this weekend quietly in the country with old friends.

Thirteen years ago Sunday, in all the pomp and pageantry of medieval England, then-Princess Elizabeth and the newly-dubbed Duke of Edinburgh were married in Westminster Abbey.

They had their ups and downs. At one point five years ago, there were rumors that the royal marriage was on the rocks. But palace sources said Saturday that the life of Elizabeth and Philip has developed a new serenity since the birth of their third child, Prince Andrew, last February.

"What a difference that bonny infant has made around the house," said a friend of the family.

The royal couple was spending the weekend with Sir Harold and Lady Zia Wernher, old friends. Horses and hunting were the main interests for the weekend, aside from the celebration of the anniversary.

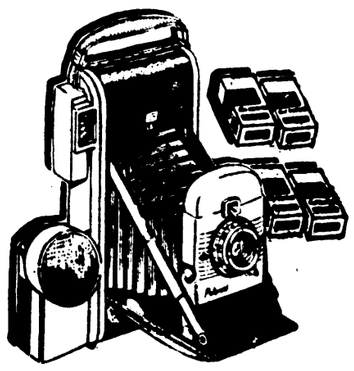

Leave Blister Alone

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) —Avoid the common temptation to break a blister, says the Minnesota State Medical Association. Left alone, the fluid will gradually drain back into the deeper layers of the skin and the area will return to its normal appearance.

Museum Plans Highlight Local Society Meeting

Plans for the growth and development of the museum collection now housed at Northeast State College were discussed at a recent meeting of the Ouachita Genealogical Society.

Five officers for the coming year were also elected at the meeting.

Officials stated that plans were made to contact prominent people in the Twin Cities who are interested in forming a historical Society for the express purpose of directing the museum. Steps are also being taken to move the collection to more spacious quarters.

Officers elected to serve the Genealogical society include Mrs. Aline Bannister, president; Mrs. Jewel Caraway, vice president; Mrs. Abbey Leckie, recording secretary; Mrs. Travis Tynes, corresponding secretary; and Fred Culver, treasurer.

Nixon Makes Trip To Nassau

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon flew in from Miami Saturday and plans to spend two or three days in this resort city.

Nixon was accompanied by Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, G. C. Rebozo, a Miami friend, and a Secret Service agent. They registered at the Balmoral Club.

It was learned they plan to go sightseeing and perhaps do some fishing in Bahamian waters but Nixon told friends he expects to be back in Washington for Thanksgiving next Thursday.

Mrs. Nixon and their two daughters returned to Washington from Miami, where the vice president and his family spent more than a week at a villa on an island following the strenuous presidential campaign.

Deaths

Miss Mary Traylor

OAK RIDGE (Special) — A former school teacher and mercantile business operator here, Miss Mary Edna Traylor, died unexpectedly Saturday morning at the age of 82.

She died at the Oak Ridge home of a cousin, George Files, where she had been residing.

She was born and raised in Oak Ridge, and was a teacher in the public schools for many years. Later she engaged in the mercantile business with two sisters.

Funeral services will be held 1:30 p.m. Sunday here at the Episcopal Church with Father Richard Wilson officiating.

The body will lie in state at Blackwell and Golden Funeral Home in Bastrop until noon Sunday, when it will be taken to the church.

She is survived by several cousins.

Pallbearers will be W. H. Files, Warren White, E. C. Files, N. W. Mott, Norman McDuffie, D. B. Folse, E. A. Barham, and W. M. Nolan.

Henry B. Smith

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Henry B. Smith, 54, died Saturday in a Farmerville clinic after a short illness.

Funeral services will be held today at 3 p.m. at the Farmerville Church of Christ with Bro. F. C. Bailey, assisted by Bro. Kenneth Lane Brantley, officiating. Burial will be in the city cemetery under the direction of Spears-Kimball Funeral Home of Farmerville.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Floy Richmond Smith, Farmerville; two brothers, W. C. Smith, Shreveport, and Rassie G. Smith, Mobile, Ala.; five sisters, Mrs. Broadus Taylor and Mrs. Gladden Hearn, both of Farmerville, Miss Carmen Smith and Mrs. Leslie Mosely, both of Shreveport, and Mrs. George Carrol, Junction City, Ark.

Charles J. Shea Services Monday

Charles J. Shea Sr., 59, 310 Mill St., West Monroe, died at 12:45 p.m. yesterday in a local hospital following a short illness.

Mr. Shea was a native of Little Rock, Ark., but had lived in the Monroe area for several years.

The body will lie in state at Kilpatrick's Funeral Home in West Monroe. A rosary service will be held for Mr. Shea in the funeral home chapel Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

Funeral services will be in the chapel Monday at 10:30 a.m. with the Rev. Father Vitus of the St. Paschal Catholic Church of West Monroe officiating.

Interment will follow in Hasley Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's.

Mr. Shea is survived by his widow, Mrs. Charles J. Shea Sr. of West Monroe; two sons, Charles J. Shea Jr., and John William Shea, both of Monroe; a daughter, Mrs. R. R. Wroten of Rayville; a brother, James Shea of Alexandria, and one grandchild.

U.S. Orders FBI Voting Fraud Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The FBI has been ordered by the Justice Department to investigate a number of complaints of alleged voting fraud in the presidential election, it was learned Saturday.

Neither the department attorneys working on voting fraud complaints nor the FBI would comment on the cases of alleged irregularities under investigation.

But informed sources said the department had received a tremendous volume of mail urging investigation of improper election activities and that a number of FBI inquiries were already underway.

The sources said, however, that it was still too early to determine whether mail relating to the election was heavier than normal for presidential election years.

They also said that many of the letters and telegrams received by the department merely suggested the possibility that voting frauds had occurred, without spelling out charges.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, who has been in Florida with Vice President Richd M. Nixon this week, could not be reached for comment. He warned prior to the election that the government would prosecute violations of the federal voting laws.

Rogers instructed federal district attorneys to be on the lookout for possible violations of federal voting statutes.

The Justice Department would become involved in the recount process going on in some states only if recounts turned up evidence of fraud.

On Friday, the Republican National Committee announced it is sending representatives into eight states to take a "close hard look" at the election results. The inquiry would be made in Illinois, Texas, Missouri, New Mexico, Nevada, South Carolina, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—all carried narrowly by President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The latest tabulation by United Press International showed:

Kennedy 33,996,082 votes or 50.1509 per cent of the vote; Nixon 33,791,441 or 49.8490 per cent, and others 448.412.

Queen, Prince Spend Weekend With Friends

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are spending their wedding anniversary this weekend quietly in the country with old friends.

Thirteen years ago Sunday, in all the pomp and pageantry of medieval England, then-Princess Elizabeth and the newly-dubbed Duke of Edinburgh were married in Westminster Abbey.

They had their ups and downs. At one point five years ago, there were rumors that the royal marriage was on the rocks. But palace sources said Saturday that the life of Elizabeth and Philip has developed a new serenity since the birth of their third child, Prince Andrew, last February.

"What a difference that bonny infant has made around the house," said a friend of the family.

The royal couple was spending the weekend with Sir Harold and Lady Zia Wernher, old friends. Horses and hunting were the main interests for the weekend, aside from the celebration of the anniversary.

Leave Blister Alone

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) —Avoid the common temptation to break a blister, says the Minnesota State Medical Association. Left alone, the fluid will gradually drain back into the deeper layers of the skin and the area will return to its normal appearance.

Two Arrested For Drunken Driving Here

Two persons were arrested early yesterday by Monroe city police and charged with driving vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, authorities said.

They were identified as:

Charles Holt Jr., 36, Sheffield, Ala., arrested at 1:50 a.m. on Pecan Street and South Fourth Street. He is under $435 bond and will appear for trial November 23.

Lou Ella Dunn, 32, Route 4, Box 81, Monroe, who is also under $435 bond and will appear for trial November 23.

Police also announced the arrest of two men on charges of simple battery at a local bar about noon yesterday.

The two men are Robert Allen, 33, 700 Wood St. who posted a $500 peace bond, and Houston King, 38, Columbia, who posted a $200 bond.

Both men are to appear for trial November 24.

Two other persons were arrested by city police on complaints of shoplifting at a local grocery store.

Earl Johnston, 34, Highway 80, West Monroe, was booked for the theft of $1.74 in groceries on the complaint of the store manager, and an unidentified juvenile is being held in the parish detention home on charges he stole 63 cents worth of candies and gum.

In West Monroe, city police arrested two men for reckless driving in a wreck at the corner of Summit and North Seventh Street.

Police identified the men as Edwin B. Miller, 34, 2305 North Seventh St., West Monroe, and Woodrow B. Atkins, 33, 124 Vernon St., Monroe.

The accident occurred about 6:45 a.m. yesterday, according to police records.

Police Seek Monroe Man Said Missing

Local law enforcement agencies yesterday were looking for a Monroe man missing since Thursday afternoon.

Monroe police authorities and the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's office identified the man as Andrew Glenn, 33, 608 Arkansas St., Monroe.

Authorities described the man as six feet tall, weighing 225 pounds, with black hair, brown eyes and dark complexion.

His wife reported she talked to him about 4 p.m. Thursday, but has not heard from him since. He was reported wearing a grey suit, white shirt, grey tie and black shoes.

The truck is marked with the company name on each door.

Sheriff's deputies said they had no information to indicate foul play.

However, the employer told city police he had received a phone call from a man who identified himself as Dumas and told him he could find his truck on the bank of the Ouachita River, but a check by the owner and officers failed to locate the vehicle.

Dependents Order May Cut Morale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An armed forces journal said Saturday that "a morale crisis worse than any since the pay cut of 1933" may result from President Eisenhower's order to reduce the number of military dependents abroad.

The Defense Department meanwhile asked the Army to complete arrangements for carrying out its share of the reduction and to show "positive leadership" in overcoming the adverse effects of the move, it was learned.

The Army - Navy - Air Force Register, published independently but closely associated with the military through reserve and retired officers, said it recognized that the foreign drain on America's gold created "urgent fiscal reasons" for the reduction.

The service journal, in an editorial prepared for publication next week, added:

"But it is sheer folly to ignore the serious morale aftermath. What we must do first is face up to the problem and then do something to remedy the situation.

"The government must do something about the economic situation that caused this crisis. The bringing home of dependents and other steps are only stop-gaps.

"Unless the basic problems are solved the economic advantages gained by these morale-shattering moves will be lost. We hope the new administration can find the solution."

The number of dependents will be reduced by 284,000 through a series of gradual steps.

The Air Force, which must reduce the number of its military dependents abroad at a rate of 6,120 a month beginning in January, late Friday banned family travel authorizations after Feb. 1 except in personal or special service hardship cases. It also banned extensions of overseas tours for men with families.

The Navy has also completed plans for replacing military families abroad with single officers in an effort to reduce the number of dependents at a rate of 1,170 a month.

But the Army has as yet completed no plan for its 7,710-a-month reduction.

CELEBRATING THEIR 60th wedding anniversary last week were Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Martin of Chatham. They were honored guests at a family dinner given in the home of their children Mr. and Mrs. E. L. (Buck) Edmonds, which included some 17 guests. The Martins have lived in Jackson Parish since their marriage in 1900.

New Trial Due In Drugs Case

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Lillian Fratantonio, 29-year-old mother of Cleveland's two "sleeping beauties," goes on trial for the second time in Juvenile Court Monday.

The tiny, brunette mother of five children, is charged with mistreating her two daughters, Venita, 5, and Bernadette 3, by feeding them sleep-inducing drugs.

The barbiturates produced comas for almost a year and baffled medical experts. The girls became nationally known as the "sleeping beauties."

Mrs. Fratantonio's first trial was declared a mistrial when the judge became ill, and later died.

If convicted of the neglect of which she is accused, Mrs. Fratantonio faces a maximum sentence of one year in jail and a fine of $500.

Both sides must retrace all the steps they took in the five days of the initial trial, Sept. 19-23. Judge Margaret J. Spellacy was hospitalized the following weekend with an illness that resulted in her death two weeks ago.

President Chiang Kai-Shek's Defense Ministry said 140,000 men of the armed forces are taking part.

The landing was a rehearsal for what Nationalist leaders hope will be an actual descent one day on Communist China.

Soviet Seeks To Bar Seat For Kasavubu

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union unleashed a bitter attack on the United States Saturday in an effort to bar a General Assembly seat to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu. But Western diplomats remained confident that the assembly would vote in his favor.

Valerian A. Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the assembly his country would not be bound by any decision upholding a recommendation of the assembly's Credentials Committee that a delegation headed by Kasavubu be given the vacant Congo seat.

The assembly met in a special Saturday session on the question but adjourned until Monday without reaching any decision. It still must hear a long list of speakers before reaching the voting stage.

Zorin's speech bristled with angry denunciations of the United States, Belgium and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization powers.

But he was careful to point out that it was the present U. S. administration he was accusing. He already has expressed Soviet willingness to confer with the incoming Kennedy administration on disarmament, and his language Saturday indicated Moscow might be putting out feelers for talks on other issues as well.

Zorin called Kasavubu a puppet of the United States and attempts to seat him in the assembly "an indecent farce."

ON TRIPS ABOARD

U.S. May Restrict Tourists' Spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government may crack down on American tourists' spending abroad if new action becomes necessary to protect this country's dollar reserves.

Officials have already studied the possibility of trying to reduce the $1 billion gap between what American travelers spend in the rest of the world and what tourists from abroad spend here.

The most obvious and simplest target for change, officials said Saturday, is the $500 tariff exemption permitted Americans on foreign purchases in any six-months period of travel.

It was reported that the actual dollar cost of the military and economic foreign aid program will go up by many millions of dollars as the Defense Department and the International Cooperation Administration begin to carry out President Eisenhower's new "buy American" policy.

ICA officials were reported to have made an estimate that it will cost an additional $150 million to purchase in the United States the goods for aid to foreign countries which are now purchased abroad under the $1 billion economic assistance program.

Defense Department estimates on the same problem were not immediately available. Contracts for purchase of arms in Western European countries, for the benefit of the NATO defense system, can only be shifted slowly to American suppliers. Thus, the additional cost at the higher U. S. price level probably would run to only a few million dollars the first year.

President Eisenhower announced Wednesday he was ordering all government agencies to buy everything possible in the United States and cut foreign purchases to the bone. He also ordered the Defense Department to reduce dependents of military personnel abroad by 284,000 persons. His program is expected to account for $1 billion a year out of a needed saving of around $4 billion if this country's income and outgo are to be balanced.

If new measures have to be taken—that is if the Kennedy administration considers the Eisenhower program inadequate — the tariff loophole which was opened to encourage tourist buying abroad could readily be closed or narrowed.

There is also speculation that steps might somehow be devised to reduce the outflow of private capital. Additional measures could cut down still further the number of dependents of military personnel abroad. And as a last report, officials said, the actual number of troops could be cut. However, Eisenhower ordered his program put into effect without any reduction in troop strength or foreign aid. And Kennedy campaigned on a platform of reinforcing rather than weakening the U. S. military position in the world.

Greer Infant's Rites Scheduled

Funeral services are scheduled today at 2 p.m. for Sandra Ann Greer, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney H. Greer, 5203 DeSiard St., Monroe, who died yesterday afternoon shortly after birth.

Services are planned for the chapel of Peters Funeral Home in Monroe with the Rev. E. J. Graves officiating. Interment will be in Hasley Cemetery.

Other than her parents, she is survived by a sister, Vickie Renee Greer; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Grace Haynes of West Monroe; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Greer of Monroe.

Elderly Woman Injured In Blaze At Home

NORTH HODGE (Special) — An elderly resident here yesterday suffered second and third degree burns when her clothing caught fire from a heater in her home.

Mrs. Carrie Roller, 75, of North Hodge, was rushed to a local hospital about noon yesterday following the accident in which approximately 25 per cent of her body was burned.

According to witnesses, Mrs. Roller ran to the telephone to call for help when her clothing was set ablaze, and as she passed a sofa set it afire but managed to reach the phone and call for help.

After examination and preliminary treatment, she was transferred to a Shreveport hospital where her condition was reported as critical.

Damage to the sofa was minor.

Rani Mrs. Frank Parker states that the supper, to be held at 127½ St. John St., will include turkey and all the trimmings. She requests that all nomads attend and wear fez.

Airliner Lands Safely After Gear Trouble

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—An Eastern Air Lines plane carrying 13 passengers and a crew of three landed safely Saturday after 40 frantic minutes of trouble with a faulty landing gear.

The plane, bound from Detroit to Miami, bypassed a scheduled stop at Greensboro in order to attempt a landing at Charlotte, where the airline has more repair facilities and personnel.

With one wheel down, the plane circled Douglas Municipal Airport for some 40 minutes as crew members worked on the plane's hydraulic system.

They finally succeeded in cranking down the second wheel manually and brought the plane down safely. Emergency squads of city, county and state police, fire engines and ambulances stood by.

The passengers continued the flight in another ship.

Soviet Seeks To Bar Seat For Kasavubu

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union unleashed a bitter attack on the United States Saturday in an effort to bar a General Assembly seat to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu. But Western diplomats remained confident that the assembly would vote in his favor.

Valerian A. Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the assembly his country would not be bound by any decision upholding a recommendation of the assembly's Credentials Committee that a delegation headed by Kasavubu be given the vacant Congo seat.

The assembly met in a special Saturday session on the question but adjourned until Monday without reaching any decision. It still must hear a long list of speakers before reaching the voting stage.

Zorin's speech bristled with angry denunciations of the United States, Belgium and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization powers.

But he was careful to point out that it was the present U. S. administration he was accusing. He already has expressed Soviet willingness to confer with the incoming Kennedy administration on disarmament, and his language Saturday indicated Moscow might be putting out feelers for talks on other issues as well.

Zorin called Kasavubu a puppet of the United States and attempts to seat him in the assembly "an indecent farce."

ON TRIPS ABOARD

U.S. May Restrict Tourists' Spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government may crack down on American tourists' spending abroad if new action becomes necessary to protect this country's dollar reserves.

Officials have already studied the possibility of trying to reduce the $1 billion gap between what American travelers spend in the rest of the world and what tourists from abroad spend here.

The most obvious and simplest target for change, officials said Saturday, is the $500 tariff exemption permitted Americans on foreign purchases in any six-months period of travel.

It was reported that the actual dollar cost of the military and economic foreign aid program will go up by many millions of dollars as the Defense Department and the International Cooperation Administration begin to carry out President Eisenhower's new "buy American" policy.

ICA officials were reported to have made an estimate that it will cost an additional $150 million to purchase in the United States the goods for aid to foreign countries which are now purchased abroad under the $1 billion economic assistance program.

Defense Department estimates on the same problem were not immediately available. Contracts for purchase of arms in Western European countries, for the benefit of the NATO defense system, can only be shifted slowly to American suppliers. Thus, the additional cost at the higher U. S. price level probably would run to only a few million dollars the first year.

President Eisenhower announced Wednesday he was ordering all government agencies to buy everything possible in the United States and cut foreign purchases to the bone. He also ordered the Defense Department to reduce dependents of military personnel abroad by 284,000 persons. His program is expected to account for $1 billion a year out of a needed saving of around $4 billion if this country's income and outgo are to be balanced.

If new measures have to be taken—that is if the Kennedy administration considers the Eisenhower program inadequate — the tariff loophole which was opened to encourage tourist buying abroad could readily be closed or narrowed.

There is also speculation that steps might somehow be devised to reduce the outflow of private capital. Additional measures could cut down still further the number of dependents of military personnel abroad. And as a last report, officials said, the actual number of troops could be cut. However, Eisenhower ordered his program put into effect without any reduction in troop strength or foreign aid. And Kennedy campaigned on a platform of reinforcing rather than weakening the U. S. military position in the world.

Greer Infant's Rites Scheduled

Funeral services are scheduled today at 2 p.m. for Sandra Ann Greer, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney H. Greer, 5208 DeSiard St., Monroe, who died yesterday afternoon shortly after birth.

Services are planned for the chapel of Peters Funeral Home in Monroe with the Rev. E. J. Graves officiating. Interment will be in Hasley Cemetery.

Other than her parents, she is survived by a sister, Vickie Renee Greer; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Grace Haynes of West Monroe; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Greer of Monroe.

Elderly Woman Injured In Blaze At Home

NORTH HODGE (Special) — An elderly resident here yesterday suffered second and third degree burns when her clothing caught fire from a heater in her home.

Mrs. Carrie Roller, 75, of North Hodge, was rushed to a local hospital about noon yesterday following the accident in which approximately 25 per cent of her body was burned.

According to witnesses, Mrs. Roller ran to the telephone to call for help when her clothing was set ablaze, and as she passed a sofa set it afire but managed to reach the phone and call for help.

After examination and preliminary treatment, she was transferred to a Shreveport hospital where her condition was reported as critical.

Damage to the sofa was minor.

Turkey Supper Set By Lodge

The Swami Santha No. 102 — Nomads of Avrudaka will have a turkey supper, darbar and initiation meeting Monday at 7 p.m. in Castle Hall.

Rani Mrs. Frank Parker states that the supper, to be held at 127½ St. John St., will include turkey and all the trimmings. She requests that all nomads attend and wear fez.

Airliner Lands Safely After Gear Trouble

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—An Eastern Air Lines plane carrying 13 passengers and a crew of three landed safely Saturday after 40 frantic minutes of trouble with a faulty landing gear.

The plane, bound from Detroit to Miami, bypassed a scheduled stop at Greensboro in order to attempt a landing at Charlotte, where the airline has more repair facilities and personnel.

With one wheel down, the plane circled Douglas Municipal Airport for some 40 minutes as crew members worked on the plane's hydraulic system.

They finally succeeded in cranking down the second wheel manually and brought the plane down safely. Emergency squads of city, county and state police, fire engines and ambulances stood by.

The passengers continued the flight in another ship.

FOR KENNEDY MEET

Prime Minister To Await Invite

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has decided to let President-elect John F. Kennedy make the first move in renewing the close ties between Washington and London.

It was learned Saturday on high authority that the British leader will await an invitation from Kennedy for talks unless some compelling international emergency like a revival of the Berlin crisis forces Macmillan to go to Washington before springtime.

The prime minister considers it would be undignified if he were to appear to be chasing Kennedy. He feels a sudden dash to Washington before the president-elect adjusts himself would savor of over-anxiety at Britain's status as America's closest partner in the North Atlantic Alliance.

By contrast, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer announced he would be going to Washington in February. He made the announcement a few days after Kennedy's election.

To the British, Kennedy's election spells more than the rise of a dynamic symbol of American energy and youth. It ends the era of the "old boy network," in which Macmillan could telephone President Eisenhower any time for talks punctuated by "Harold" and "Ike."

Macmillan has never met Kennedy, although some of his aides knew the president-elect well in his congressional days. Kennedy's father was ambassador to Britain before World War II, and young Kennedy accompanied him for a time.

But some aspects of the old partnership will remain the same. Officials at the lower echelons still use the same language, address each other by their first names, and swap intelligence secrets.

Macmillan may be expected to work on for these international objectives:

1. A steady, well-prepared ascent to an East-West summit meeting in order to defuse the powder keg of Berlin.

2. An impetus for the limping Geneva negotiations to ban nuclear weapons tests.

3. A new approach toward serious talks on ending the world arms race.

4. Normalizing relations with Communist China, preferably by admitting Peiping to the United Nations. This need not necessarily mean the U. S. government would have to recognize Peiping as London does.

Conventions For Teachers Open Today

BATON ROUGE (AP) —About 3,000 Louisiana teachers will begin separate conventions here for whites and Negroes Sunday as the New Orleans school integration fight quieted.

The 66th annual convention of the Louisiana Teachers Association opens with most sessions at Baton Rouge High School. About 3,500 white school teachers and administrators will attend.

At Capitol Senior High School, some 7,000 Negro teachers and administrators will convene for the Louisiana Education Association convention.

The four-day conventions are held traditionally during Thanksgiving week, giving students over the state a full week's holiday.

At the same time this year, a three-judge federal court is pondering a number of suits and counter-suits in the New Orleans school integration case which caused riots in the state's largest city last week.

A side attraction of the LTA meeting is the Louisiana Science Teachers Association convention. Dr. Robert H. Johnson, superintendent of schools for Jefferson County, Colo., and Dr. Albero Pilz, elementary scientist specialist for the U.S. Education Office, will be the main speakers.

Business of the LTA convention will get underway officially at 9:30 a.m. Monday when the 320-member House of Delegates is called to order by Merritt S. Beadle, Broussard, president, in the Baton Rouge High auditorium.

The first general session of the LTA will begin at 8 p.m. Monday in Baton Rouge High auditorium.

The featured speaker will be State Superintendent of Education Shelby M. Jackson.

U.S. Envoys Seek To Ease Gold Drain

BONN, Germany (AP) — U. S. Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson and Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon arrived Saturday night to tell the West Germans they must spend more money to help the peoples of less fortunate nations.

Seeking ways to stem a drain on U. S. gold and dollar reserves, the two men flew to Germany in a special U. S. Air Force jet. They were met by Economic Minister Ludwig Erhard and Hilger Scherpenberg, deputy foreign minister.

Anderson said in a statement that the three-day economic talks of American and German authorities starting Monday will deal with the "unusual conditions prevailing with respect to the German and U. S. international payments positions."

He said this constituted a most important problem for the free world's international monetary system.

Anderson told Erhard he was asked by President Eisenhower to convey his personal hopes that "our talks will result in even greater understanding between our two countries in the interest of maintaining and increasing the economic and political strength of the free world."

Erhard replied that the Americans can be assured that "we will do everything to reach an understandings."

The economic minister said the talks will not only be important for the relations between the Bonn government and Washington but also for the strengthening of the entire free world.

"It will be a serious discussion but one with mutual confidence and we will talk together as friends, he said. Erhard added he was convinced that a good solution to the problem will be found.

The talks will deal with two subjects—asking Germany to supply more money for foreign aid and persuading the Adenauer government to pay more for the upkeep of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

IN SPECIAL REPORT

Science Committee Urges Hike In Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's Science Advisory Committee said Saturday American science must "double and redouble in size and strength" in the next generation, or the nation will become a second-rate power with its freedom threatened.

"This means more scientists, better trained, with finer facilities," declared the committee in a special report issued by the White House. And it found increased federal aid the logical answer to these needs.

The report continued: "We need more things, with more support, in more places.

"It is the simple truth that if this country is to safeguard its freedom and harvest the great opportunities of the next generation of science, the level of its scientific investment must be multiplied and multiplied again."

Saying the federal government is by far the most important source of funds for research in the universities, the committee declared the government should accept growing responsibility for support because it's the only agency big enough to do so.

The committee report was prepared by a special panel on the subject "Scientific Progress, the Universities, and the Federal Government."

The 27-page document stressed repeatedly that "the process of graduate education and the process of basic research belong together at every possible level. . .and that each is weakened when carried on without the other."

The report asserted that the present partnership between the universities and the national government is indispensable to first-rate university work in science.

Critically appraising the roles of both the federal government and the universities, the report said the government's system of supporting research by contracts tends to separate research from education.

The committee recommended that the government "enlarge the practice, now followed with great success in a few agencies, of providing research support over long terms and for broad objectives."

Allen Services Scheduled Today

A. T. Allen, 79, a native of Massachusetts who had lived in Monroe for the past 35 years, died early Saturday at a local hospital.

Funeral services will be held in the chapel of Mulhearn Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Sunday with the Rev. Edgar Wiggins officiating. Interment will be in the Memorial Park Cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn's.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Grace Allen, West Monroe; one daughter Mrs. J. C. Lolley, West Monroe; one son Douglas Allen of New Orleans, two grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Serving as pallbearers will be Ed Hislop, Wayne Deacon, Sid Simmons, Kenneth Lee, Gerald Neyland and W. N. Brasher.

Freezers' Role Is Vital

Home food freezers have become as essential as refrigerators and have done more to improve diets than any other appliance.

They have made it possible for the housewife to provide more colorful meals with less effort the year round.

And even more convenient freezers — those that never have to be defrosted — are now available and have been widely accepted. It is expected that within the next three years most of the food freezers sold will be the self-defrosting type.

READY

"Food freezers help housewives provide that special touch to meals for the family or unexpected guests at a moment's notice," Mrs. May Love Gale, TVA home economist, said.

"Special desserts can be prepared in quantity weeks ahead of their need and served with little effort. It's easier to bake several pies or cakes at one time, freeze, and use when needed rather than prepare a separate dessert for each meal."

Food freezers have become an invaluable tool for the rural and city homemaker alike. The farm housewife can prepare home grown vegetables, meats, and fruits at the peak of quality.

They are practically a must for the city homemaker since approximately half of the groceries purchased today are frozen.

PRESERVATION

For the farm family, a freezer offers many advantages. It's well known that fruits and vegetables selected at just the right stage, and processed properly only a few hours after harvesting make the most nearly perfect frozen foods.

And all these which normally are cooked in preparation for eating, can be kept a full season in excellent condition.

"One year, the season may be just right for a good crop of English peas, for example," Mrs. Gale said. "But a late spring the next year may eliminate the crop entirely.

"But putting up more than usual during the bumper year, an ample supply may be perserved to offset the next year's failure."

BUY LOW

During seasons of the year when supplies are plentiful and the prizes are low, eggs may be frozen for use in cakes and pies.

"A light cake made with frozen egg whites or chess pie from frozen yolks are just as delicious as those made from fresh eggs," she said.

Home grown poultry, beef and pork can be processed successfully and stored a reasonable length of time when tested methods are used.

Beef and mutton should be chilled and aged 5 to 14 days after slaughtering, depending upon the fat covering. When large quantities of meat are processed, it's easier and more dependable to have a local locker plant do this job.

WRAP ITEMS

"There are plenty of good wrapping materials and freezing containers on the market, so don't use household foil or paper bags and expect to maintain quality for any length of time," Mrs. Gale said.

"It is necessary to use containers that exclude as much air as possible to preserve first rate food." Otherwise, the product will be dehydrated."

Mrs. Gale urged that housewives follow processing recommendations based on reliable research. "The living action of vegetables must be stopped by heat and the cooking action by cooling," she pointed out. "This, of course, is done by blanching and then cooling.

BLANCH VEGETABLES

Don't try some neighbor's advice and put fresh vegetables in the freezer without blanching. They might be all right for a few days but freezing alone won't stop the enzyme action and within a few weeks the quality will decline considerably."

Food freezers have done much to improve farm family diets by providing storage for fresh frozen fruit juices. Like other foods, more juices are consumed when there is a handy supply readily available.

"With more and more women holding down full-time jobs, the use of short-cuts in meal preparation is becoming increasingly important," she said.

UPRIGHT FREEZERS

"More prepared frozen foods and even complete meals are being sold every day. No longer is the food freezer an exclusive appliance to preserve a half side of beef or surplus vegetables from a bumper crop. It's necessary appliance for all families."

Upright freezers are increasing in popularity since they occupy much less floor space than the older chest-types and can be placed in or near the kitchen.

However, families who already have a chest type freezer in the basement or utility room are using a small upright freezer in the kitchen or refrigerator with an extra large freezer compartment." This keeps down the number of trips downstairs to the main freezer."

BEN PARNELL, of Massey's Service Center, 801 Jackson, displays the Kelvinator Foodarama combination refrigerator-freezer. In addition to being a space saver over two appliances the Foodarama offers a savings in cost.

Newest Washers Gauge Detergent

Best buy in 1960 for those who want the most for their money may well be the automatic washer, reports the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association.

For at a time when government statistics show the overall cost of living is up 23 per cent over 10 years ago, rents and transportation each up 30 per cent, the automatic washer price is the same or lower. In many cases top of the line models of this year may sell for as much as 10 per cent less than the same manufacturers' top line model did in 1950. Even bottom of the line models of today after more than the top of the line did then.

In spite of its stabilized price, the 1960 washer far excels its 10-year-old antecedent in features that add to the machine's flexibility and automaticity on washday.

For instance today's washer has as many as five washing temperatures instead of the two on the older machines.

Along with temperature settings go speed of washing action which may now be regulated from a no-action soak setting through a series of speeds graduating from a slow movement for gentle or delicate settings, slightly faster for wash and wear and on up to heavy duty action. Some current appliances have as many as 10 such settings.

In addition lint filters have been added to help solve the homemaker's age-old problem of keeping lint off clothes and from stopping up the drain.

There's no more worry about how much detergent or when to add the bleach or water softener. The newer washers come equipped with laundry and dispensers which add the right amounts at the right time.

Other features in favor of the 1960 units include rust proofing attraction lighted control panels and updated styling. Finally they come in a multitude of colors so the homemaker will have no problem getting one that will harmonize with the color scheme of her laundry room, kitchen, bath, upstairs hallway or wherever she wants the washer installed.

Homemakers Seek Many Laundry Aids

How much detergent should be used? When should bleach be added? What about fabric conditioners?

These are only a few of the questions on laundry aids that homemakers ask, reports the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association.

For homemakers have learned that bleach, for example, if added at the wrong time may reduce the efficiency of detergents. Or, they've learned from sad experience that unless bleach is properly diluted some items may come up with splotches or even holes.

So it should be a great relief to these homemakers to know that manufacturers of home laundry appliances have heard the questions and are answering them with automatic built-in dispensers.

In addition to easing the homemaker's mind on the matter of possible laundry aid bobbles, the dispensers make it unnecessary for her to stand around, waiting and watching for the washer to reach a certain stage in the cycle so that the right aid can be added at the right time.

In other words, the 1960 washer is truly automatic.

Separate Room For Laundry

A poll of housewives from coast to coast made by the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association shows that if the gals were building a new home 76.4 per cent would include a separate laundry room.

Over half would have it on the first floor level, while about 20 per cent would have the laundry room in the basement.

Electric Blanket Washing System

When washing an electric blanket, remove the control plug.

If this is not possible, let it hang outside the machine or sew it to the blanket with large basting stitches to protect it, suggest the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association.

Aching Feet Soothed By New Gadgets

Some persons are turning to electricity, man's silent servant, for help in soothing one of mankind's oldest ills — aching feet.

Two electrical gadgets are on the market to accomplish this. Both are called foot massagers. One is a single, round-topped vibrator that massages one foot at a time. The other is a dual job which can send relief to both feet at once.

Who uses them?

"Lots of older people and younger men and women, such as sales people who are on their feet a lot," said Ray Pilkinton, sales clerk for an Electric Service.

No one claims curative powers for these electrical oddities.

But, said Pilkinton, the devices relax muscles and offer relief from aching feet. For diseases of the feet, the manufacturers of the appliance say in a leaflet tucked into each box:

"See a foot doctor."

Said Pilkinton: "Plug one of these in at night. Sit there with your feet on it for 10 to 30 minutes while reading or just resting and the little machines will do a lot toward relieving those aches that come after being on your feet for a long time."

Warren's Offers Complete Line Of Appliances

Warren's Appliance and Furniture, 204 Trenton, West Monroe, offers shoppers of Northeast Louisiana a complete selection of Philco home appliances, television and radios.

Warren's, one of West Monroe's pioneer stores also feature nationally advertised home furnishings.

Gregg Warren, owner of Warren's urges all shoppers to do their Christmas shopping early while stocks are still complete.

New Washers Have Controls On Pressure

Chances of a homemaker getting high blood pressure over low water pressure are gone with the 1961 washing machines, announces the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association.

There'll be no more days of exasperation over a timer that shuts off before the washer is filled because water pressure is so low that it doesn't fill the washer in "normal" time.

The homemaker won't be stuck with washing in only half enough water, for 1961 model washers have various ways of insuring that the proper amount of water goes into the washer no matter what the water pressure or time involved is.

Some washers have an extra valve which may be added at the time of purchase to insure the tub will fill. Other washers have devices for measuring the incoming water so that the machine cannot start its cycle until the right amount of water is in the washer. Still others have a "metered fill" rather than a "time fill."

Housewives living in areas where water pressure is often low will want to investigate this new feature which is standard equipment on some washers and optional on others.

CURLEY KETCHELL, above, of Climate Control, 621 Louisville Ave., shows one of the new General Electric kitchens with built-in oven installed by the firm. Climate Control has a complete selection of General Electric kitchens for homes of all sizes.

Console TV Keynoted By Charm

Charm is the keynote in console television and streophonic instruments for fall buying.

Men, of course, will concern themselves primarily with engineering, and the built-in advantages, for example, of the new 23-inch "wide screen" TV, 22,000 volts of picture power, ultrasonic remote TV tuning, sound reverberation, and high-fidelity stereo record playing systems.

But fine furniture-styled cabinets are certain to capture feminine votes. For this year, more than ever before, knowing craftsmanship combines the glow and warmth of wood. . .graceful furniture curves, sculptured lines. . . artful accents of metal . . . and the textured grill screens . . . to produce quite an array of console instruments.

RICHNESS

In addition to pleasing the eye as well as the ear, each adds richness as well as function to the room in which it is designed to serve.

Furniture styles available in the new instruments meet virtually every home decorating purpose. Their designs include: the always popular Early American, French provincial, Italian provincial, traditional, Far Eastern, American modern, Danish and the newer arrival — Scandinavian modern. Cabinets come in richly grained veneers of genuine mahogany, blond oak, American walnut, cherry or maple combined with selected hardwoods or other solids, plus an oriental ebony color.

CHOICE RANGE

One manufacturer, Zenith, has widened the range of choice this year in what is called its Decorator collection of TV and stereo, with some 20 basic models and 14 wood cabinet colors available. All are single console cabinet instruments.

Spotted in local stores were these particularly "eye-appealing" instruments:

One, with stereo, FM-AM radio and extended sound reverberation, reflects an earlier era in furniture history with a graceful, French provincial housing of handsomely crafted cherry veneers and solids.

Still another instrument hides the face of television in a single cabinet with superbly grained parquet panels as insets in the full length doors. The set is conveniently remote controlled by the viewer with a wireless, push-button control box, called a Space Commander, held in the hand.

STYLES VARIETY

Other instruments are crisp and contemporary in style. Some are as Early American in feeling as the "salt-box" house or Hadley chest of drawers.

There is a choice of TV only in a single cabinet, stereo only, stereo together with FM-AM radio, or a "home theater" combination of stereo, TV, and FM-AM radio.

All of which means that whether you live in a sizable home with space limitations, you can now find television or a record-playing unit that is both sized and suitable for your home arrangement.

In fall TV, the wide-screen look of 23-inch receivers is quite generally replacing the familiar 21-inch sets, with 19-inch television nudging aside 17-inch units. An increase in the number of remote-controlled TV receivers is also noticeable in a check of local dealer and department store stocks.

TAILORED

In stereo, one major manufacturer has "tailored" its instruments to the room, with an "extended" stereo system. This engineering advance broadens the stereo effect so that dual speaker systems actually seem to move out beyond the sides of the cabinet itself, for sound separation never heard before from a single cabinet instrument. The effect is one of "panoramic listening."

For large-size rooms — and for those who want full stereo listening no matter where they sit in the room — there are duel radial remote speakers, available in pairs only, that can be linked to the master record playing instrument.

Cabinets enclosing the twin "remotes" are compact —attractively styled — and easy to locate in the room arrangement. Extra pairs can also be added, if desired, to carry stereo to adjoining or remote rooms in the home.

Sound reverberation is news also this fall. It is generally available as either standard equipment or an optional, extra-cost accessory in certain new stereo instruments.

Controllable by a listener-operated knob, reverberation brings a breathtaking realism and brilliance to music from records and radio. You have to hear it to appreciate it.

MRS. IRENE REID, 1621 Emersan Street, selects another program on her RCA color television set for J. C. Thrower of Daniel Appliance Co. Mrs. Reid said, "I've enjoyed all the color programs during the year I've had my RCA Victor color TV set." Daniel's has a wide selection of cabinets in color TV sets.

MRS. RUBIN WHITMAN, center, 219 Circle Drive, and Mrs. Cobb Sawyer, 107 Circle Drive, West Monroe, are doing their Christmas appliance shopping early at Sam Thomas Appliance in West Monroe. Edward "Slim" Koserog assists them in their selections. G. E. and Sunbeam appliances are carried by the firm. In the foreground is a small portion of the sterophonic sets carried by Sam Thomas, full line General Electric appliance dealer.

CURLEY KETCHELL, above, of Climate Control, 621 Louisville Ave., shows one of the new General Electric kitchens with built-in oven installed by the firm. Climate Control has a complete selection of General Electric kitchens for homes of all sizes.

Console TV Keynoted By Charm

Charm is the keynote in console television and streophonic instruments for fall buying.

Men, of course, will concern themselves primarily with engineering, and the built-in advantages, for example, of the new 23-inch "wide screen" TV, 22,000 volts of picture power, ultrasonic remote TV tuning, sound reverberation, and high-fidelity stereo record playing systems.

But fine furniture-styled cabinets are certain to capture feminine votes. For this year, more than ever before, knowing craftsmanship combines the glow and warmth of wood. . .graceful furniture curves, sculptured lines. . . artful accents of metal . . . and the textured grill screens . . . to produce quite an array of console instruments.

RICHNESS

In addition to pleasing the eye as well as the ear, each adds richness as well as function to the room in which it is designed to serve.

Furniture styles available in the new instruments meet virtually every home decorating purpose. Their designs include: the always popular Early American, French provincial, Italian provincial, traditional, Far Eastern, American modern, Danish and the newer arrival — Scandinavian modern. Cabinets come in richly grained veneers of genuine mahogany, blond oak, American walnut, cherry or maple combined with selected hardwoods or other solids, plus an oriental ebony color.

CHOICE RANGE

One manufacturer, Zenith, has widened the range of choice this year in what is called its Decorator collection of TV and stereo, with some 20 basic models and 14 wood cabinet colors available. All are single console cabinet instruments.

Spotted in local stores were these particularly "eye-appealing" instruments:

One, with stereo, FM-AM radio and extended sound reverberation, reflects an earlier era in furniture history with a graceful, French provincial housing of handsomely crafted cherry veneers and solids.

Still another instrument hides the face of television in a single cabinet with superbly grained parquet panels as insets in the full length doors. The set is conveniently remote controlled by the viewer with a wireless, push-button control box, called a Space Commander, held in the hand.

STYLES VARIETY

Other instruments are crisp and contemporary in style. Some are as Early American in feeling as the "salt-box" house or Hadley chest of drawers.

There is a choice of TV only in a single cabinet, stereo only, stereo together with FM-AM radio, or a "home theater" combination of stereo, TV, and FM-AM radio.

All of which means that whether you live in a sizable home with space limitations, you can now find television or a record-playing unit that is both sized and suitable for your home arrangement.

In fall TV, the wide-screen look of 23-inch receivers is quite generally replacing the familiar 21-inch sets, with 19-inch television nudging aside 17-inch units. An increase in the number of remote-controlled TV receivers is also noticeable in a check of local dealer and department store stocks.

TAILORED

In stereo, one major manufacturer has "tailored" its instruments to the room, with an "extended" stereo system. This engineering advance broadens the stereo effect so that dual speaker systems actually seem to move out beyond the sides of the cabinet itself, for sound separation never heard before from a single cabinet instrument. The effect is one of "panoramic listening."

For large-size rooms — and for those who want full stereo listening no matter where they sit in the room — there are duel radial remote speakers, available in pairs only, that can be linked to the master record playing instrument.

Cabinets enclosing the twin "remotes" are compact —attractively styled — and easy to locate in the room arrangement. Extra pairs can also be added, if desired, to carry stereo to adjoining or remote rooms in the home.

Sound reverberation is news also this fall. It is generally available as either standard equipment or an optional, extra-cost accessory in certain new stereo instruments.

Controllable by a listener-operated knob, reverberation brings a breathtaking realism and brilliance to music from records and radio. You have to hear it to appreciate it.

Dryers Have Become A Necessity

Speed and convenience make clothes dryers a necessity for today's fast-moving jet-age living.

"I don't consider my dryer a luxury at all," Mrs. Crawford Adams, the attractive mother of 12 children, said. "At my house it's a necessity.

"The convenience of using it any day and any time plus the speed of putting clothes in and that a clothes dryer can be used taking them out in only a few minutes is really important to me," she added.

"The children, whose ages range from 16 to 3, are always going to scout meetings or cheerleader practice or somewhere. And, of course, they want something different to wear each time —and I have to be free to take them. So a time-saver is very important," she continued.

MANY USES

But, Mrs. Adams has found for many things other than just drying a wash. For instance:

To rid drapes of surface dust. When the drapes aren't really dirty — just dusty, put them in the dryer, turn it on and tumble them. Most dryers can be used without heat today and that's an ideal way to get rid of this surface dust, she explained.

To dry clothes wet from snow. Last winter, the children played in the snow and came in several times a day just soaked. I put their jackets, mittens, snow pants and all in the dryer and in minutes they were dry. It would have taken days the old way, she said.

To sprinkle clothes for ironing. My dryer — like most — is equipped with a sprinkler and in minutes an average wash is sprinkled and ready for ironing. It's much faster than sprinkling by hand.

"And a dryer saves on ironing too," she added. "Certain clothes don't need ironing at all if removed and folded immediately — especially nylons, sweaters, and items like that."

"I don't think the dryer is hard on clothes either," she said. "There's very little that I don't put in the dryer — and it hasn't harmed anything yet.

FLUFFIER

"The clothes are fluffier and softer, too, with a dryer," she added.

Mrs. Adams, moved to Nashville with her family in 1947.

"This was our first real home," she said. Her husband, heart specialist Dr. Crawford Adams had completed his medical training and was out of the service so they "were really settling down for the first time.

"We arrived during one of Nashville's rainy seasons — so I had to have a clothes dryer. And I've had one ever since. It's really nearly 14 years and I really couldn't live without one."

Even in summer, Mrs. Adams said that her family doesn't try to use the clothes line.

"We simply wash too much," she said. "Generally it's two or three times every day — except Sunday, of course, so we have to double up on Monday."

Growing children don't need as many clothes with a dryer either, she added. It would take them so much longer to dry, especially during the rainy season. With a dryer, it only takes minutes.

History Book Off LSU Press Receives Award

TULSA, Okla. (Special) — A book published by the Louisiana State University Press has received the third annual Sydnor Memorial Award as the "best book in Southern history published in the last two years," it was announced here at a meeting of the Southern Historical Association, sponsor of the award.

The book is "Hoke Smith and the Politics of the New South," by Dewey W. Grantham, Jr. It is the second LSU Press book to win the Sydnor Award. "General Edmund Kirby Smith" by Joseph H. Parks, a University Press book, won the other in 1956.

"Hoke Smith" is the latest published volume in Louisiana's Southern Biography Series, edited by Dr. T. Harry Williams, Boyd Professor of history at LSU. Smith was editor of the "Atlanta Journal" and a powerful force in Georgia politics from the last decade of the 19th century through the first three decades of the 20th century, serving two terms as governor and spending ten years in the U. S. Senate.

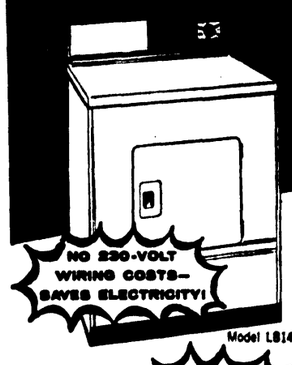

The Sydnor prize is given in honor of the late Charles B. Sydnor, former professor of history at Duke University and a former president of the Southern Historical Association. It includes a $500 cash award.

Tiny Portable Radio Proves Its Popularity

The portable AM radio, once regarded as a companion only for the "young at heart" whose activities lead them out-of-doors, is undoubtedly one of the most popular household receivers on the market.

Explaining the paradox, L. C. Truesdell, president, Zenith Sales Corporation, said that the advent of transistors and miniaturization of their related components, ushered in a new type radio receiver —the cordless "carry about" pocket receiver.

SIZE

"Its size and mobility, plus the fact that most operate long hours on the inexpensive flashlight batteries," he said, "made the pocket receiver a household favorite overnight, regardless of the age of the user."

Since the all-transistor set needs no plugging into an electrical outlet, he said, it is always ready to go, and can be picked up and carried off from room-to-room as easily as a book or magazine.

When an earphone attachment is plugged into the set for "one-person" listening, he said, sound from the receiver cannot disturb others.

Many Persons Prefer Combos

Families in which the wife is employed full time are more likely to own combination washer-dryers, according to a survey report from the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association.

The same survey shows that families owning combinations are likely to have fewer children and to be slightly older than families owning a washer and a dryer.

CHANGES EASY

Kitchen Colors Flexible Matter

One of the pleasant consequences of this servant-less era has been the new attention paid to kitchen decor.

Now that the homemaker is back in her own kitchen as cook, scullery maid and laundress, she wants this working area as attractive as the rest of her home.

Manufacturers have met her more than halfway in this direction. True, they still supply refrigerators, freezers, washer and dryers, stoves and dishwashers in pristine white.

But if milady has a copper, pink, yellow or turquoise color scheme, she can buy appliances that look made to order for the setting.

CHOICE

Kelvinator's 1960 dishwasher, either free-standing or built-in, offers a choice of front panel colors in all of these colors, plus brushed chrome.

Westinghouse's "Frost-Free" refrigators come in delectable-sounding colors such as lemon, apple red, frosting pink, mint aqua, and even light and dark wood and beige.

Two models of a self-defrosting refrigerator-freezer, made by General Electric, appeal to the color-conscious homemaker by providing changeable door panels in four mix-or-match colors as well as special finishes, including coppertone, brushed aluminum, and simulated wood grains. This company's built-in range line also comes in these color varieties.

Now, if the homeowner should weary of a once-loved pink kitchen and yearn for a Mexican yellow and red look, she can manage it without trading in her stove and refrigerator.

She simply buys a new set of panels for the appliances, wields a paint brush on the walls, hangs her new cutains and south-of-the-border baskets and peppers and there you are!

Even the laundry room now holds its own as a part of the home instead of being a neglected spot, bypassed and dreary. As pretty as they are efficient, washers and dryers set the theme for cheerful home laundry spaces that combine well with kitchen, family room or hobby area. No wonder American homes look like art galleries — there is color and good design in every room, including kitchen and laundry!

WITH REFRIGERATION

Food Spoilage Easy To Avoid

While food poisoning can happen any time of the year, the majority of cases occur during the hot summer months when food spoilage is more apt to occur. All of this can be avoided with proper care and refrigeration of food.

In modern refrigerators, a constant temperature is easy to maintain and new frost-guard models, in which frost never forms, eliminate the need to expose foods to warm air during the defrosting process which may cause bacteria to form and spoil certain foods.

SUGGESTIONS

Here are a few suggestions for preventing spoilage from bacteria which causes food poisoning with all its discomfort and danger:

1. All foods, except those in unopened cans, should be kept in the refrigerator as much as possible. Keep them refrigerated until just before serving. Food should not stay on the table for a long period of time at room temperature.

2. If any familiar food has an unusual odor, or color, don't take a chance — throw it out.

3. When you cook meat, fish or poultry for use later on, cool quickly by setting in a pan of cold water. You don't have to wait until cooked foods cool completely before putting in the refrigerator. Waiting may allow bacteria to form and cause the food to spoil. All warm foods should be covered when refigerated.

4. When planning for that popular summertime diversion —a picnic — try to eliminate foods that spoil easily and quickly, such as cream pies or fillings. It's a good idea to refrigerate what you plan to take well in advance so that it will be cold when you start out. The best method is to put foods in the freezer compartment. Thev will thaw en route and be ready to eat when lunchtime comes.

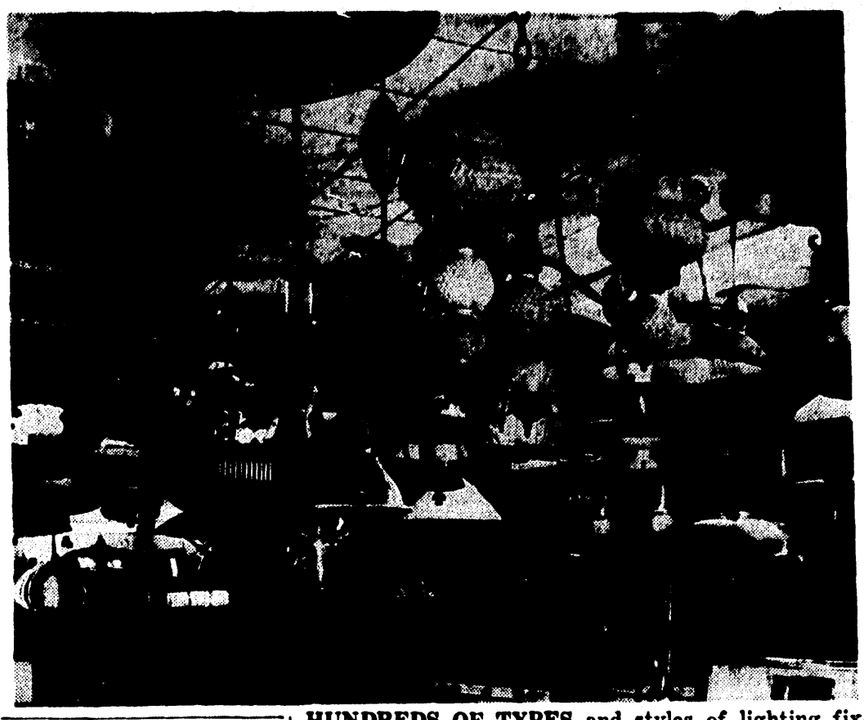

5. Try to avoid preparing such dishes as meat loaf, stews, salad mixtures, etc. too far in advance of cooking or serving. Mixtures tend to spoil more rapidly than individual foodstuffs. One way to take care of this is to flake fish, chop meat, onions, etc. ahead of time and store each in separate containers, ready to be combined just before being served or cooked.

SALAD

6. When preparing a large salad several hours before serving, it's better to divide it among small containers to allow for rapid chilling throughout, and keep refrigerated until serving time. With a large bowl chilling clear through may be slow and allow spoilage to occur.

A roll-out freezer, such as the one in the 1960 models by General Electric, provide so much space in which to store frozen foods that it's easy, particularly in summer, to keep an ample supply of perishables on hand so there's no danger of any food spoiling. Of course, uncooked meat should never be refrozen after it is thawed. Meat can be frozen successfully only once when raw and only one time after cooking.

Heed these precautions about food in the summer as well as other times, there is less danger from food spoilage which causes attacks of food poisoning.

Storage Of Food Is Unsung Story

One great "unsung" story of American ingenuity may be the strides made in modern food storage. The hero of this story might be the refrigerator —certainly our most taken-for-granted appliance.

The predecessor of this wonderful, gleaming enamel and chrome masterpiece was a box. That's all — just a metal lined wooden box with two compartments — the smaller one for ice and the other for food.

If you wanted an item kept cooler than usual it went into the ice compartment. There it rested alongisde the block of ice —until the ice melted and ran into a water pan hidden down under.

WINDOW CARD

A card in the window attracted the iceman. But, quite often, there was little in the ice box that attracted the housewife. Her attention, muscle and wit were demanded by the kitchen monster with an appetite for huge blocks of ice.

Then the electric powered refrigeration unit came on the scene. But alas, there were mechanical troubles. Despite the promising idea of life without the footprints of the iceman, water filled pans and too small a refrigerator, the housewife was hesitant.

In the 1920's mechanical troubles were minimized with the introduction of a hemetically sealed refrigeration unit. It was the start of a new era in home refrigeration. The housewife was eager to acquire a refrigerator for now genuine convenience was offered without undue attention.

More and more use was made of the home refrigerator. Everything from pop to peaches found its way in and out with ever increasing speed. The in and out problem brought about the next era in refrigeration — shelves in the door.

It was in the late 1930's when designers introduced the feature. Larger families, more money and better times meant more food to eat and more to store. Housewives were quick to accept the convenience of shelves in the door.

Fall Foliage, FM Appearing In Abundance

New FM sations are taking to the air in an unprecedented number. There's a sky-rocketing interest on the part of the public in FM's fine music programs and other broadcast services.

PRODUCTION

FM-equipped radios are being produced and sold at a record-breaking rate. Over 500,000 table sets alone were produced by the entire industry in 1959. Upwards of 43,000 such units were produced in the first six months of 1960.

Zenith, a pioneer in FM set Manufacturing, reports more than a 70 per cent increase in unit sales to dealers of FM table models and portables during the first half of 1960 compared to the corresponding period in 1959.

To meet the lively market ahead, new sets in a wide range of choice are moving into dealer stores for fall as well as Christmas gift buying. These include: compact, FM-only radios; multi-speaker high-fidelity table-toppers with AM; and FM-AM clock radios that offer multiple user conveniences, including a wake-up to fine music type of alarm.

Most recent among the arrivals in an all-transistor portable FM-AM radio, first such set of American manufacture. Cordless and battery-powered, it moves FM listening out of doors for brilliant, noise-free FM reception with no "drift," plus simplified FM tuning. In normal use, the radio operates about 300 hours before a change of batteries is required.

SELF-SUFFICIENT

At home, the portable is a self-sufficient, two-band receiver for room-to-room use. It can be linked to the audio system of a console high-fidelity or stereophonic instrument for service as a high caliber FM-AM tuner. Then, disconnected in a moment, the radio goes wherever you do, with a dial full of music.

FM is also available in many console high-fidelity stereo record playing instruments shown this fall, as well as in the new "home theaters," which combine FM-AM radio with television and stereo in a single cabinet. Many of these entertainers, more than ever before, are avilable in high fashion, furniture styled cabinets —to give home audiences the most pleasurable "looking and listening" in the history of such instruments.

Water Heaters Need Checking To Assure Service

Once winter has set in, no member of the family is going to relish the inconvenience caused by the breakdown of machinery that keeps the household running smoothly. It's uncomfortable enough at any time of year but no hot water in the dead of winter is no fun.

Of great importance to the homemaker is how well the water heater is functioning. If water shows rust or dirt, you might suspect corrosion within the tank and consult a plumber about remedies.

UNDERSIZED

Another failing of older heaters is that they may be undersized for your present needs. If your household is chronically short of hot water, you will probably find the tank is to small for your requirements.

Not infrequently, homemakers will add an automatic clothes washer and a dishwasher to their existing appliances, forgetting that the heater may not be able to keep up with the increased demand for hot water.

Complaints that automatic laundries don't wash clothes clean often are traced to an insufficient supply of really hot water. If a heater is old and undersized, you might prefer replacing it before you invest in other appliances.

Plumbing contractors or utility companies have information on types and kinds of new models and should be able to help you determine the tank size you'll need.

Many experts feel that the actual number of gallons a tank will hold is not as important as the recovery rate or the rate at which water can be heated to replace that drawn off. Modern heaters have stepped up recovery rates and most of them will have automatic thermostats to adjust water temperatures up to 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

If you have added or plan to add new electrical appliances, wiring should be checked by an electrician to make sure circuits are not overloaded.

INSTALLED

Major appliances are installed by an electrician as a rule but smaller ones which simply plug in an outlet can load up a circuit, too. The penalty the homemaker pays for overloading circuits is inefficient operation of the appliance and, in some cases, an electrical fire.

Modern household machinery has improved in appearances so that it need not be hidden out of sight. More compact furnaces and heaters, heavily insulated, can be lodged in limited areas. Some electric water heaters, for example, are shaped like a kitchen base cabinet and can be used in such a lineup. Others are narrow enough to be fitted into the space, usually wasted, under a staircase.

FM-equipped radios are being produced and sold at a record-breaking rate. Over 500,000 table sets alone were produced by the entire industry in 1959. Upwards of 43,000 such units were produced in the first six months of 1960.

Zenith, a pioneer in FM set Manufacturing, reports more than a 70 per cent increase in unit sales to dealers of FM table models and portables during the first half of 1960 compared to the corresponding period in 1959.

To meet the lively market ahead, new sets in a wide range of choice are moving into dealer stores for fall as well as Christmas gift buying. These include: compact, FM-only radios; multi-speaker high-fidelity table-toppers with AM; and FM-AM clock radios that offer multiple user conveniences, including a wake-up to fine music type of alarm.

Most recent among the arrivals in an all-transistor portable FM-AM radio, first such set of American manufacture. Cordless and battery-powered, it receives FM listening out of doors for brilliant, noise-free FM reception with no "drift," plus simplified FM tuning. In normal use, the radio operates about 300 hours before a change of batteries is required.

SELF-SUFFICIENT

At home, the portable is a self-sufficient, two-band receiver for room-to-room use. It can be linked to the audio system of a console high-fidelity or stereophonic instrument for service as a high caliber FM-AM tuner. Then, disconnected in a moment, the radio goes wherever you do, with a dial full of music.

FM is also available in many console high-fidelity stereo record playing instruments shown this fall, as well as in the new "home theaters," which combine FM-AM radio with television and stereo in a single cabinet. Many of these entertainers, more than ever before, are available in high fashion, furniture styled cabinets —to give home audiences the most pleasurable "looking and listening" in the history of such instruments.

Water Heaters Need Checking To Assure Service

Once winter has set in, no member of the family is going to relish the inconvenience caused by the breakdown of machinery that keeps the household running smoothly. It's uncomfortable enough at any time of year but no hot water in the dead of winter is no fun.

Of great importance to the homemaker is how well the water heater is functioning. If water shows rust or dirt, you might suspect corrosion within the tank and consult a plumber about remedies.

UNDERSIZED

Another failing of older heaters is that they may be undersized for your present needs. If your household is chronically short of hot water, you will probably find the tank is to small for your requirements.

Not infrequently, homemakers will add an automatic clothes washer and a dishwasher to their existing appliances, forgetting that the heater may not be able to keep up with the increased demand for hot water.

Complaints that automatic laundries don't wash clothes clean often are traced to an insufficient supply of really hot water. If a heater is old and undersized, you might prefer replacing it before you invest in other appliances.

Plumbing contractors or utility companies have information on types and kinds of new models and should be able to help you determine the tank size you'll need.

Many experts feel that the actual number of gallons a tank will hold is not as important as the recovery rate or the rate at which water can be heated to replace that drawn off. Modern heaters have stepped up recovery rates and most of them will have automatic thermostats to adjust water temperatures up to 160 degrees Fahrenheit.

If you have added or plan to add new electrical appliances, wiring should be checked by an electrician to make sure circuits are not overloaded.

INSTALLED

Major appliances are installed by an electrician as a rule but smaller ones which simply plug in an outlet can load up a circuit, too. The penalty the homemaker pays for overloading circuits is inefficient operation of the appliance and, in some cases, an electrical fire.

Modern household machinery has improved in appearances so that it need not be hidden out of sight. More compact furnaces and heaters, heavily insulated, can be lodged in limited areas. Some electric water heaters, for example, are shaped like a kitchen base cabinet and can be used in such a lineup. Others are narrow enough to be fitted into the space, usually wasted, under a staircase.

Reverberation Touch Added To Melodies

This Fall the exciting, new sound of music from home played records and radio is reverberation.

For the listener, the result of this electronic advance — now in many console phonographs and combinations on the market — is concert hall realism right in your own living room, with living, vibrant sound never before possible from home record reproducing machines or radio.

'PLUS'

To add this exciting "plus" to home music, an electro-mechanical device delays and reverberates portions of sound fed to it from the audio amplifier of the phonograph or the radio. The rest of the sound bypasses the reverberation device and speeds directly to the speakers in the instrument. What the listener then hears is the direct sound enriched by the reverberated sound.

Exactly the same process goes on in the large concert hall of auditorium. There, most of the sound reaches the audience directly from the stage. The rest of the sound reverberates from walls and ceilings, reaching the ear a fraction of a second later in time almost as a necho —so providing the "you-are-there" realism that makes live-performance music such a thrilling listening experience.

MUSIC MAGIC

Sound reverberation, L. C. Truesdell, Zenith Sales Corporation president, says, "works its magic equally well with music from stereo and monaural phonograph records or tapes, and FM and AM radio."

Used with the Zenith extended high-fidelity stereo system, he said, the two together bring an unequalled realism to all records, stereo or monaural, 78, 45, or 33 1-3 r.p.m.

"Monaural records in your collection," he said, "come alive with this new richness and brilliance. Sound no longer seems to come from the cabinet itself, but actually spreads out, into and through the room — an effect that is achieved only with the exclusive extended reverbaton system."

All but one of the firm's 1961 console type high-fidelity phonographs, Truesdell said, have the sound reverberation unit as standard equipment or have provision for its addition as an optional, extra-cost accessory. With these instruments a variable control — operated by the listener — allows him to regulate just the amount of sound reverberation he wants, to suit his listening preferences or the kind of music played.

Do you have trouble getting a white, white wash?

If so, it may be time to check your laundering habits, advises the American Home Laundry Manufacturers Assn. who says the secret of a sparkling white wash is in using the right ingredients in the right amounts. Here are some suggestions.

MINIMIZES

Clothes: Separate white cottons and linens from white synthetics and synthetic blends. Washing in separate loads minimizes wrinkles and prevents color, lint and oily soil from being picked up by synthetics. Nylon and dacron pick up color readily, even from other whites which have been washed previously with fast colors.

Remedy: Soap and-or detergent left in the garments must be removed. Put these clothes through the full cycle of the washer using one cup of water conditioner only —no soap or detergent. Repeat until suds no stop coming out of clothes and the water is clear. Bleaching will not solve the problem satisfactorily.

Washing Agents: Soap should be the all-purpose type, with water conditioner added to both wash and rinse water to give an added brightness to clothes. If a detergent is used in hard water, a water conditioner should be added to the rinse, if a fabric softener is used, omit the water conditioner.

Heavy soil marks such as cuff and color line perspiration should be rubbed before washing with a paste solution of detergent and water, or liquid laundry detergent, using a soft bristle brush.

Bathtubs Excess Seen By Group

NEW YORK — What's wrong with the country? Too many bathtubs, according to local 17794 of the Brotherhood of Russian Bath Rubbers, who lament that business has fallen off drastically in the last generation.

Younger people evidently prefer to soak in the suds at home, for about the only customers left at the six Russian baths remaining in New York City are quite elderly. Most of the union members are themselves nearing seventy.

Russian baths differ from the better-known Finnish saunas in that they use oak leaves for rubbing, rather than birch twigs.

A Recreation Proposal

Ward Five property owners, including all of the city of West Monroe and much of the outlying area, will be asked Tuesday to approve or deny a proposed bond issue and special maintenance tax for establishment of recreation centers and other facilities.

Only a few days ago Monroe voted a $1,625,000 recreation bond issue and is going ahead with its expansion plans. Ward Five is being asked to support a bond issue for a much smaller figure, only $625,000, and a ten-year one-mill maintenance tax order to assure its own complete recreation program with facilities for adults as well as youth.

An estimated 3,500 property owners will be eligible to decide the Ward Five recreation issue.

The Ward Five Recreation Commission points out that construction costs will be financed by the bond issue to run for 20 years, and the one-mill maintenance tax would expire in ten years and necessitate a new vote.

"The cost of the entire program is two and a half mills, or $2.50 per thousand dollars of assessment," says a commission spokesman. "The assessment of property is not the same as the value. It is normally about 20 per cent of the value. In other words, a $15,000 home may be assessed for $3,000, and the owner would pay $7.50 a year in tax. This would be a relatively high assessment as the average assessment in Ward Five is approximately $2,000. Very few taxpayers in Ward Five will have to pay over $5 a year for the program."

The West Monroe Recreation District, created by the Ouachita Parish Police Jury last summer, composes all of Ward Five. Members of the commission putting the proposition before their citizens are Harold Hill, city clerk of West Monroe; K. D. Norris, a business man; Bobby Wilson, a high school physical education instructor; and R. H. Chatham and Hugh Shields, employed in a major Ward Five industry.

What the commission wants to do if the bond and maintenance taxes are passed (one is of no use without the other) includes building a major recreation center and swimming pool for Negroes in a southern section of the city, expansion of already existing facilities to include a new Little Boys baseball park at the Southside Playground, and "proposes to set aside $20,000 for the purchase of future recreation site to be located at population centers outside the present city limits."

The merits of the proposal are up to the property owners' decision at the Ward Five polling places Tuesday.

Welcome Bowlers

The first third of the men's Louisiana State Bowling Championships comes to a close in the Twin Cities today, to be resumed next Saturday and Sunday with the wrapup to come the following weekend of December 3-4.

This "biggest and best" of sixteen state tournaments has attracted a record entry of the finest bowlers in Louisiana.

Bowling fans and the not-so-interested who may be wondering what it is all about can find out for sure why this is one of the nation's fastest growing sports if they attend sessions of the tournament in progress at West Monroe's Western Lanes and Bowlero. The finest bowling Louisiana has to offer is on display.

Team competitors are rolling at Western Lanes in sessions beginning today at noon and at 3 p.m. Doubles and singles are in progress at Bowlero in sessions scheduled today for 9 a.m., noon, and 3 p.m.

About the same schedule as weekend will be followed the next two weekends. The big difference will be that new competitors will come in for their chances to beat scores posted yesterday and today.

Bowlers, like athletes in the greaters spectators sports, enjoy a good gallery. Visit Bowlero and Western Lanes to lend them your support as a spectator.

Some Short Shots

We're glad to hear George Hubbard, assistant chief of the Ruston fire department, has recovered from a recent severe operation. We remember him best as an all - state football player for Ruston High and saw him in action for the first time in 1929 when he led Ruston in a 12-0 conquest of the old Monroe City High.

His coach was Ben Rush who succeeded Alf Reid as Ouachita Parish High coach in 1930. George Riser, former Ouachita coach now principal of a Monroe junior high was on a Ruston squad with Hubbard. Jack Willis was telling us about Hubbard's illness and we feel his friends are glad to hear he is recovering.

Little Boys Baseball leaders of West Monroe were busy yesterday putting finishing touches on improvements at their North Seventh Street park. They're anxious to have it ready for the visit of Daniel H. Jones, Commissioner, North Charleston, S. C., who will be here December 5 to inspect West Monroe's offerings in a bid to host the Little Boys World Series next August.

West Monroe interests are being fully advised to have "their best suit on" for Jones' visit. His inspection will determine whether West Monroe, Lookout Mountain, Tenn., or South Boston, Va., gets the tournament.

There will be no football in the Twin Cities next week. The planned Rebel Bowl in West Monroe was apparently dropped Saturday when sponsors were unable to secure a representative foe to host West Monroe. A strong play was made to attract undefeated Baton Rouge to West Monroe Thanksgiving Day, but the Bulldogs declined yesterday.

Just the same, area prep fans have a good serving of contests. There's Winnfield at Tallulah in a bi - district Class A playoff game Thursday afternoon, the Paper Bowl for LaSalle and Springhill Wednesday night at Jonesboro, and a Class B bi - district playoff between Holly Ridge and Plain Dealing at Holly Ridge Thursday night.

We aren't sure what's to happen in the 3-B race for Waterproof and Block just yet. They're tied for the league title, each with 6-1-0 records, but Waterproof beat Block in regular season play, 20-19, and we understand some sources think Waterproof will be declared district representative in bi - district playoffs. Again, a playoff is just as likely to be called for the two rivals when school officials meet tomorrow to determine the 3-B situation.

Armstrong In Boxing Upset Over Ranker

NEW YORK (AP)—Unranked Gene (Ace) Armstrong, a non-winner this year, finally clocked with a big one Saturday night, decisively outpointed fifth-ranking middleweight Henry (Hammer) Hank of Detroit in a television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Hank was a 2-1 favorite over the clever boxer from Elizabeth, N.J., who once was a top-ranking contender.

The officials had the 23-year-old Armstrong ahead by the following scores: Referee Al Berl 5-4-1, Judge Frank Forbes 6-3-1 and Nick Gamboli 8-1-1. The AP scorecard had Armstrong in front 8-2.

There were no knockdowns but there was action aplenty in the bristling boxer vs. puncher duel.

Armstrong weighed 158¾, Hank 160¼.

In his only two other outings this year, the rangy Jersey boxer lost to Dick Tiger and drew with Ernie Burford. His record now is 19-2-1. Hank, one of the busiest middleweights, now has a 45-13-2 record. This was his 11th bout of the year and his third loss.

The stocky Detroiter had flattened 33 of his previous 60 opponents but he never came close to dropping the ever-moving Armstrong in this one.

Grimly determined to regain a place among the 160-pound division's top 10, Armstrong fought a winning battle all the way. He moved in and out, bobbed and weaved, and rarely gave Hank a chance to get set so he could toss his bombs.

Michigan State Crushes Detroit

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State's mighty manpower crushed a gallant Detroit team with a second half surge Saturday for a 43-15 football victory.

Michigan State was a 23-point pre-game favorite and it looked early as if the Big Ten Spartans were going to stage a runaway as they spurted ahead 15-0 early in the first half.

But Detroit made it 15-all at one point in the first half and was still in the game fighting until sophomore quarterback Jerry Gross of Bay City, Mich., was knocked out of the action with a broken nose near the end of the third period.

The triumph gave Michigan State a 6-2-1 season record.

Detroit had won seven in a row after losing the first game to Iowa State. A bid for some minor bowl still was possible for the Titans after their good showing Saturday.

'Pokes Spoil USL's Bid For GSC Crown

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — McNeese turned back a determined bid by Southwestern Louisiana to end its season with a 28-18 victory Saturday night.

USL took to the air in the second half, throwing 11 passes and completing 11. Quarterback Dan Bridges tossed for two touchdowns.

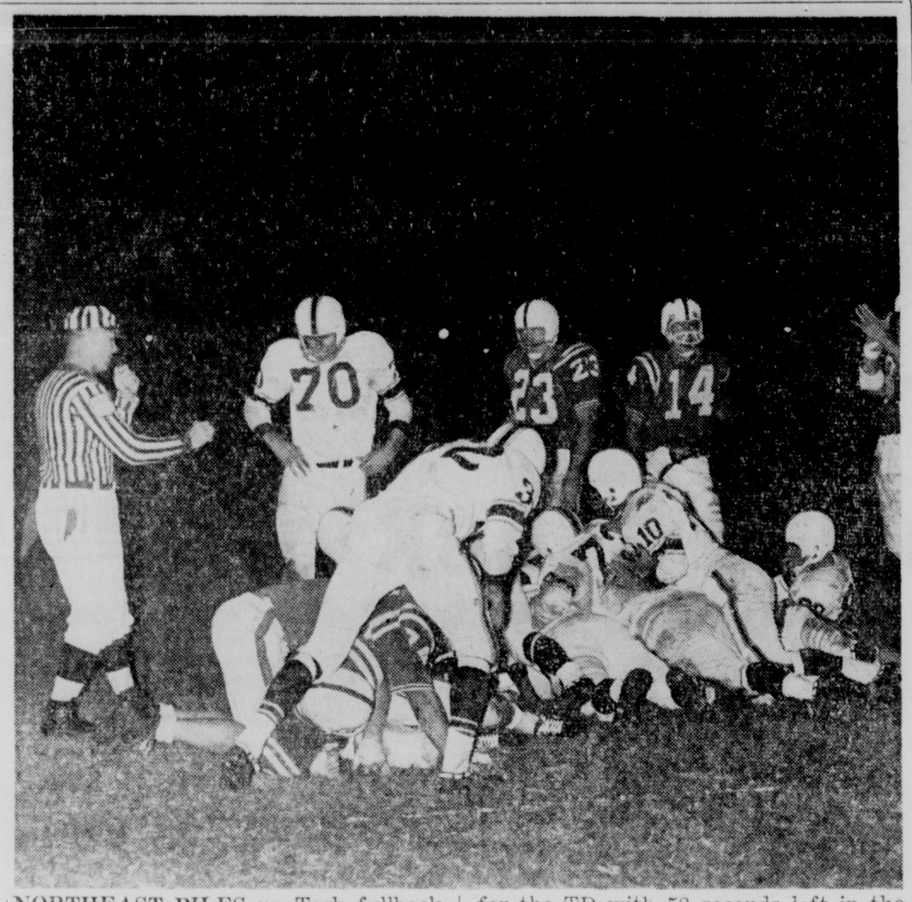

McNeese picked up all its points in the first half with quarterback Don Breaux passing for one touchdown and running 20 yards for another and Lloyd Guillot scoring two on the ground.

The victory gave McNeese and LSU a tie for second place in the Gulf States Conference standings. Louisiana Tech and Southeastern Louisiana won Saturday to give them the co-championship.

Quarterback Nolan Viator heaved 19 yards to Jay Hebert to open the McNeese scoring in the first period. Lenny Kahn kicked extra points after the four markers.

Carlton Falgout ran 76 yards with a McNeese punt in the third quarter to start the second half USL attack.

Bob Verlander snagged a 4-yard aerial from Bridges and Vernon Lott picked off a 15-yard pass for the other two touchdowns.

Slaughter Hurls Payoff To Causey

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

Mickey Slaughter slipped a mickey in Northeast's bitter brew Saturday night, throwing a 30-yard touchdown pass to end Tom Causey in the last two minutes of play to knock out the game Indians, 20-15 and boost Louisiana Tech atop the Gulf States Conference for the eighth year.

The game, viewed by 6,000 seated in Brown Stadium and hundreds standing, was two minutes too long for Northeast, playing their greatest game of the season, a brilliant effort that was almost enough.

The difference came with 1:58 to play and third and five at the Tribe 30. Slaughter, who went into the game as the GSC's total offense leader but hounded by Northeast's pressing defense, drifted back and lofted a pass to Causey, running slightly ahead of defender Thomas Latham. Latham looked at the pass, turned his back on it and lifted his arms above the receiver. Causey slipped around the defender, grabbed the pass at about the seven and raced into the end zone alone.

Tech's victory, the third cliffhanger in a row for the Bulldogs, gave them a share of the GSC title with Southeastern, 7-0 winner over Northwestern last night. Tech edged Southeastern, 17-14, two weeks ago and nudged by Mississippi Souther, 10-7, last week.

For Northeast, the loss was their seventh in 10 games but nothing to be ashamed of. The Indians outgained Tech on the ground and through the air, collected more first downs, drew first blood in the game and came from behind twice.

Northeast's final rally, climaxes by a one-yard sprint around end by Don Wattigny, gave the Indians a 15-14 lead with 8:25 left. The Tribe stopped the Techmen once—but not twice.

John Kelly punted 45 yards to the Tech 36 just before the winning drive began and Dave Williamson returned 13 yards to the 49.

Joe Aillet's Techmen then showed why they have won or shared eight titles in the 13 years of the GSC. Paul Hynes gained three but Jack Howard was stopped for no gain. Slaughter drilled a pass to Jerry Hudson for 13 yards and a first on the Tribe 35. Jack Lestage gained five to the 30 but another pass to Hudson was incomplete and it was third and five. Then Slaughter and Causey won it.

Northeast, fired up and showing a brilliant attack, scored first in the second quarter when Pete Vincent kicked a 34 - yard field goal with five minutes left in the half.

Northeast had driven as far as the Tech 34 on the the first series of downs before Kelly kicked into the end zone. Early in the second, the Indians took over on their 18 and drove for the field goal.

Vincent ran for four yards and a first on a crucial third - down play to get the drive started and then Wattigny hit Charley Barnes for 21 yards. Two plays later, he hit tall Charles again, this time for 10. Cruce lost a yard, then reeled off a 22 - yard scamper off tackler that carried to the 15. Levy Redden gained nothing but then went for one. Wattigny lost two yards and, with fourth and 11 at the 16, Vincent kicked his field goal.

Tech, fighting the clock, shoved over a touchdown two plays before the half ended. The touchdown was set up by an interception by Slaughter. Wattigny tossed to Ferdy Cruce with first and 10 on the Tribe 34. Cruce got past Slaughter but the pass was a bit short, short enough for Slaughter to grab it at the Tech 40 and return to the Northeast 41.

Hynes went for six before Slaughter hit on consecutive passes to Max Rudd and Causey, one going for 14 yards, the other for 10. With first at the six, Hynes gained two. Then Northeast was docked two yards for a personal foul to put the ball on the one, Rudd blasted over with 58 seconds left and Bud Alexander kicked the PAT to make it 7-3.

Tech came out for the second half, savagely drove for a touchdown with a crisp, determined ground attack. Hynes gained 17 after Howard returned the kickoff to the Tech 37. Howard then gained nine, Hynes went again for 10, the Lestage for seven. Hynes got three, Lestage nine and Hynes again for five to the three. Hynes, a great back ended a brilliant career, smashed for the touchdown, Alexander kicked the point and it was 14-3 with three minutes gone in the half.

Tech seemed to be Tech again in command. But it gave Northeast two big breaks—one too many.

The first break was an interception by Al Ott of a Slaughter pass at the Tech 31. Willie Ragan ran for 11 and Ott for 14, putting the ball on the six. But Tech stiffened and held. Ragan lost one, Vincent gained one, then threw incomplete. Don Wattigny came in on fourth down and threw another, Howard breaking it up in the end zone.

Tech ran two plays, then a poor punt by Wayne Parker gave the Tribe its other break and they cashed in on this one. Parker punted only 16 yards from his nine.

Cruce was held to no gain but Jack Webb threw to Barnes for 15 yards and first and goal on the 10. But Tech's defense almost saved the day again. Cruce got nothing and Ott only three. Then on third down, Vincent came in, faded back, eluded onrushing Herschel Vinyard and passed to Cruce, wide open in the end zone.

Wattingny threw over the head of Barnes on the fake-kick try for two points and Tech's lead was cut to 14-9.

On the last play of the third period, Parker kicked 38 yards to the Tribe 24 and the Indians were off on their last and most dramatic drive. Devone Payne gained seven, Vincent eight, to get things started. Then short but steady runs by Vincent, Terry Reeves and Payne moved the ball to the Tech 37.

Vincent hit Larry Giambelluca with a key pass from the 37, the toss going for 22 yards and a first on the 15. Al Ott smashed off tackle for four and then three yards. Vincent came up with another big play. He faded back but Hynes rushed him. Pete took off for the left corner of the end zone and almost made it, being smashed down by two Tech tackles at the one.

The injured Vincent was carried off the field and Wattigny came in with first and goal on the one. He faked brilliantly on smash into the middle, then raced wide right, went into the end zone untouched, and tossed the ball into the air.

Wattigny tried to pass for the two - pointer but missed. Northeast led, 15-14, with 8:25 left to play.

Tech picked up one first down after the kickoff, Hynes gaining nine and Rudd four but one Slaughter pass was incomplete and another gained only six, not enough for a first at the NE 42. Parker punted to the 14.

Ed Thomas gained one and Wattigny five for the Indians. But Redden was thrown for a yard loss and Kelly had to kick, thus setting in motion the final and decisive Tech drive.

Hynes led all ball carriers with 69 yards in 14 carries. Ott got 37 in eight trips for Northeast. Slaughter was held to five completions in 13 attempts.

The game was superbly played. There were no fumbles by either side. Tech did not draw a penalty in the game and Northeast was charged with only three.

Joe Hinton, the last of his glorious clan, and Don Tippitt turned in brilliant defensive work for Tech while Barnes, Jim LaCoste and Billy Foster were outstanding in the Northeast line.

K-State Suffers 9th Loss In Row

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Halfback Joe Hernandez scored three touchdowns Saturday as Arizona handed Kansas State its ninth straight football defeat 35-16.

Hernandez broke away for touchdowns runs of 8 and 4 yards and took a 21-yard pass from quarterback Eddie Wilson for another score.

Halfback Bob Thompson played a key role in the three touchdown drives and scored once on a 20-yard run. Reserved halfback Bill Williams ran 44 yards in the final period and Wilson kicked five conversions to complete the Arizona scoring.

DEACON PASSING SPIKED

Stovall, Harris, Campbell Ramrod LSU Victory, 16-0

By ED TUNSTALL

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State jammed the passing barrage of Wake Forest quarterback Norman Snead and turned loose a horde of hard-running backs to smother the Deacons 16-0 before 50,000 fans here Saturday night.

The victory was the fourth of the season against the same number of losses and one tie for the Tigers, who ended their home season.

STATISTICS	Wake Forest	LSU

Snead, one of the nation's top-ranking passers, flooded the LSU defenses with passes but was unable to drive the Deacons into the scoring column.

LSU marched 52 yards in 12 plays for its first touchdown. Sophomore halfback Bo Campbell slammed in from the two for the score in the opening minutes of the second quarter.

Later in the second quarter, the Tigers widened their edge when halfback Wendell Harris booted a 21-yard field goal.

The last LSU touchdown came late in the third period on a 22-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Lynn Amedee to reserve end Bobby Flurry. Harris added the extra point.

The rib-rocked LSU defense, among the best in collegiate football, limited the Wake Forest running game to five yards.

Snead connected on 13 of 28 passes for 156 yards but frequently was dumped for big losses while trying to spot receivers.

The shutout was the first against Wake Forest in 15 games and left its season's mark at two victories and seven defeats.

The Deacons running game had absolutely no successagainst the LSU defenses. Fullback Joe Bonecutter was the top producer for the visitors with 14 yards on six attempts.

To keep the Wake Forest defenses fluid, Amedee threw 18 passes and completed nine for 112 yards.

One of the brighter lights for Wake Forest was the kicking of Wayne Wolff who averaged a shade better than 40 yards on eight boots. Stovall handled the LSU kicking chores and averaged just better than 51 yards on two punts.

What defense Wake Forest showed was led by guard Jim Pearce, center Larry Coker and end Bill Hull.

But the Deacons were a bit over their heads against the Tigers who bid home farewell to several seniors, including Bo Strange, end Mickey Mangham and fullback Donnie Daye.

Geo. Washington Whips Mounties

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP)—Speedy, resourceful George Washington humiliated West Virginia's Mountaineers 26-0 Saturday in the 1960 football finale for both Southern Conference teams.

Quarterback Charley Packan led the GW charge with a 40-yard touchdown pass to John Caracciolo and scored another TD himself on a one-yard sneak.

It was GW's first victory over West Virginia since 1950.

As for the once-proud conference kings, the outcome marked the end of the blackest season in the Mountaineers' football history. It extended their winless streak to 15 games. It also gave them the worst showing since the sport was started at the school in 1891 when West Virginia lost the only game it played.

Alabama Easily Tramples Tampa

By BILL TOME

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama, looking ahead to its traditional battle next week with Auburn and a possible bowl bid, Saturday rolled to an easy 34-6 victory over outclassed Tampa.

Alabama's three quarterbacks, Bobby Skelton, Pat Trammell and Laurien Stapp, took turns guiding the Tide offense before 27,000 fans. Trammell scored twice on runs of one and three yards, Stapp on a one-yard buck, Mike Fracchia on another one-yard smash, and Bill Oliver on a 30-yard pass. Stapp and Trammell each ran over a two-pointer.

Alabama's longest drive covered 66 yards in three plays shortly before the half, two of them passes from Skelton to Oliver. Skelton first hit Oliver for 31 yards, then ran five before passing to Oliver over the goal line for 30 yards.

Tampa's only touchdown came midway in the third period on a three-yard pass from quarterback Ronnie Perez to end Charles Truelock after another pass play 69 yards to Billy Rouse had set up the score.

The Crimson Tide, which now boasts a bowl - attractive 7-1-1 records, set the pace from the start, marching from its own 20 with the kickoff to the Spartans' seven before losing the ball on downs. A first down fumble gave Alabama the ball again on the Tampa five where Fracchia took it over three plays later.

Alabama made the halftime score 18-0 with a 10 play 39-yard march featuring the inside smashes of Fracchia and Ray Abbruzzese. Trammell went the last three yards untouched.

In the third period, end Dick Williamson intercepted a Spartan pass and returned it 10 yards to the Tampa 24. Fracchia and Stapp carried the ball to the one from where Stapp bucked across the goal line.

The final touchdown drive covered 67 yards and included pass plays of 47 yards and 14 from Trammell to Jerry Spruiell and Jimmy Box. Trammell made the last yard.

Warriors Nip New York By 121-111 Score

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Warriors spurted for eight and 13-point streaks in the third quarter Saturday night and broke open a close game for a 121-111 victory over New York in a National Basketball Association game.

Wilt Chamberlain was high scorer with 40 points.

The Warriors, who lead the Eastern Division with an 11-4 mark, boosted a one point, 53-57 halftime margin to 11 on their eight-point string and then increased the margin to 86-65 when they got 13 straight.

Chamberlain, showing improvement at the foul line, made eight of 13 free throws. For the losers, Willie Naulls was high scorer with 27 points.

The Warriors, defeating the Knicks for the second time in two nights, started well by taking early leads of 11-4 and 23-15. But the Knicks fought back and tied the score at 35-all with 9:39 remaining in the second period.

The losers then opened leads of four points at 45-41 and five at 56-51. The Warriors didn't cut into the lead until the final minute of the first half which ended 53-57.

It was the fast-breaking tactics of rookie Al Attles, who had not played in the first half, and Guy Rodgers that turned the game into a rout. Rodgers, Chamberlain and Tom Gola combined for the first eight-point string. This trio, along with Attles, then got the 13-point run.

This was the 12th defeat in 14 games for the Knicks.

Utah Upsets Old Rivals, 6 To 0

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Sophomore halfback Bud Scalley scored on a 12-yard run in the fourth period Saturday and led underdog Utah to a 6-0 victory which tumbled powerful Utah State from the ranks of the unbeaten college football teams.

But the Aggies, 9-1 for the season, finished in a tie with Wyoming for the Skyline Conference championship. Wyoming and Utah State each had 6-1 conference records.

La. College Routs Delta State, 40-6

PINEVILLE, La. (AP) — Quarterback John Maillett passed for two touchdowns to lead Louisiana College to a 40-6 rout of Delta State Saturday night.

The season finale gave Louisiana College an 8-3 mark. The Statesmen, now 6-3, end their season next Wednesday against Ouachita Baptist.

Louisiana College scored in every quarter with Maillett's 16-yard pass to Charlie Underwood opening up the touchdown parade. Maillett passed 11 yards to Bill Gardner in the second stanza for another touchdown and set up MORE MORE other with a 27-yard toss to Charlie Darnell.

Other LC markers came on runs by Joe Steward, Billy Howard and Bob Corley, who kicked three extra points, and a seven yard pass from Sammy Howard to Sonny Huff.

Nebraska Traps Oklahoma, 17-14

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The Nebraska Cornhuskers used a 68-yard touchdown run by Bill Thornton and a 28-yard field goal by Ron Meade in the final quarter Saturday to beat Oklahoma 17-14 in a Big Eight Conference football game.

Meade, a third string quarterback, came off the bench with 1:38 left and booted the ball squarely through the posts to provide the Cornhuskers with the upset.

LOOKS 'EM OVER

A Recreation Proposal

Ward Five property owners, including all of the city of West Monroe and much of the outlying area, will be asked Tuesday to approve or deny a proposed bond issue and special maintenance tax for establishment of recreation centers and other facilities.

Only a few days ago Monroe voted a $1,625,000 recreation bond issue and is going ahead with its expansion plans. Ward Five is being asked to support a bond issue for a much smaller figure, only $625,000, and a ten-year one-mill maintenance tax order to assure its own complete recreation program with facilities for adults as well as youth.

An estimated 3,500 property owners will be eligible to decide the Ward Five recreation issue.

The Ward Five Recreation Commission points out that construction costs will be financed by the bond issue to run for 20 years, and the one-mill maintenance tax would expire in ten years and necessitate a new vote.

"The cost of the entire program is two and a half mills, or $2.50 per thousand dollars of assessment," says a commission spokesman. "The assessment of property is not the same as the value. It is normally about 20 per cent of the value. In other words, a $15,000 home may be assessed for $3,000, and the owner would pay $7.50 a year in tax. This would be a relatively high assessment as the average assessment in Ward Five is approximately $2,000. Very few taxpayers in Ward Five will have to pay over $5 a year for the program."

The West Monroe Recreation District, created by the Ouachita Parish Police Jury last summer, composes all of Ward Five. Members of the commission putting the proposition before their citizens are Harold Hill, city clerk of West Monroe; K. D. Norris, a business man; Bobby Wilson, a high school physical education instructor; and R. H. Chatham and Hugh Shields, employed in a major Ward Five industry.

What the commission wants to do if the bond and maintenance taxes are passed (one is of no use without the other) includes building a major recreation center and swimming pool for Negroes in a southern section of the city, expansion of already existing facilities to include a new Little Boys baseball park at the Southside Playground, and "proposes to set aside $20,000 for the purchase of future recreation site to be located at population centers outside the present city limits."

The merits of the proposal are up to the property owners' decision at the Ward Five polling places Tuesday.

Welcome Bowlers

The first third of the men's Louisiana State Bowling Championships comes to a close in the Twin Cities today, to be resumed next Saturday and Sunday with the wrapup to come the following weekend of December 3-4.

This "Biggest and best" of sixteen state tournaments has attracted a record entry of 536 keglers in Louisiana.

Bowling fans and the not-so-interested who may be wondering what it is all about can find out for sure why this is one of the nation's fastest growing sports if they attend sessions of the tournament in progress at West Monroe's Western Lanes and Bowlero. The finest bowling Louisiana has to offer is on display.

Team competitors are rolling at Western Lanes in sessions beginning today at noon and at 3 p.m. Doubles and singles are in progress at Bowlero in sessions scheduled today for 9 a.m., noon, and 3 p.m.

About the same schedule as weekend will be followed the next two weekends. The big difference will be that new competitors will come in for their chances to beat scores posted yesterday and today.

Bowlers, like athletes in the greeters spectators sports, enjoy a good gallery. Visit Bowlero and Western Lanes to lend them your support as a spectator.

Some Short Shots

We're glad to hear George Hubbard, assistant chief of the Ruston fire department, has recovered from a recent severe operation. We remember him best as an all - state football player for Ruston High and saw him in action for the first time in 1929 when he led Ruston in a 12-0 contest of the old Monroe City High.

His coach was Ben Rush who succeeded Alt Reid as Ouachita Parish High coach in 1930. George Rives, former Ouachita coach now principal of a Monroe junior high was on a Ruston squad with Hubbard. Jack Willis was telling us about Hubbard's illness and we feel his friends are glad to hear he is recovering.

Little Boys Baseball leaders of West Monroe were busy yesterday putting finishing touches on improvements at their North Seventh Street park. They're anxious to have it ready for the visit of Daniel H. Jones, Commissioner, North Charleston, S. C., who will be here December 5 to inspect West Monroe's offerings in a bid to host the Little Boys World Series next August.

West Monroe interests are being rally advised to have "their best suit on" for Jones' visit. His inspection will determine whether West Monroe, Lookout Mountain, Tenn., or South Boston, Va., gets the tournament.

There will be no football in the Twin Cities next week. The planned Rebel Bowl in West Monroe was apparently dropped Saturday when sponsors were unable to secure a representative foe to host West Monroe. A strong play was made to attract undefeated Baton Rouge to West Monroe Thanksgiving Day, but the Bulldogs declined yesterday.

Just the same, area prep fans have a good serving of contests. There's Winnfield at Tallulah in a bi - district Class A playoff game Thursday afternoon, the Paper Bowl for LaSalle and Springhill Wednesday night at Jonesboro, and a Class B bi - district playoff between Holly Ridge and Plain Dealing at Holly Ridge Thursday night.

We aren't sure what's to happen in the 3-B race for Waterproof and Block just yet. They're tied for the league title, each with 6-1-0 records, but Waterproof beat Block in regular season play, 20-19, and we understand some sources think Waterproof will be declared district representative in bi - district playoffs. Again, a playoff is just as likely to be called for the two rivals when school officials meet tomorrow to determine the 3-B situation.

Armstrong In Boxing Upset Over Ranker

NEW YORK (AP)—Unranked Gene (Acey) Armstrong, a non-winner this year, finally clocked with a big one Saturday night, decisively outpointed fifth-ranking middleweight Henry (Hammer) Hank of Detroit in a television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Hank was a 2-1 favorite over the clever boxer from Elizabeth, N.J., who once was a top-ranking contender.

The officials had the 23-year-old Armstrong ahead by the following scores: Referee Al Berl 5-4-1, Judge Frank Forbes 6-3-1 and Nick Gamboli 8-1-1. The AP scorecard had Armstrong in front 8-2.

There were no knockdowns but there was action aplenty in the bristling boxer vs. puncher duel.

Armstrong weighed 158¾, Hank 159¼.

In his only two other outings this year, the rangy Jersey boxer lost to Dick Tiger and drew with Ernie Burford. His record now is 19-2-1. Hank, one of the busiest middleweights, now has a 46-13-2 record. This was his 11th bout of the year and his third loss.

The stocky Detroiter had flattened 33 of his previous 60 opponents but he never came close to dropping the ever-moving Armstrong in this one.

Grimly determined to regain a place among the 160-pound division's top 10, Armstrong fought a winning battle all the way. He moved in and out, bobbed and weaved, and rarely gave Hank a chance to get set so he could toss his bombs.

Michigan State Crushes Detroit

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State's mighty manpower crushed a gallant Detroit team with a second half surge Saturday for a 43-15 football victory.

Michigan State was a 23-point pre-game favorite and it looked early as if the Big Ten Spartans were going to stage a runaway as they spurted ahead 15-0 early in the first half.

But Detroit made it 15-all at one point in the first half and was still in the game fighting until sophomore quarterback Jerry Gross of Bay City, Mich., was knocked out of the action with a broken nose near the end of the third period.

The triumph gave Michigan State a 6-2-1 season record.

Detroit had won seven in a row after losing the first game to Iowa State. A bid for some minor bowl still was possible for the Titans after their good showing Saturday.

'Pokes Spoil USL's Bid For GSC Crown

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — McNeese turned back a determined bid by Southwestern Louisiana to end its season with a 26-18 victory Saturday night.

USL took to the air in the second half, throwing 11 passes and completing 11. Quarterback Dan Bridges tossed for two touchdowns.

McNeese picked up all its points in the first half with quarterback Don Breaux passing for one touchdown and running 20 yards for another and Lloyd Guillot scoring two on the ground.

The victory gave McNeese and LSU a tie for second place in the Gulf States Conference standings. Louisiana Tech and Southeastern Louisiana won Saturday to give them the co-championship.

Quarterback Nolan Viator heaved 19 yards to Jay Hebert to open the McNeese scoring in the first period. Lenny Kahn kicked extra points after the four markers.

Carlton Falgout ran 76 yards with a McNeese punt in the third quarter to start the second half USL attack.

Bob Verlander snagged a 4-yard aerial from Bridges and Vernon Lott picked off a 15-yard pass for the other two touchdowns.

Slaughter Hurls Payoff To Causey

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

Mickey Slaughter slipped a mickey in Northeast's bitter brew Saturday night, throwing a 30-yard touchdown pass to end Tom Causey in the last two minutes of play to knock out the game Indians, 20-15 and boost Louisiana Tech atop the Gulf States Conference for the eighth year.

The game, viewed by 6,000 seated in Brown Stadium and hundreds standing, was two minutes too long for Northeast, playing their greatest game of the season, a brilliant effort that was almost enough.

The difference came with 1:58 to play and third and five at the Tribe 30. Slaughter, who went into the game as the GSC's total offense leader but hounded by Northeast's pressing defense, drifted back and lofted a pass to Causey, running slightly ahead of defender Thomas Latham. Latham looked at the pass, turned his back on it and lifted his arms above the receiver. Causey slipped around the defender, grabbed the pass at about the seven and raced into the end zone alone.

Tech's victory, the third cliffhanger in a row for the Bulldogs, gave them a share of the GSC title with Southeastern, 7-0 winner over Northwestern last night. Tech edged Southeastern, 17-14, two weeks ago and nudged by Mississippi Souther, 10-7, last week.

For Northeast, the loss was their seventh in 10 games but nothing to be ashamed of. The Indians outgained Tech on the ground and through the air, collected more first downs, drew first blood in the game and came from behind twice.

Northeast's final rally, climaxes by a one-yard sprint around end by Don Wattigny, gave the Indians a 15-14 lead with 8:25 left. The Tribe stopped the Techmen once—but not twice.

John Kelly punted 45 yards to the Tech 36 just before the winning drive began and Dave Williamson returned 13 yards to the 49.

Joe Aillet's Techmen then showed why they have won or shared eight titles in the 13 years of the GSC. Paul Hynes gained three but Jack Howard was stopped for no gain. Slaughter drilled a pass to Jerry Hudson for 13 yards and a first on the Tribe 35. Jack Lestage gained five to the 30 but another pass to Hudson was incomplete and it was third and five. Then Slaughter and Causey won it.

Northeast, fired up and showing a brilliant attack, scored first in the second quarter when Pete Vincent kicked a 34 - yard field goal with five minutes left in the half.

Northeast had driven as far as the Tech 34 on the the first series of downs before Kelly kicked into the end zone. Early in the second, the Indians took over on their 18 and drove for the field goal.

Vincent ran for four yards and a first on a crucial third - down play to get the drive started and then Wattigny hit Charley Barnes for 21 yards. Two plays later, he hit tall Charles again, this time for 10. Cruce lost a yard, then reeled off a 22 - yard scamper off tackler that carried to the 15. Levy Redden gained nothing but then went for one. Wattigny lost two yards and, with fourth and 11 at the 16, Vincent kicked his field goal.

Tech, fighting the clock, shoved over a touchdown two plays before the half ended. The touchdown was set up by an interception by Slaughter. Wattigny tossed to Ferdy Cruce with first and 10 on the Tribe 34. Cruce got past Slaughter but the pass was a bit short, short enough for Slaughter to grab it at the Tech 40 and return to the Northeast 41.

Hynes went for six before Slaughter hit on consecutive passes to Max Rudd and Causey, one going for 14 yards, the other for 10. With first at the six, Hynes gained two. Then Northeast was docked two yards for a personal foul to put the ball on the one, Rudd blasted over with 58 seconds left and Bud Alexander kicked the PAT to make it 7-3.

Tech came out for the second half, savagely drove for a touchdown with a crisp, determined ground attack. Hynes gained 17 after Howard returned the kickoff to the Tech 37. Howard then gained nine, Hynes went again for 10, the Lestage for seven. Hynes got three, Lestage nine and Hynes again for five to the three. Hynes, a great back ended a brilliant career, smashed for the touchdown. Alexander kicked the point and it was 14-3 with three minutes gone in the half.

Tech seemed to be Tech again in command. But it gave Northeast two big breaks—one too many.

The first break was an interception by Al Ott of a Slaughter pass at the Tech 31. Willie Ragan ran for 11 and Ott for 14, putting the ball on the six. But Tech stiffened and held. Ragan lost one, Vincent gained one, then threw incomplete. Don Wattigny came in on fourth down and threw another, Howard breaking it up in the end zone.

Tech ran two plays, then a poor punt by Wayne Parker gave the Tribe its other break and they cashed in on this one. Parker punted only 16 yards from his nine.

Cruce was held to no gain but Jack Webb threw to Barnes for 15 yards and first and goal on the 10. But Tech's defense almost saved the day again. Cruce got nothing and Ott only three. Then on third down, Vincent came in, faded back, eluded onrushing Hershel Vinyard and passed to Cruce, wide open in the end zone.

Wattingny threw over the head of Barnes on the fake-kick try for two points and Tech's lead was cut to 14-9.

On the last play of the third period, Parker kicked 38 yards to the Tribe 24 and the Indians were off on their last and most dramatic drive. Devone Payne gained seven, Vincent eight, to get things started. Then short but steady runs by Vincent, Terry Reeves and Payne moved the ball to the Tech 37.

Vincent hit Larry Giambellucca with a key pass from the 37, the toss going for 22 yards and a first on the 15. Al Ott smashed off tackle for four and then three yards. Vincent came up with another big play. He faded back but Hynes rushed him. Pete took off for the left corner of the end zone and almost made it, being smashed down by two Tech tackles at the one.

The injured Vincent was carried off the field and Wattigny came in with first and goal on the one. He faked brilliantly on smash into the middle, then raced wide right, went into the end zone untouched, and tossed the ball into the air.

Wattigny tried to pass for the two - pointer but missed. Northeast led, 15-14, with 8:25 left to play.

Tech picked up one first down after the kickoff, Hynes gaining nine and Rudd four but one Slaughter pass was incomplete and another gained only six, not enough for a first at the NE 42. Parker punted to the 14.

Ed Thomas gained one and Wattigny five for the Indians. But Redden was thrown for a yard loss and Kelly had to kick, thus setting in motion the final and decisive Tech drive.

Hynes led all ball carriers with 69 yards in 14 carries. Ott got 37 in eight trips for Northeast. Slaughter was held to five completions in 13 attempts.

The game was superbly played. There were no fumbles by either side. Tech did not draw a penalty in the game and Northeast was charged with only three.

Joe Hinton, the last of his glorious clan, and Don Tippitt turned in brilliant defensive work for Tech while Barnes, Jim LaCoste and Billy Foster were outstanding in the Northeast line.

K-State Suffers 9th Loss In Row

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Halfback Joe Hernandez scored three touch downs Saturday as Arizona handed Kansas State its ninth straight football defeat 35-16.

Hernandez broke away for touchdowns runs of 8 and 4 yards and took a 21-yard pass from quarterback Eddie Wilson for another score.

Halfback Bob Thompson played a key role in the three touchdown drives and scored once on a 20-yard run. Reserved halfback Bill Williams ran 44 yards in the final period and Wilson kicked five conversions to complete the Arizona scoring.

DEACON PASSING SPIKED

By ED TUNSTALL

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State jammed the passing barrage of Wake Forest quarterback Norman Snead and turned loose a horde of hard-running backs to smother the Deacons 16-0 before 50,000 fans here Saturday night.

The victory was the fourth of the season against the same number of losses and one tie for the Tigers, who ended their home season.

STATISTICS	Wake Forest	LSU
First downs	12	20
Rushing yardage	5	311
Passing yardage	176	112
Passes	12-23	9-20
Passes intercptd by	0	2
Punts	8-40.5	2-51.5
Fumbles lost	1	1
Yards penalized	85	50

Snead, one of the nation's top ranking passers, flooded the LSU defenses with passes but was unable to drive the Deacons into the scoring column.

LSU marched 52 yards in 12 plays for its first touchdown. Sophomore halfback Bo Campbell slammed in from the two for the score in the opening minutes of the second quarter.

Later in the second quarter, the Tigers widened their edge when halfback Wendell Harris booted a 21-yard field goal.

The last LSU touchdown came late in the third period on a 22-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Lynn Amedee to reserve end Bobby Flurry. Harris added the extra point.

The rib-rocked LSU defense, among the best in collegiate football, limited the Wake Forest running game to five yards.

Snead connected on 13 of 28 passes for 156 yards but frequently was dumped for big losses while trying to spot receivers.

The shutout was the first against Wake Forest in 15 games and left its season's mark at two victories and seven defeats.

The Deacons running game had absolutely no successagainst the LSU defenses. Fullback Joe Bonecutter was the top producer for the visitors with 14 yards on six attempts.

To keep the Wake Forest defenses fluid, Amedee threw 18 passes and completed nine for 112 yards.

One of the brighter lights for Wake Forest was the kicking of Wayne Wolff who averaged a shade better than 40 yards on eight boots. Stovall handled the LSU kicking chores and averaged just better than 51 yards on two punts.

What defense Wake Forest showed was led by guard Jim Pearce, center Larry Coker and end Bill Hull.

But the Deacons were a bit over their heads against the Tigers who bid home farewell to several seniors, including Bo Strange, end Mickey Mangham and fullback Donnie Daye.

Alabama Easily Tramples Tampa

By BILL TOME

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama, looking ahead to its traditional battle next week with Auburn and a possible bowl bid, Saturday rolled to an easy 34-6 victory over outclassed Tampa.

Alabama's three quarterbacks, Bobby Skelton, Pat Trammell and Laurien Stapp, took turns guiding the Tide offense before 27,000 fans. Trammell scored twice on runs of one and three yards, Stapp on a one-yard buck, Mike Fracchia on another one-yard smash, and Bill Oliver on a 30-yard pass. Stapp and Trammell each ran over a two-pointer.

Alabama's longest drive covered 66 yards in three plays shortly before the half, two of them passes from Skelton to Oliver. Skelton first hit Oliver for 31 yards, then ran five before passing to Oliver over the goal line for 30 yards.

Tampa's only touchdown came midway in the third period on a three-yard pass from quarterback Ronnie Perez to end Charles Truelock after another pass play 69 yards to Billy Rouse had set up the score.

The Crimson Tide, which now boasts a bowl - attractive 7-1-1 records, set the pace from the start, marching from its own 20 with the kickoff to the Spartans' seven before losing the ball on downs. A first down fumble gave Alabama the ball again on the Tampa five where Fracchia took it over three plays later.

Alabama made the halftime score 18-0 with a 10 play 39-yard march featuring the inside smashes of Fracchia and Ray Abbruzzese. Trammell went the last three yards untouched.

In the third period, end Dick Williamson intercepted a Spartan pass and returned it 10 yards to the Tampa 24. Fracchia and Stapp carried the ball to the one from where Stapp bucked across the goal line.

The final touchdown drive covered 67 yards and included pass plays of 47 yards and 14 from Trammell to Jerry Spruiell and Jimmy Box. Trammell made the last yard.

Warriors Nip New York By 121-111 Score

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Warriors spurted for eight and 13-point streaks in the third quarter Saturday night and broke open a close game for a 121-111 victory over New York in a National Basketball Association game.

Wilt Chamberlain was high scorer with 40 points.

The Warriors, who lead the Eastern Division with an 11-4 mark, boosted a one point, 53-57 halftime margin to 11 on their eight-point string and then increased the margin to 86-65 when they got 13 straight.

Chamberlain, showing improvement at the foul line, made eight of 13 free throws. For the losers, Willie Naulls was high scorer with 27 points.

The Warriors, defeating the Knicks for the second time in two nights, started well by taking early leads of 11-4 and 23-15. But the Knicks fought back and tied the score at 35-all with 9:39 remaining in the second period.

The losers then opened leads of four points at 45-41 and five at 56-51. The Warriors didn't cut into the lead until the final minute of the first half which ended 53-57.

It was the fast-breaking tactics of rookie Al Attles, who had not played in the first half, and Guy Rodgers that turned the game into a rout. Rodgers, Chamberlain and Tom Gola combined for the first eight-point string. This trio, along with Attles, then got the 13-point run.

This was the 12th defeat in 14 games for the Knicks.

Geo. Washington Whips Mounties

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP)—Speedy, resourceful George Washington humiliated West Virginia's Mountaineers 26-0 Saturday in the 1960 football finale for both Southern Conference teams.

Quarterback Charley Packan led the GW charge with a 40-yard touchdown pass to John Caracciolo and scored another TD himself on a one-yard sneak.

It was GW's first victory over West Virginia since 1950.

As for the once-proud conference kings, the outcome marked the end of the blackest season in the Mountaineers' football history. It extended their winless streak to 15 games. It also gave them the worst showing since the sport was started at the school in 1891 when West Virginia lost the only game it played.

La. College Routs Delta State, 40-6

PINEVILLE, La. (AP) — Quarterback John Maillett passed for two touchdowns to lead Louisiana College to a 40-6 rout of Delta State Saturday night.

The season finale gave Louisiana College an 8-3 mark. The Statesmen, now 6-3, end their season next Wednesday against Ouachita Baptist.

Louisiana College scored in every quarter with Maillett's 16-yard pass to Charlie Underwood opening up the touchdown parade. Maillett passed 11 yards to Bill Gardner in the second stanza for another touchdown and set up MORE MORE other with a 27-yard toss to Charlie Darnell.

Other LC markers came on runs by Joe Steward, Billy Howard and Bob Corley, who kicked three extra points, and a seven yard pass from Sammy Howard to Sonny Huff.

Utah Upsets Old Rivals, 6 To 0

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Sophomore halfback Bud Scalley scored on a 12-yard run in the fourth period Saturday and led underdog Utah to a 6-0 victory which tumbled powerful Utah State from the ranks of the unbeaten college football teams.

But the Aggies, 9-1 for the season, finished in a tie with Wyoming for the Skyline Conference championship. Wyoming and Utah State each had 6-1 conference records.

Nebraska Traps Oklahoma, 17-14

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The Nebraska Cornhuskers used a 68-yard touchdown run by Bill Thornton and a 28-yard field goal by Ron Meade in the final quarter Saturday to beat Oklahoma 17-14 in a Big Eight Conference football game.

Meade, a third string quarterback, came off the bench with 1:38 left and booted the ball squarely through the posts to provide the Cornhuskers with the upset.

State Bowling Tourney Ends First-Day Action

By JERRY HARKNESS

The 16th annual state bowling tournament got off to a big start at Western and Bowlero Lanes last night with better scores coming up in every shift.

Monroe's Roi Tan Cigar team, composed of Herman Gullage, Jake Holloway, Fred McEnry, George Parker and E. B. Halley was holding the team lead last night at 10:30, but some highly ranked clubs including mighty Jax Mellon Jax of New Orleans, were yet to roll. Two members of the Jax team, Dean Courtade and Steve Dimak have appeared on TV's Championship Bowling and Jackpot Bowling.

Leading after the 6 o'clock shift in ragtime doubles action were Jerry Knipping and E. A. Coons of Monroe, but again favorites such as Jax Beer's combination of Courtade and Dimak had not yet bowled.

At Monroe's Bowlero Lanes the singles and doubles scores were not too impressive but H. Rosbottom racked up a 1923 all - events score to pace that department. Rosbottom also held the high scratch series with a 1624 at 10 o'clock last night.

Regular doubles leaders were C. Farris and E. DeMerrit of New Orleans, holding a 1219 total with a 160 team handicap. Singles titleholder, with one more shift to bowl, was Francis Baldwin with a 654 series.

Going down the line in the team standings late last night some of the leaders were the number two group, Kinnaird Small Engine of Bastrop, with 3025; number three, Regal Beer of Crowly who took the spot away from the Bossier-Shreveport Vending Co. with a 3006 score, number four, O'Shaugnessy's of New Orleans with 965; and number five Bossier - Shreveport Vending Co. with 2883.

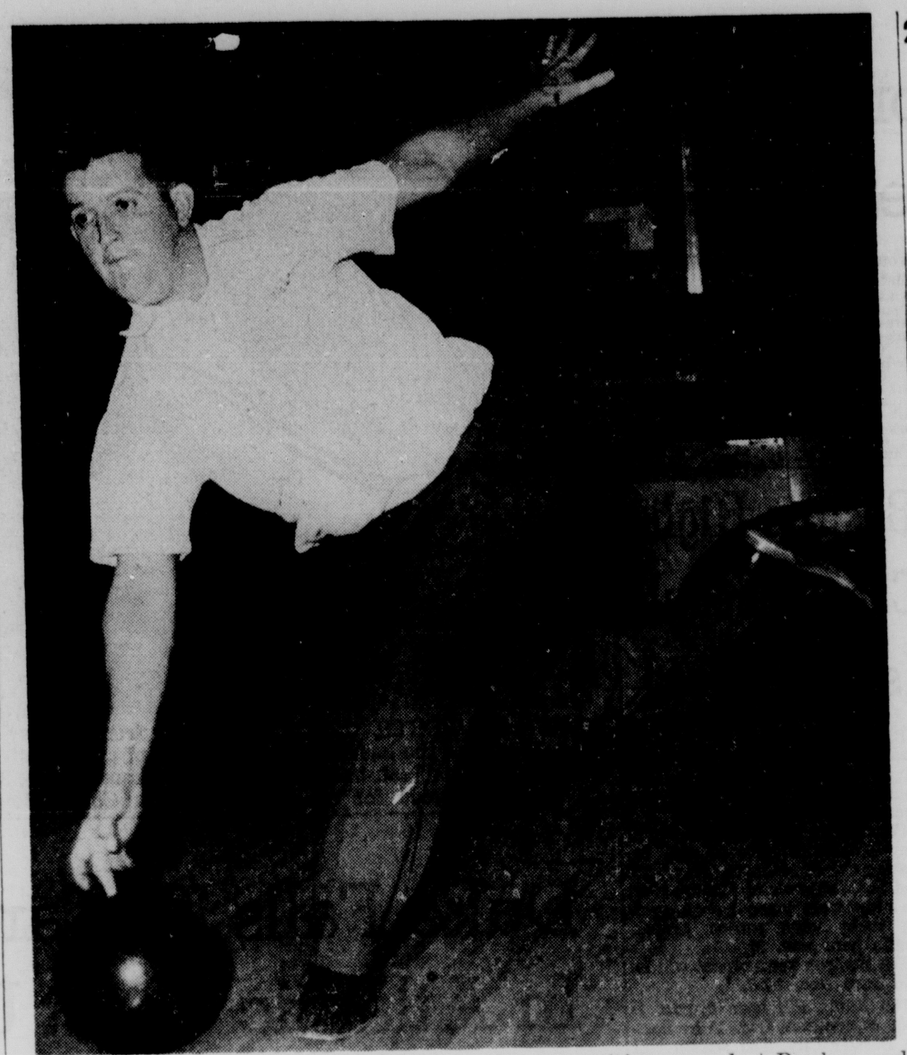

At Bowlero, far behind Rosbottom in the all - events bowling came R. A. MacKey with 1767 and a 1624 scratch record, D. Britt with 1746 and 1341 scratch, C. J. Gatti with 1702 and 1375 scratch, and B. Green with 1684 and 1495 scratch all from Shreveport.

Leaders trailing Farris and DeMerritt, in doubles play with a shift left on last night's slate, were R. Roy and D. Barron of Shreveport with 1188, D. Riley and H. Nichols of Monroe with 1172, R. Webster and M. Hedrick with 1172, and R. Mackey and L. Fortenberry of Shreveport with 1169.

Monroe was holding second place in the rag - time doubles at Western Lanes with Pete Gonzales and C. E. Pope bowling 1246. N. Ackoway and H. Kinney from Jennings held third with 1234. The Jax Beer team from New Orleans was expected to erase those leading scores in the late shift and help wreck some team standings also.

Lionel Sets Pace In Cajun Classic

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—Lionel Hebert, 32-year-old onetime PGA champion, cupped a 25-yard chip shot on the 18th hole for a five-under-par 66 and the lead after 54 holes in the $15,000 Cajun Classic golf tourney here Saturday.

Hebert, hometown co-favorite along with older brother Jay, goes into Sunday's final round with a two-stroke lead over 25-year-old Johnny Pott of Shreveport, who fired a 69 for a 54-hole total of 205.

Tied at third are Frank Boynton of Orlando, Fla., with 67-71-69—207, and Jon Gustin of Gladwyne, Pa., with 67-69-71—207.

Don Fairfield of Jacksonville, Ill., who fired a sizzling 65 Saturday to equal the tourney's low mark set Thursday by Jerry Pittman of Tulsa, Okla., holds down fourth with 208.

Jay Hebert, who won the tourney in 1958, was in fifth place along with Al Balding of Toronto, Calada; Al Geiberger of Studio City, Calif., Marty Furgol of Cog Hill, Ill; Tom Neiporte of Bronxville, N. Y., and Freddie Haas of New Orleans with 209s.

Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., the defending champion, fired a par 71 Saturday to break his string of sub-par rounds at 25. Casper was bunched with four others ot 210.

Grambling Roars Over Wiley, 51-19

MARSHALL, Tex. (Special) — Grambling College brought its most successful gridiron season since 1956 to a close here Saturday with a stunning, 57-19, victory over Wiley College.

Devasting once they gained ascendancy, the Tigers hit the touchdown jackpot by rolling up 21 first downs and 581 yards in total offense.

The one - sided victory was the ninth in 10 starts for Grambling and Coach Eddie Robinson and his heroes were accorded a rousing ovation as they left the field hopefully anticipating an Orange Blossom classic bid.

Since it dropped a baffling, 16-6, decision to Southern University, Grambling has stormed to easy victories over high ranking Tennessee State, Prairie View, Texas Southern, Arkansas AM&N and Jackson State.

Robinson calls the team one of the best, if not the best, in his 19 years at Grambling.

It is the highest scoring aggegate in Southeastern Conference history with a total of 417 poins in 10 games.

Savage and unyielding, the visitors built up a 19-13 halftime advantage before bursting all seams with a nightmarish 38 point splurge.

Fullback Powell on runs of 2, 8, and 49 yards; Jerry Robinson on runs of 64, 5, and 61 yards, and Howard McCowan with 3 and 49-yard touchdown sprints were big guns in Grambling's attack.

Lions Barely Top Demons' Hurdle, 7-0

The Lions scored their touchdown in the third quarter after they took the second half touchdown and marched 66 yards, aided by a 15 yard penalty against the Demons. Willie Rhodes ran the final 11 yards.

NSC threatened throughout the contest, which was marked by penalties. Three drives were stopped by pass interceptions.

NSC drew 123 yards in penalties while SLC was slapped down for 75 yards.

The victory gave SLC a 4-1 conference mark.

McDonogh Slams Fortier, 34-0

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — McDonogh won its first game of the season Saturday by smashing Fortier 34-0 in a Triple-A football game.

Joel Fazzio scored twice on runs of 51 and one yards. Jonathan Ziegler, Jimmy Aucoin and Tony Orlando also scored TDs. Orlando, Carrick and Fazzio (2) accounted for extra points.

Buffalo Beaten

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Boston University ripped Buffalo with a 28 - point last quarter Saturday rolling over the Bulls 42-14 in a football finale for both teams.

EASY ON DYAS

Plainsmen Rout Seminoles, 57-21

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI)—Auburn limited fullback Ed Dyas mainly to kicking extra points Saturday as the Tigers massacred the Florida State Seminoles 57-21 with four touchdowns in the last six minutes of play.

Dyas kicked a 21-yard field goal in the third quarter to set two new records for three-pointers—most in a career with 17 and most in one year with 13. This was icing on the cake as Auburn scored touchdowns in every period.

Florida State's sophomore quarterback Ed Tracygier electrified the 20,000 fans with his dazzling broken field running and passing to set up two Seminole scores against the beefy Tigers.

Right halfback Tom Hillabrand gave the Seminoles new hope midway in the fourth quarter with an 86 - yard pass interception. However, sophomore Jimmy Burson spun crazily for 55 yards through the center of the Florida State defense minutes later to insure Auburn's 30th straight win at home and eighth in a row.

Auburn went wild in the last six minutes of the game, scoring four touchdowns after recovering two Florida State fumbles and intercepting a Seminole pass.

The Plainsmen scored two quick touchdowns in the first period. Senior quarterback Bryant Harvard slashed over from five yards out with less than eight minutes gone and the next time the Tigers got the ball they marched 37 yards in six plays with quarterback Bobby Hunt plunging over from the one. Dyas made both conversions.

Midway in the second period Seminole halfback Ken Cone let a punt hit him and Auburn center Wayne Frazier covered the ball on the Florida State 19. Two plays later Harvard lofted a pass into the arms of halfback Don Machen and Dyas converted.

With Tracygier calling the shots Florida State moved 59 yards in 10 plays with the sophomore transfer from Iowa scoring from the one. Trancygier's pass to Hillabrand was good for two points.

Florida State struck back with two quick scores. Trancygier passed 51 yards to halfback Bud Whitehead and then came Hillabrand's pass interception. A pass for two points failed.

With the clock showing just six minutes left, Burson scampered 55 yards for the first of the four fourth period TD's. Hunt hit end Don Downs for 21 yards after the Tigers recovered a Seminole fumble. Another Seminole fumble set up a one-yard plunge by Larry Lassiter. Then sophomore quarterback Joe Overton hit end Cary Senn to close the wild scoring with a minute left in the Guard Herman Wilkes kicked two of the four extra points.

BIG EIGHT TITLE MATCH

Kansas Tumbles Missouri From Ranks Of Unbeaten

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Tigers' vision of a national championship and the first undefeated and untied season in th school's history vanished Saturday when halfback Bert Coan led the Kansas Jayhawks to a 23-77 victory before 43,000 fans.

The win gave Kansas its first Big Eight Conference title since 1930, and may have dampened Missouri's hopes for a berth in the Orange Bowl.

Missouri, the No. 1 team in the nation in this week's United Press International ratings, battle Kansas to a 0-0 stalemate for the first half.

But Roger Hill, a fourth-string halfback, booted a 47-yard field goal 3½ minutes deep in the second half, and then Coan took over.

The 200-pounder sophomore halfback caught a 19-yard touchdown pass from quarterback John Hall midway through the third period, and then sealed the win for Kansas with a 2-yard scoring plunge in the final quarter.

Missouri broke into the scoring column with 5:24 let in the game, quarterback Ron Taylor passing 17 yards to halfback Mel West for the tally.

Kansas added an insurance touchdown in the final minute of play.

Kansas threatened twice in the second period, but saw drives bogged down on the Missouri three and again on the Missouri 13.

Kansas picked up two quick first downs in the opening minutes of the third quarter before running out of gas on the Missouri 30. Then Hill, a 200-pound senior, kicked his field goal — the first of his collegiate career.

Moments later, Missouri halfback Norris Stevenson fumbled and Gib Wilson recovered for Kansas on the Missouri 19. Two plays netted no gain, and then Hadl passed to Coan, who sidestepped one Missouri defender at the 2-yard line, and stepped into the end zone for the first Kansas touchdown. John Suder's conversion increased the Kansas lead to 10-0.

Kansas marched 69 yards for its next touchdown, with Coan going over from the two. Coan carried six times for 49 yards in the drive, and set up the tally with a 37-yard gallop to the Missouri 26. Suder's conversion made it 17-0.

West returned the ensuing kickoff 54 yards to the Kansas 36, and five plays later he took Taylor's touchdown pass for Missouri's only score of the day. Bill Tobin kicked the extra point.

Kansas added another touchdown in the final 37 seconds, with substitute quarterback Rodger McFarland slipping a two-yard scoring pass to end Sam Simpson. The score was set up by Doyle Shick's pass interception at the Missouri 26. Suder's try for the extra point was no good.

Score By Periods

Missouri	0	0	0	7	— 7
Kansas	0	0	10	13	—23

Scoring:

Rice Defeats TCU, Title Cut Still Possible

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice broke open a tough defense battle with a near record field goal by Max Webb, and by intercepting six passes Saturday as the Owls defeated Texas Christian 23-0 to retain their chances for a share of the Southwest Conference championship.

Arkansas, a 3-0 victor over the Owls two weeks ago, clinched a title tie and trip to the Cotton Bowl by defeating Texas Tech Saturday, but Rice could share the championship and entering other bowl game hopes by defeating Baylor next Saturday.

TCU, aided by two Rice punts that averaged only five yards, dominated play until Webb's second period field goal travelled 48 yards, just four yards short of the conference record.

Rice moved 69 yards from the second half kickoff for its first touchdown and then added two more after Butch Blume and Walter Ligon returned a pair of pass interceptions to the TCU 14.

Billy Cox and Alvin Hartman carried over an one-yard keepers and Randall Kerbow raced around right end from the 5.

Rice returned the six intercepted passes 83 yards, including 43 yards for Blume and 18 for Ligon.

Webb and Blume each kicked an extra point. Kerbow's pass attempt for two points after the third touchdown failed.

The defeat was the worst for TCU since Abe Martin took over as head coach of the Horned Frogs in 1953.

St. Matthew, Weston Cage Teams Score

EROS, La. (Special) — St. Matthew's defending state Class A champions of Monroe defeated Eros High, 53-40, here last night in the finals of the Eros Invitational Basketball Tournament after the Weston girls defeated Chatham, 35-34, in the final of their division.

It was the first defeat in 15 games for the Eros quint that had stopped double - A Neville of Monroe in a semi - final attraction, 52-45. St. Matthew's beat Weston, 63-43, in their semi - final.

All - State Johnny Varino hooped 18 points to lead the St. Matthew's victory, but Eugene Harper of Eros was high scorer of the final with 21. Alton Spillers, Eros, and Frank Accardo, St. Matthew's, each backed their leader with ten.

Myra Avery, Weston, was high scorer in the girls' final with 27 points. Lou Ann Simons led Chatham with 25.

The all - tournament teams:

Bastrop Quints Take Twin Bill Against Calhoun

CALHOUN, La. (Special) — Bastrop High basketball teams sacked a double victory over Calhoun cagers here last night, but supporters of the Chiefs were lauding them for "one of the finest exhibitions of hustle Calhoun has ever shown."

Bastrop's varsity notched a 66-47 victory as the triple-A Rams opened their season. It was only the second loss for the Chiefs in eight games. The Bastrop "B" team won the opening game, 48-23.

Calhoun coach Jerry Lovett praised the spirit of his boys and declared the score was no indication of the "true spirit of the game."

Bobby Steve Brownlee, Calhoun, was high scorer of the game with 17 points, but Floyd Murry and Burch hooped 16 apiece to pace Bastrop. Madison got 14 more in the Bastrop count, while Billy Jim Spillers backed Brownlee with 15.

93-Yard Sprint Highlights Win

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Sophomore Tom Hennessey raced the second half kickoff back 93 yards for a touchdown as Holy Cross rolled up a 30-6 victory over the University of Connecticut Saturday.

Hennessey also scored the first Holy Cross touchdown with a short drive at the end of an 11-play march which rolled 70 yards early in the second quarter.

NO 'REBEL BOWL'

Plenty Turkey Games In Area

Despite the absence of the first "Rebel Bowl", northeast Louisiana grid fans will have plenty of football Thanksgiving Day and next weekend.

Backers of the West Monroe "Rebel Bowl" dropped plans for a game this year because of failure to obtain a representative opponent for West Monroe High.

But the young Paper Bowl in Jonesboro will pitt class AA Springhill, 4-6-1 against a tough schedule, against class A power LaSalle, 8-3-0 for the campaign.

The Paper Bowl will be played Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in Caldwell - Peacock in Jonesboro. Ouachita and North Caddo tied, 7-7, in last year's first Paper Bowl.

Two area playoff games are scheduled for Thanksgiving Day and night. District 2-A champion Tallulah (10-1) will meet 1-A titlist Winnfield (8-2-1) at 2:30 Thursday afternoon in Tallulah.

Thursday night, Plain Dealing (9-1), the district 1-B winner, will face 2-B kingpin Holly Ridge (5-4-1) in Holly Ridge.

Both the Tallulah - Winnfield and Holly Ridge - Plain Dealing games are first round playoffs.

In Bossier City Friday night, Minden and North Caddo will meet in a district 1-AA playoff. The winner will meet unbeaten Neville, 2-AA champ, in a first - round state playoff the following week.

Another district playoff is possible since Waterproof and Block of Jonesville tied for the 3-B championship. The fate of the two teams will be decided Monday afternoon at Sicily Island in a meeting of 3-B principals.

Don Poggio Cops Gallant Fox Handicap

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Poggio, an Argentine horse who runs in the silks of Gustave Ring of Washington, D.C., pulled away in the final quarter mile Saturday at Aqueduct and won the $83,000 Gallant Fox Handicap by seven lengths over Emil Dolce's Manassa Mauler.

The even-money favorite of the crowd of 43,121, the South American stayed just off the pace of Manassa Mauler for the first mile and a half, then turned on the juice as they turned into the homestretch.

Elmendorf Farm's Nickel Boy came up in the final sixteenth to take third place by two lengths over Ethel D. Jacobs's Promised Land. Manassa Mauler, who won the $86,000 Trenton Handicap last week at Garden State Park, took second by three lengths.

Sam Boulmetis, who won the Merchants and Citizens Handicap at Saratoga in August with Don Poggio, the repeated in the Manhattan Handicap at Belmont last month, rode the Argentine who had top weight of 126 pounds.

Don Poggio had finished second behind Kelso, but ahead of Bald Eagle in the 2-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup here Oct. 29. Kelso and Bald Eagle did not enter the 2nd running of the Gallant Fox, named for the Belair Stud's 1930 Triple Crown winner.

The winner paid $4, $2.80 and $2.30. Manassa Mauler, ridden by Joe Culmone and packing 118 pounds, paid $4.40 and $3.10 as the 5-1 third choice. Nickel Boy, carrying 119 pounds and with Howard Grant up, was second choice at 9-2 and returned $2.90 to show.

Mangham 'B' Handed Defeat At Sterlington

STERLINGTON, La. (Special) — Sterlington High School concluded its inaugural year of football last night with a 13-0 victory over the Mangham "B" team that had defeated the host club earlier in the season, 6-0.

Tommy Williams' eight - yard run in the first quarter brought Sterlington its opening touchdown.

A pass, Larry Senn to Jerry White, also from the eight, accounted for the second TD in the last quarter. White kicked the point after the final TD.

Harvell, the defensive, captain, was the standout of the Mangham line, while Hatch and Etier showed good offensive styles. Don Griffin and White were defensive powers for Sterlington with Tommy Williams showing steady offensive play.

State Bowling Tourney Ends First-Day Action

By JERRY HARKNESS

The 16th annual state bowling tournament got off to a big start at Western and Bowlero Lanes last night with better scores coming up in every shift.

Monroe's Roi Tan Cigar team, composed of Herman Gullage, Jake Holloway, Fred McEnry, George Parker and E. B. Halley was holding the team lead last night at 10:30, but some highly ranked clubs including mighty Jax Mellon Jax of New Orleans, were yet to roll. Two members of the Jax team, Dean Courtade and Steve Dimak have appeared on TV's Championship Bowling and Jackpot Bowling.

Leading after the 6 o'clock shift in ragtime doubles action were Jerry Knipping and E. A. Coons of Monroe, but again favorites such as Jax Beer's combination of Courtade and Dimak had not yet bowled.

At Monroe's Bowlero Lanes the singles and doubles scores were not too impressive but H. Rosbottom racked up a 1923 all - events score to pace that department. Rosbottom also held the high scratch series with a 1624 at 10 o'clock last night.

Regular doubles leaders were C. Farris and E. DeMerrit of New Orleans, holding a 1219 total with a 160 team handicap. Singles titleholder, with one more shift to bowl, was Francis Baldwin with a 654 series.

Going down the line in the team standings late last night some of the leaders were the number two group, Kinnaird Small Engine of Bastrop, with 3025; number three, Regal Beer of Crowly who took the spot away from the Bossier-Shreveport Vending Co. with a 3006 score, number four, O'Shaugnessy's of New Orleans with 965; and number five Bossier - Shreveport Vending Co. with 2883.

At Bowlero, far behind Rosbottom in the all - events bowling came R. A. MacKey with 1767 and a 1624 scratch record, D. Britt with 1746 and 1341 scratch, C. J. Gatti with 1702 and 1375 scratch, and B. Green with 1684 and 1495 scratch all from Shreveport.

Leaders trailing Farris and DeMerritt, in doubles play with a shift left on last night's slate, were R. Roy and D. Barron of Shreveport with 1188, D. Riley and H. Nichols of Monroe with 1172, R. Webster and M. Hedrick with 1172, and R. Mackey and L. Fortenberry of Shreveport with 1169.

Monroe was holding second place in the rag - time doubles at Western Lanes with Pete Gonzales and C. E. Pope bowling 1246. N. Ackoway and H. Kinney from Jennings held third with 1234. The Jax Beer team from New Orleans was expected to erase those leading scores in the late shift and help wreck some team standings also.

Auburn went wild in the last six minutes of the game, scoring four touchdowns after recovering two Florida State fumbles and intercepting a Seminole pass.

The Plainsmen scored two quick touchdowns in the first period. Senior quarterback Bryant Harvard slashed over from five yards out with less than eight minutes gone and the next time the Tigers got the ball they marched 37 yards in six plays with quarterback Bobby Hunt plunging over from the one. Dyas made both conversions.

Midway in the second period Seminole halfback Ken Cone let a punt hit him and Auburn center Wayne Frazier covered the ball on the Florida State 19. Two plays later Harvard lofted a pass into the arms of halfback Don Machen and Dyas converted.

With Tracygier calling the shots Florida State moved 59 yards in 10 plays with the sophomore transfer from Iowa scoring from the one. Trancygier's pass to Hillabrand was good for two points.

Florida State struck back with two quick scores. Trancygier passed 51 yards to halfback Bud Whitehead and then came Hillabrand's pass interception. A pass for two points failed.

With the clock showing just six minutes left, Burson scampered 55 yards for the first of the four fourth period TD's. Hunt hit end Don Downs for 21 yards after the Tigers recovered a Seminole fumble. Another Seminole fumble set up a one-yard plunge by Larry Lassiter. Then sophomore quarterback Joe Overton hit end Cary Senn to close the wild scoring with a minute left in the Guard Herman Wilkes kicked two of the four extra points.

Missouri, the No. 1 team in the nation in this week's United Press International ratings, battle Kansas to a 0-0 stalemate for the first half.

But Roger Hill, a fourth-string halfback, booted a 47-yard field goal 3½ minutes deep in the second half, and then Coan took over.

The 200-pounder sophomore halfback caught a 19-yard touchdown pass from quarterback John Hall midway through the third period, and then sealed the win for Kansas with a 2-yard scoring plunge in the final quarter.

Missouri broke into the scoring column with 5.24 let in the game, quarterback Ron Taylor passing 17 yards to halfback Mel West for the tally.

Kansas added an insurance touchdown in the final minute of play.

Kansas threatened twice in the second period, but saw drives bogged down on the Missouri three and again on the Missouri 13.

Kansas picked up two quick first downs in the opening minutes of the third quarter before running out of gas on the Missouri 30. Then Hill, a 200-pound senior, kicked his field goal — the first of his collegiate career.

Moments later, Missouri halfback Norris Stevenson fumbled and Gib Wilson recovered for Kansas on the Missouri 19. Two plays netted no gain, and then Hadl passed to Coan, who sidestepped one Missouri defender at the 2-yard line, and stepped into the end zone for the first Kansas touchdown. John Suder's conversion increased the Kansas lead to 10-0.

Kansas marched 69 yards for its next touchdown, with Coan going over from the two. Coan carried six times for 49 yards in the drive, and set up the tally with a 37-yard gallop to the Missouri 26. Suder's conversion made it 17-0.

West returned the ensuing kickoff 54 yards to the Kansas 36, and five plays later he took Taylor's touchdown pass for Missouri's only score of the day. Bill Tobin kicked the extra point.

Kansas added another touchdown in the final 37 seconds, with substitute quarterback Rodger McFarland slipping a two-yard scoring pass to end Sam Simpson. The score was set up by Doyle Shick's pass interception at the Missouri 26. Suder's try for the extra point was no good.

NO 'REBEL BOWL'

Plenty Turkey Games In Area

Despite the absence of the first "Rebel Bowl", northeast Louisiana grid fans will have plenty of football Thanksgiving Day and next weekend.

Backers of the West Monroe "Rebel Bowl" dropped plans for a game this year because of failure to obtain a representative opponent for West Monroe High.

But the young Paper Bowl in Jonesboro will pitt class AA Springhill, 4-6-1 against a tough schedule, against class A power LaSalle, 8-3-0 for the campaign.

The Paper Bowl will be played Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in Caldwell - Peacock in Jonesboro. Ouachita and North Caddo tied, 7-7, in last year's first Paper Bowl.

Two area playoff games are scheduled for Thanksgiving Day and night. District 2-A champion Tallulah (10-1) will meet 1-A titlist Winnfield (8-2-1) at 2:30 Thursday afternoon in Tallulah.

Thursday night, Plain Dealing (9-1), the district 1-B winner, will face 2-B kingpin Holly Ridge (5-4-1) in Holly Ridge.

Both the Tallulah - Winnfield and Holly Ridge - Plain Dealing games are first round playoffs.

In Bossier City Friday night, Minden and North Caddo will meet in a district 1-AA playoff. The winner will meet unbeaten Neville, 2-AA champ, in a first - round state playoff the following week.

Another district playoff is possible since Waterproof and Block of Jonesville tied for the 3-B championship. The fate of the two teams will be decided Monday afternoon at Sicily Island in a meeting of 3-B principals.

Don Poggio Cops Gallant Fox Handicap

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Poggio, an Argentine horse who runs in the silks of Gustave Ring of Washington, D.C., pulled away in the final quarter mile Saturday at Aqueduct and won the $83,000 Gallant Fox Handicap by seven lengths over Emil Dolce's Manassa Mauler.

The even-money favorite of the crowd of 43,121, the South American stayed just off the pace of Manassa Mauler for the first mile and a half, then turned on the juice as they turned into the homestretch.

Elmendorf Farm's Nickel Boy came up in the final sixteenth to take third place by two lengths over Ethel D. Jacobs's Promised Land. Manassa Mauler, who won the $86,000 Trenton Handicap last week at Garden State Park, took second by three lengths.

Sam Boulmetis, who won the Merchants and Citizens Handicap at Saratoga in August with Don Poggio, the repeated in the Manhattan Handicap at Belmont last month, rode the Argentine who had top weight of 126 pounds.

Don Poggio had finished second behind Kelso, but ahead of Bald Eagle in the 2-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup here Oct. 29. Kelso and Bald Eagle did not enter the 2nd running of the Gallant Fox, named for the Belair Stud's 1930 Triple Crown winner.

The winner paid $4, $2.80 and $2.30. Manassa Mauler, ridden by Joe Culmone and packing 118 pounds, paid $4.40 and $3.10 as the 5-1 third choice. Nickel Boy, carrying 119 pounds and with Howard Grant up, was second choice at 9-2 and returned $3.90 to show.

Mangham 'B' Handed Defeat At Sterlington

STERLINGTON, La. (Special) — Sterlington High School concluded its inaugural year of football last night with a 13-0 victory over the Mangham "B" team that had defeated the host club earlier in the season, 6-0.

Tommy Williams' eight - yard run in the first quarter brought Sterlington its opening touchdown.

A pass, Larry Senn to Jerry White, also from the eight, accounted for the second TD in the last quarter. White kicked the point after the final TD.

Harvell, the defensive, captain, was the standout of the Mangham line, while Hatch and Etier showed good offensive styles. Don Griffin and White were defensive powers for Sterlington with Tommy Williams showing steady offensive play.

Grambling Roars Over Wiley, 51-19

MARSHALL, Tex. (Special) — Grambling College brought its most successful gridiron season since 1956 to a close here Saturday with a stunning, 57-19, victory over Wiley College.

Devasting once they gained ascendancy, the Tigers hit the touchdown jackpot by rolling up 21 first downs and 581 yards in total offense.

The one - sided victory was the ninth in 10 starts for Grambling and Coach Eddie Robinson and his heroes were accorded a rousing ovation as they left the field hopefully anticipating an Orange Blossom classic bid.

Since it dropped a baffling, 16-6, decision to Southern University, Grambling has stormed to easy victories over high ranking Tennessee State, Prairie View, Texas Southern, Arkansas AM&N and Jackson State.

Robinson calls the team one of the best, if not the best, in his 19 years at Grambling.

It is the highest scoring aggegate in Southeastern Conference history with a total of 417 poins in 10 games.

Savage and unyielding, the visitors built up a 19-13 halftime advantage before bursting all seams with a nightmarish 38 point splurge.

Fullback Powell on runs of 2, 8, and 49 yards; Jerry Robinson on runs of 64, 5, and 61 yards, and Howard McCowan with 3 and 49-yard touchdown sprints were big guns in Grambling's attack.

Lions Barely Top Demons' Hurdle, 7-0

The Lions scored their touchdown in the third quarter after they took the second half touchdown and marched 66 yards, aided by a 15 yard penalty against the Demons. Willie Rhodes ran the final 11 yards.

NSC threatened throughout the contest, which was marked by penalties. Three drives were stopped by pass interceptions.

NSC drew 123 yards in penalties while SLC was slapped down for 75 yards.

The victory gave SLC a 4-1 conference mark.

McDonogh Slams Fortier, 34-0

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — McDonogh won its first game of the season Saturday by smashing Fortier 34-0 in a Triple-A football game.

Joel Fazzio scored twice on runs of 51 and one yards. Jonathan Ziegler, Jimmy Aucoin and Tony Orlando also scored TDs. Orlando, Carrick and Fazzio (2) accounted for extra points.

Buffalo Beaten

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Boston University ripped Buffalo with a 28 - point last quarter Saturday rolling over the Bulls 42-14 in a football finale for both teams.

PORKERS WIN, 34-6

Arkansas In Cotton Bowl Role By Beating Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Arkansas marched over Texas Tech 34-6 and into the Cotton Bowl Saturday on the bullseye passing of George McKinney and the blistering runs of Lance Alworth and Billy Moore.

The hard - bitted Razorbacks rolled up 27 points in the first half, then threatened repeatedly the rest of the way until scoring again with 6 minutes left on a jump pass from McKinney to Brent Shinall that ganed 44 yards.

It was Arkansas' fourth straight victory over Texas Tech and it gave the Razorbacks the host spot in the Cotton Bowl because they defeated Rice, the team expected to tie it for the title, in regular season play.

A fumble and intercepted pass helped Arkansas to its first two touchdowns and E. J. Holub, the great Tech center, intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards for a touchdown to pug the Red Raiders back into the game.

But the next time Arkansas had the ball it roared 79 yards for another touchdown just to show its true muscle and Tech never had a chance after that.

It will be Arkansas' third appearance in the Cotton Bowl where it played a 0-0 tie with Louisiana State in 1947 and lost to Georgia Tech 6-14 in 1955.

It also meant that Arkansas was winning or sharing the conference championship for the fifth time—twice in a row. Arkansas won it in 1936, tied for it in 1946, won it in 1954 and tied with Texas and Texas Christian last year.

Writer Blasts Talent Given 2 New Clubs

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles sports editor said Saturday that the talent made available to the two new American League clubs wouldn't be enough "to organize a first-division team in the Big State League."

Sid Ziff of the Mirror wrote in his column, "The Inside Track," that the new clubs in Los Angeles and Washington "are in danger of being laughed out of town if they are made up of the specimens who were placed on the eligible list at $75,000 each."

"The existing clubs clearly have jumped into this thing enthusiastically as a glorious way of getting rid of their washed-up, over-aged and generally inferior stock at a handsome profit," Ziff said.

"It has the earmarks of one of the sneakiest selling jobs of the generation. A good name for it would be Operation Unload.

"Can you imagine paying $75,000 for Elmer Valo, Earl Torgeson, Rip Repulski, Billy Goodman, Johnny Klippstein, Je DeMaestri, Dale Long? The lot wouldn't be worth $75,000 . .

"Someone may come up with a better idea. They've got to do better or they'll set up a couple of clunkers who will turn major league baseball into a farce."

Five Games In YMCA Football Loops Yesterday

The Aces edged the Tornadoes, 20-19, in Gray-Y football yesterday, Charles Stewart and John Turner doing the scoring for the winners. The Tigers upended the Bears, 34-12, with Paul Smith, Don Coker and Daniel Kilcoyn leading the scoring.

The Jets fell to the Rams in a 20-6 battle as Mark Hanson, Mike Weaver and Andy Mintz scored the touchdowns. Dickie Lewis got the lone Jet TD. Ralph Asby, Johnny Rugg, Petey Smith and Hank Johns led the Red Raiders to a 26-6 conquest of the Colts.

In Junior Hi-Y football, Lee routed West Monroe, 46-25, as Jimmy Tarrance got four touchdowns and Larry White 19 points. Portman and Fowler led the losers in scoring.

Duke Falls To Tar Heels In Atlantic Coast Upset

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (UPI—Ray Farris somersaulted for a touchdown over a mass of Duke linemen and Bob Elliott kicked the point in the last two minutes of play Saturday to give North Carolina a stunning 7-6 upset victory over the sixth-ranked Blue Devils.

The triumph by the victory-starved Tar Heels in this battle of arch-rivals tarnished Duke's chances for an Orange Bowl invitation.

North Carolina, with only one victory and seven defeats before Saturday, battled the Blue Devils on even terms through three quarters. Both teams had scoring thrusts thrown back repeatedly before Duke sent fullback Dave (Red) Burch crashing for a touchdown early in the fourth period.

The Tar Heels rallied fiercely and drove the kickoff to the Duke eight. But frustration again hit them and on fourth down, end John Schroeder dropped a pass in the end zone.

With the clock running out, North Carolina's defense—magnificent all afternoon — throttled Duke's runs and forced a punt. Then the Tar Heels took only eight plays to sweep 43 yards for the tying touchdown.

The big gainer was a 20-yard pass from quarterback Farris to Schroeder on the identical play that Schroeder bobbled in the end zone. Elliott contributed a seven yard plunge and Farris runs for four, four and two yards. On fourth down, Farris ran to the left then dived and somer-saulted over the wall of blue - shirted tacklers.

It was Schroeder who had blocked Bill Reynolds' placement for a point after Duke's touchdown early in the action-packed fourth period.

Duke's score came swiftly after a 54-yard punt return by halfback Mark Leggett on the last play of the third period. With Burch carrying most of the heavy load, the Blue Devils crunched 41 yards and Burch burst the middle for two yards and the score.

Reynolds earlier had attempted two field goals when Duke got within striking range, but a 27-yarder was wide and a 40-yarder was short.

The North Carolina victory gave sister North Carolina State a crack at sharing the Atlantic Coast Conference championship with Duke, but the Wolfpack's chance was spoiled by an 8-8 tie with South Carolina. Duke, with one more game, has a 7-2 record and Saturday's loss was the first ACC defeat for the Blue Devils. N. C. State had lost only to Duke in the ACC.

WITH DEL WEBB

O'Malley To Talk Money Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodger owner Walter O'Malley—who recently said an American League team would "wreck havo" in Los Angeles—is expected to get together Monday with a member of the wrecking crew.

Del Webb, the contractor the Dodgers hired to build the Coliseum's leftfield screen, is in town to see about getting some indirect use out of his curious creation.

Webb, besides being a contractor, is co-owner of the New York Yankees, who would play in the Coliseum if the new American League club here could arrange to share the stadium with the Dodgers.

The Coliseum may be one thing Webb and O'Malley talk about. But the primary topic seems to be money. And Webb is here to find out for the American League how much.

O'Malley hasn't said so outright, but if he has to share the territory with another club he presumably would like to share some of his expenses as well.

The Dodgers paid $450,000 in indemnities to the Pacific Coast League when they took over the territory.

They paid $250,000 to have the Coliseum remodeled for baseball. (Some of it they got back in a rebate from the Coliseum.)

The Dodgers might not only suggest splitting the indemnity costs but also the cost of getting the Coliseum in shape for baseball (even if the shape is a little weird).

Actually, the Coliseum commission decides who uses the stadium, and Coliseum Manager Bill Nicholas has said there's room for two baseball tenants. But the American League undoubtedly would like to establish joint tenancy on a friendly basis.

If O'Malley really had a choice of where to put the new American League club, he might suggest an eminently suitable spot would be about 2,000 miles away.

And if the portly Dodger president intended to hide his dismay at the prospect of competing for the Los Angeles baseball buck, he hardly proved himself a master of concealment.

Early in the discussion of whether the American League should move in, O'Malley said it was up to the public to decide whether it wanted another ball club. He said he didn't think he could stop it if the people wanted it.

Then, when the American League announced it was not only coming but coming almost overnight, O'Malley was somewhat less gracious.

"The Dodgers, in making a schedule, have carefully had in mind the prior rights of the colleges, the professional sports and the civic events here," O'Malley said. "Another full baseball schedule would wreak havoc, in my opinion, and I am sure the American League will not want to offend these earlier settlers and their fans.

"... We expected American League baseball eventually on the West Coast. We had suggested such fine cities as Seattle and San Diego.

"As to Los Angeles itself, we have previously said that we had hoped to get our own problems in pioneering the territory and building our stadium behind us before the relatives moved in."

Seven Experts To Pick All-SEC Football Team

ATLANTA (AP) — Seven football experts will gather here Tuesday to select the all-Southeastern Conference team for The Associated Press.

The team will be announced Nov. 30.

Board members will also make their final recommendations during the meeting here for the 1960 all-America team.

Shockers Claim Valley's Throne With 34-6 Win

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—The University of Wichita wrapped up the Missouri Valley Conference football title Saturday with a 34-6 victory over North Texas State.

The Shockers, who have won seven of their nine games, took a 14-0 lead at the half and added three more touchdowns before the Texans were able to score in the final period.

Mallory, from Summit, N.J., opened the scoring in the second quarter with a two-yard touchdown plunge.

Another touchdown was made by quarterback Dick Johnson, who hit five out of six passes for a total of 114 yards. He scored the second touchdown of the game, going over on a one-yard keeper play after the Shockers had made 88 yards in eight plays.

Miami Redskins Take Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—Miami of Ohio's Redskins nursed a four-point lead through the second half Saturday to down Cincinnati 10-6 in the 65th meeting of these Ohio football rivals.

The victory margin was provided by end Bob Jencks, who kicked a 37-yard field goal and a point after touchdown.

Miss. College Routs Mexico By 40-0 Score

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The Mississippi College Choctaws scored in every period in rolling to a 40-0 victory over an outmanned University of Mexico football team Friday night.

Quarterback Alton Greenlea burst off tackle for a 54-yard scoring sprint in the first quarter and back Tony Alexander pitched in with a 62-yard romp into the end zone in the third period.

Kicking specialist Paul Pounds back Edgar Simpson each scored twice, Allen on one-yard keep plays each time and Simpson on short plunges.

Kicking specialist Paul Pounds converted with a placement after the second and fifth touchdowns and the ball over after the final for a two-point conversion.

The Mexicon team was unable to contain the Choctaw offense directed by the southerners' two fine quarterbacks, Allen and Greenlea.

Sulphur To Play Mississippi 11

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Laurel and Sulphur, La., high school football teams were chosen Saturday to play in the annual Shrimp Bowl here Dec. 2.

Announcement of the selection was made at Lake Charles, La., by Yank Barhanovich, director of the post-season event.

Triple-A Sulphur, coached by Jack Donald, has a 6-3-1 record and has completed its season.

Coach Barney Poole's Big Eight Laurel team is 7-2 and meets Hattiesburg Thursday in the season finale.

Geronimo To Appear Here Monday Night

Lock the doors and hold on to your hair — Geronimo is coming!

Chief Geronimo, a 240 - pound Indian who wrestles rough, will go after Ray Andrews' scalp in half of a double main event card at Roll-Arena, formerly B&B Arena, Monday night.

Also set to appear is Farmer Jones, the country boy who keeps a pig for company. The Farmer will meet bad Mexican Carlos Mendoza in the other half of the double main.

Jim LaRock and veteran villain Al Massey will trade holds in the evening's first bout, a 15-minute, one-fall affair.

Andrews, the Scottish champion, is expected to have his hands full with Geronimo, a redskin whose talents are not confined to Indian hand wrestling. Promoter Ralph Fox says Geronimo has a reputation in the wrestling game to match that of his namesake, the famous Apache chieftain whose exploits have been dramatized in movies more than Billy The Kid's.

Farmer Jones will be making his first appearance locally in several years. The rustic wrestler, whose idea of getting dressed up is to put on a clean pair of overalls, sometimes brings along his pet pig to his matches.

The two main events will each have hour time limits with two falls to win.

Thorton Hot At Wildcats Down Illini

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Quarback Dick Thorton passed and ran Northwestern to a 14-7 victory over Illinois Saturday in a Big Ten football finale.

Thornton, 20-year-old Chicagoan who was disabled last year with a broken ankle suffered in Northwestern's second game, returned the opening kickoff 83 yards to set up the Wildcats' first touchdown, and took charge in an 87-yard drive in the final quarter for the game-winning touchdown.

Illinois punted to the Northwestern 13 to open the fourth quarter. Thornton went around his left end for 22 yards. Mike Stock picked up one yard before Thornton tossed a 31-yard pass to Elbert Kimbrough. Thornton ran for another 20 yards and then fired a 13-yard touchdown pass to Kimbrough.

Illinois, bottling to get back into the game, threatened late in the fourth quarter when Mel Meyers tossed a 41-yard pass to Thurman Walker to the Northwestern 12. But the fired-up Wildcats not only held, they tossed Meyers for a couple of losses and took over on the 19-yard line.

The outcome gave both teams 5-4 records for the season, and 2-4 in conference play.

Illinois' only touchdown came in the second quarter to tie the score at 7-7. The Illini stopped a Northwestern march on their own 27, and nine plays later Bill Brown barreled it over from the 3. Johnny Easterbrook led the drive with four passes, one to Walker for 35 yards.

Yale Finishes Unbeaten With 39-6 Triumph

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Dedicated Yale led by Ken Wolfe and the "Forbidding Five" stormed the Harvard barrier Saturday to complete its first perfect football season in 37 years and won the Ivy League title.

The mature, muscular Elis wore down the fighting but jittery Crimson 39-6 in the 77th edition of this ancient rivalry, duplicating the 1923 unbeaten, untied record fashioned on the same Harvard Stadium turf.

Halfback Wolfe struck with electrifying suddenness in the third minute of the regionally televised contest played before an overflow crowd of 40,000. On the first Yale play from scrimmage, Wolfe shot through the hole cleared by Capt. Mike Pyle at left tackle and sprinted 41 yards for the touchdown.

Quarterback Tom Singleton, a magician with the chips down, had faked a handoff to fullback Bob Blanchard crashing center and the sleight-of-hand delivery to Wolfe had Harvard fooled.

Within moments Wolfe made a last-ditch tackle of Harvard sophomore sprinter Hobie Armstrong after a 29-yard kickoff runback and intercepted a pass.

With the middle of the Yale line, dubbed the "Forbidding Five" slamming at the arch rival, Yale struck again on the first play of the second period.

Charlie Ravenel, out since Oct. 1 with a knee injury, tried a flat pass to his right at midfield. Senior end John Hutcherson from Oxford, Miss., smartly diagnosed the play, picked off the aerial and raced 50 yards to the end zone. Ravenel tried vainly to limp on his ailing knee in pursuit, but Hutcherson had the score the moment he touched the ball. Gordon Kaake kicked a 33-yard field goal 15 seconds before halftime for a 17-0 lead.

The first team played long enough in the third period for Blanchard to score after a interception by Singleton, then the reserves took over.

Arkansas In Cotton Bowl Role By Beating Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Arkansas marched over Texas Tech 34-6 and into the Cotton Bowl Saturday on the bullseye passing of George McKinney and the blistering runs of Lance Alworth and Billy Moore.

The hard - bitted Razorbacks rolled up 27 points in the first half, then threatened repeatedly the rest of the way until scoring again with 6 minutes left on a jump pass from McKinney to Brent Shinall that ganed 44 yards.

It was Arkansas' fourth straight victory over Texas Tech and it gave the Razorbacks the host spot in the Cotton Bowl because they defeated Rice, the team expected to tie it for the title, in regular season play.

A fumble and intercepted pass helped Arkansas to its first two touchdowns and E. J. Holub, the great Tech center, intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards for a touchdown to pug the Red Raiders back into the game.

But the next time Arkansas had the ball it roared 79 yards for another touchdown just to show its true muscle and Tech never had a chance after that.

It will be Arkansas' third appearance in the Cotton Bowl where it played a 0-0 tie with Louisiana State in 1947 and lost to Georgia Tech 6-14 in 1955.

It also meant that Arkansas was winning or sharing the conference championship for the fifth time—twice in a row. Arkansas won it in 1936, tied for it in 1946, won it in 1954 and tied with Texas and Texas Christian last year.

Writer Blasts Talent Given 2 New Clubs

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles sports editor said Saturday that the talent made available to the two new American League clubs wouldn't be enough "to organize a first-division team in the Big State League."

Sid Ziff of the Mirror wrote in his column, "The Inside Track," that the new clubs in Los Angeles and Washington "are in danger of being laughed out of town if they are made up of the specimens who were placed on the eligible list at $75,000 each."

"The existing clubs clearly have jumped into this thing enthusiastically as a glorious way of getting rid of their washed-up, over-aged and generally inferior stock at a handsome profit," Ziff said.

"It has the earmarks of one of the sneakiest selling jobs of the generation. A good name for it would be Operation Unload.

"Can you imagine paying $75,000 for Elmer Valo, Earl Torgeson, Rip Repulski, Billy Goodman, Johnny Klippstein, Je DeMaestri, Dale Long? The lot wouldn't be worth $75,000 . .

"Someone may come up with a better idea. They've got to do better or they'll set up a couple of clunkers who will turn major league baseball into a farce."

Five Games In YMCA Football Loops Yesterday

The Aces edged the Tornadoes, 20-19, in Gray-Y football yesterday, Charles Stewart and John Turner doing the scoring for the winners. The Tigers upended the Bears, 34-12, with Paul Smith, Don Coker and Daniel Kilcoyn leading the scoring.

The Jets feH to the Rams in a 20-6 battle as Mark Hanson, Mike Weaver and Andy Mintz scored the touchdowns. Dickie Lewis got the lone Jet TD. Ralph Asby, Johnny Rugg, Petey Smith and Hank Johns led the Red Raiders to a 26-6 conquest of the Colts.

In Junior Hi-Y football, Lee routed West Monroe, 46-25, as Jimmy Tarrance got four touchdowns and Larry White 19 points. Portman and Fowler led the losers in scoring.

Duke Falls To Tar Heels In Atlantic Coast Upset

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (UPI—Ray Farris somersaulted for a touchdown over a mass of Duke linemen and Bob Elliott kicked the point in the last two minutes of play Saturday to give North Carolina a stunning 7-6 upset victory over the sixth-ranked Blue Devils.

The triumph by the victory-starved Tar Heels in this battle of arch-rivals tarnished Duke's chances for an Orange Bowl invitation.

North Carolina, with only one victory and seven defeats before Saturday, battled the Blue Devils on even terms through three quarters. Both teams had scoring thrusts thrown back repeatedly before Duke sent fullback Dave (Red) Burch crashing for a touchdown early in the fourth period.

The Tar Heels rallied fiercely and drove the kickoff to the Duke eight. But frustration again hit them and on fourth down, end John Schroeder dropped a pass in the end zone.

With the clock running out, North Carolina's defense—magnificent all afternoon — throttled Duke's runs and forced a punt. Then the Tar Heels took only eight plays to sweep 43 yards for the tying touchdown.

The big gainer was a 20-yard pass from quarterback Farris to Schroeder on the identical play that Schroeder bobbled in the end zone. Elliott contributed a seven yard plunge and Farris runs for four, four and two yards. On fourth down, Farris ran to the left then dived and somer-saulted over the wall of blue - shirted tacklers.

It was Schroeder who had blocked Bill Reynolds' placement for a point after Duke's touchdown early in the action-packed fourth period.

Duke's score came swiftly after a 54-yard punt return by halfback Mark Leggett on the last play of the third period. With Burch carrying most of the heavy load, the Blue Devils crunched 41 yards and Burch burst the middle for two yards and the score.

Reynolds earlier had attempted two field goals when Duke got within striking range, but a 27-yarder was wide and a 40-yarder was short.

The North Carolina victory gave sister North Carolina State a crack at sharing the Atlantic Coast Conference championship with Duke, but the Wolfpack's chance was spoiled by an 8-8 tie with South Carolina. Duke, with one more game, has a 7-2 record and Saturday's loss was the first ACC defeat for the Blue Devils. N. C. State had lost only to Duke in the ACC.

WITH DEL WEBB

O'Malley To Talk Money Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodger owner Walter O'Malley—who recently said an American League team would "wreck havo" in Los Angeles—is expected to get together Monday with a member of the wrecking crew.

Del Webb, the contractor the Dodgers hired to build the Coliseum's leftfield screen, is in town to see about getting some indirect use out of his curious creation.

Webb, besides being a contractor, is co-owner of the New York Yankees, who would play in the Coliseum if the new American League club here could arrange to share the stadium with the Dodgers.

The Coliseum may be one thing Webb and O'Malley talk about. But the primary topic seems to be money. And Webb is here to find out for the American League how much.

O'Malley hasn't said so outright, but if he has to share the territory with another club he presumably would like to share some of his expenses as well.

The Dodgers paid $450,000 in indeminities to the Pacific Coast League when they took over the territory.

They paid $250,000 to have the Coliseum remodeled for baseball. (Some of it they got back in a rebate from the Coliseum.)

The Dodgers might not only suggest splitting the indemnity costs but also the cost of getting the Coliseum in shape for baseball (even if the shape is a little weird).

Actually, the Coliseum commission decides who uses the stadium, and Coliseum Manager Bill Nicholas has said there's room for two baseball tenants. But the American League undoubtedly would like to establish joint tenancy on a friendly basis.

If O'Malley really had a choice of where to put the new American League club, he might suggest an eminently suitable spot would be about 2,000 miles away.

And if the portly Dodger president intended to hide his dismay at the prospect of competing for the Los Angeles baseball buck, he hardly proved himself a master of concealment.

Early in the discussion of whether the American League should move in, O'Malley said it was up to the public to decide whether it wanted another ball club. He said he didn't think he could stop it if the people wanted it.

Then, when the American League announced it was not only coming but coming almost overnight, O'Malley was somewhat less gracious.

"The Dodgers, in making a schedule, have carefully had in mind the prior rights of the colleges, the professional sports and the civic events here," O'Malley said. "Another full baseball schedule would wreak havoc, in my opinion, and I am sure the American League will not want to offend these earlier settlers and their fans.

"... We expected American League baseball eventually on the West Coast. We had suggested such fine cities as Seattle and San Diego.

"As to Los Angeles itself, we have previously said that we had hoped to get our own problems in pioneering the territory and building our stadium behind us before the relatives moved in."

Seven Experts To Pick All-SEC Football Team

ATLANTA (AP) — Seven football experts will gather here Tuesday to select the all-Southeastern Conference team for The Associated Press.

The team will be announced Nov. 30.

Board members will also make their final recommendations during the meeting here for the 1960 all-America team.

Shockers Claim Valley's Throne With 34-6 Win

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—The University of Wichita wrapped up the Missouri Valley Conference football title Saturday with a 34-6 victory over North Texas State.

The Shockers, who have won seven of their nine games, took a 14-0 lead at the half and added three more touchdowns before the Texans were able to score in the final period.

Mallory, from Summit, N.J., opened the scoring in the second quarter with a two-yard touchdown plunge.

Another touchdown was made by quarterback Dick Johnson, who hit five out of six passes for a total of 114 yards. He scored the second touchdown of the game, going over on a one-yard keeper play after the Shockers had made 88 yards in eight plays.

Miami Redskins Take Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—Miami of Ohio's Redskins nursed a four-point lead through the second half Saturday to down Cincinnati 10-6 in the 65th meeting of these Ohio football rivals.

The victory margin was provided by end Bob Jencks, who kicked a 37-yard field goal and a point after touchdown.

Miss. College Routs Mexico By 40-0 Score

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The Mississippi College Choctaws scored in every period in rolling to a 40-0 victory over an outmanned University of Mexico football team Friday night.

Quarterback Alton Greenlea burst off tackle for a 54-yard scoring sprint in the first quarter and back Tony Alexander pitched in with a 62-yard romp into the end zone in the third period.

Kicking specialist Paul Pounds back Edgar Simpson each scored twice, Allen on one-yard keep plays each time and Simpson on short plunges.

Kicking specialist Paul Pounds converted with a placement after the second and fifth touchdowns and the ball over after the final for a two-point conversion.

The Mexicon team was unable to contain the Choctaw offense directed by the southerners' two fine quarterbacks, Allen and Greenlea.

Sulphur To Play Mississippi 11

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Laurel and Sulphur, La., high school football teams were chosen Saturday to play in the annual Shrimp Bowl here Dec. 2.

Announcement of the selection was made at Lake Charles, La., by Yank Barhanovich, director of the post-season event.

Triple-A Sulphur, coached by Jack Donald, has a 6-3-1 record and has completed its season.

Coach Barney Poole's Big Eight Laurel team is 7-2 and meets Hattiesburg Thursday in the season finale.

Geronimo To Appear Here Monday Night

Lock the doors and hold on to your hair — Geronimo is coming!

Chief Geronimo, a 240 - pound Indian who wrestles rough, will go after Ray Andrews' scalp in half of a double main event card at Roll-Arena, formerly B&B Arena, Monday night.

Also set to appear is Farmer Jones, the country boy who keeps a pig for company. The Farmer will meet bad Mexican Carlos Mendoza in the other half of the double main.

Jim LaRock and veteran villain Al Massey will trade holds in the evening's first bout, a 15-minute, one-fall affair.

Andrews, the Scottish champion, is expected to have his hands full with Geronimo, a redskin whose talents are not confined to Indian hand wrestling. Promoter Ralph Fox says Geronimo has a reputation in the wrestling game to match that of his namesake, the famous Apache chieftain whose exploits have been dramatized in movies more than Billy The Kid's.

Farmer Jones will be making his first appearance locally in several years. The rustic wrestler, whose idea of getting dressed up is to put on a clean pair of overalls, sometimes brings along his pet pig to his matches.

The two main events will each have hour time limits with two falls to win.

TALLIES TWICE

Mason Sparks Greenies Over Vanderbilt, 20 To 0

By RUSS DALEY
United Press International

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Halfback Tom Mason, the Southeastern Conference scoring leader, tallied two touchdowns Saturday as he led Tulane to a surprisingly easy 20-0 win over Vanderbilt.

It was the first conference win for Tulane since the Greenies whipped Alabama during the tag-end of the 1958 season. Vanderbilt hasn't won a conference game this year, and hasn't scored on a conference team since its opening game with Georgia.

Mason's two touchdowns give him 72 points so far this season with one more game to go.

Tulane scored the first time it got the ball and was never in serious trouble. The Greenies did not throw a single pass during the first half and only threw three during the game, completing two of them.

Vandy's only offensive weapon was the passing of sophomore quarterback Hank Lesesne who several times sparked Vandy drives into Tulane territory.

Mason was the big gun in the Tulane attack, but sat on the bench much of the second half.

Mason and fullback Bill Ary teamed up to lead Tulane to a score the first time the Green Wave got the ball.

Tulane moved 80 yards in 14 plays with Mason going one-yard for the score. Between them Mason and Ary accounted for 77 yards in the march.

Tulane got another score early in the second period after starting on its own 30-yard line. Just as in the first drive, quarterback Phil Nugent stuck strictly to a ground game with Mason doing much of the work. Mason got his second touchdown of the day on a three-yard run after it looked as if he were trapped behind the line of scrimmage.

The deepest Vanderbilt moved into Tulane territory in the first half was to the 20.

Tulane turned a Vanderbilt fumble into a break for its third score in the third period. Vandy halfback Ed Creagh called for a fair catch on a Tulane punt, then fumbled on his own 30 and Tulane center Larry Thompson pounced on the ball. The touchdown was scored by Ary on a three-yard run.

Lesesne's passes kept the crowd on edge during the final period as Vandy twice drove deep into Tulane territory, but could not score.

Lesesne attempted 35 passes, a Vanderbilt record for number of passes attempted, and completed 17 of them. Mason gained 86 yards rushing, 71 of which came in the first half.

Score by Periods

Tulane	7 7 6 0—20
Vanderbilt	0 0 0 0—0

Scoring:

Minnesota Rolls Over Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Minnesota's Rose Bowl-conscious Gophers captured a share of the Big Ten football championship by rolling past fired up Wisconsin 26-7 Saturday on touchdown drives in the first and final periods.

Knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Purdue last week, the Gophers managed a Western conference tie with Iowa by throwing up a tight defense against Wisconsin in a traditional windup before 55,576 fans. Minnesota and Iowa finished with 5-1 records in Big Ten play and are top prospects for a Rose Bowl bid.

The Gophers, rated No. 4 in the national rankings, struck for touchdowns the first two times they had possession of the ball and then, taking no chances, played conservatively until the fourth period when they increased the victory margin with two more scores.

A recovery of a freak fumble on which the Wisconsin center snapped the ball high into the air as his quarterback fell back too soon set up the first Minnesota touchdown. Sandy Stephens, the Gophers' sensational junior quarterback, capped a 31-yard move by faking a hand-off at the 8 and then skirting left end for the tally.

Minutes later, Minnesota launched a 58-yard scoring advance. On the 13th play, Stephens bulled one yard into the end zone on the heels of All-America guard candidate Tom Brown.

Wisconsin refused to quit and took charge of the play. The Badgers scored in the second period on a 15-yard pass play triggered by Ron Miller to end Hank Derleth. Erv Kunesh booted the extra point to make the score 12-7.

After being outplayed through the second and third periods when they failed to pick up a first down and had to halt two scoring bids by Wisconsin, the Gophers were rallied by Stephens in the finale.

The victory gave Minnesota an over-all record of 8-1 as it gained its first Big Ten laurels since 1941. Wisconsin wound up in last place in the conference with 2-5 in an unsuccessful attempt to defend its championship. The Badgers were 4-5 against all opponents.

Junction City In Playoff For District Title

JUNCTION CITY, Ark. (Special) — Junction City and Mineral Springs meet in a district 7-B playoff Wednesday, Nov. 23, at the Stamps High School Stadium at o'clock.

The two schools agreed to meet on the neutral field in anticipation of drawing a better crowd from both schools.

Mineral Springs won the west division district crown, going into last Friday night's game against Deriks with a 9-1 record. The only loss was to class A Ashdown by a 13-14 count. Coach Herman McAlister, Mineral Springs coach for 11 years, has three good backs in Stanley Mitchell, Dale Erwin and Larry Thornton and the two outstanding defensive performers are Thornton, a defensive tackle, and linebacker Vernon Collins.

The local Dragons have compiled a 7-1-1 record, losing only to Bernice, La., 19-7, and being tied by Stamps, 0-0. Brothers Bob and Bruce McKinnon have led the local offense.

Bruce has gained 958 yards rushing for a 6.3 average while Bob has picked up 723 yards for a 5.8 average.

Alvin Kelly, a 160 - pound senior, has probably been the most consistent lineman for Junction City while Clarence Owens (180) has been the most durable performer, missing only about five minutes of playing time this fall.

Furman Barely Trips Davidson

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Furman scored twice in the last five minutes Saturday to pull out a 22-21 Southern Conference football victory over Davidson.

Furman struck quickly after trailing 21-7. Quarterback Billy Canty and end Bill Newman clicked on a 78-yard scoring pass and Canty passed to halfback Kemp for two points with 4:44 to play.

Kemp raced three yards for the touchdown that tied the score and halfback Shelly Sutton kicked the game-winning point.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TOO BUSY?

Inter-Loop Swap Session To Get Underway Dec. 15

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball swap market opens Monday with inter-league trading until Dec. 15, but the American League appears preoccupied with stocking its two new clubs from its talent pool.

The inter-league trading period, during which no waivers are required, was inaugurated last year with great anticipation. At the end of the period, 10 deals had been made involving 33 players.

Billy O'Dell and Billy Loes went from Baltimore to San Francisco for Jackie Brandt and two others in one of the swaps that appeared most important at the time. Another "big one" found Cincinnati shipping Johnny Temple to Cleveland for Cal McLish, Billy Martin and Gordon Coleman. Perhaps the best of them all was the deal that gave Pittsburgh's its much-needed catcher, Hal Smith, from Kansas City for Dick Hall, Ken Hamlin and Hank Foiles.

If you had to pick a man most likely to be swapped to the other league in 1960 it probably would be Johnny Antonelli of the San Francisco Giants. However, Antonelli is very close to Al Dark, the Giants' new manager, and may yet remain with the club.

Roy Hamey, new general manager of the New York Yankees, has been discussing Antonelli with Chub Feeney, the Giants' vice president, for several weeks. The Giants insistence on a Yankee catcher, preferably Johnny Blanchard, has held up the deal. The Yanks are looking for another starting lefty to team with Whitey Ford and the Giants are desperate for a left - handed hitting catcher.

The St. Louis Cardinal reportedly have Bill White or Joe Cunningham on the market, hoping to land a shortstop or a center fielder with power.

Baltimore is looking for outfield strength and is willing to give up some of its young pitching for the right man. Paul Richards, signed for a new term as manager of the Orioles, is convinced the club needs more power if it is to dislodge the Yankees as American League champs.

Naturally, Frank Lane will be making the weeks spin at Cleveland. Nobody is untouchable with the Indians' general manager, and he might even deal a star like Vic Power, fancy fielding and consistent hitting first baseman, to get a solid third baseman and relief help.

Milwaukee has been looking to the American League for two years. Once again general manager Johnny McHale is talking with the Yanks about infield help for a pitcher. Braves' shortstop Johnny Logan also is available. Both Hamey and Ralph Houk, the new Yankee manager, are cautious about making their first move.

Pittsburgh appears in a good spot to stand pat with the possible exception of bench strength or another starting pitcher. Los Angeles might be ready to clean house with some of the older men, like Junior Gilliam, Gil Hodges, Duke Snider, to make way for the Davis boys and Charley Smith.

The Phillies need everything, especially power, and will let you have right-handers Jim Owens and Dick Farrell. Cincinnati would give up McLish or Joe Nuxhall, a lefty, for a hard hitting third baseman, although the new general manager, Bill Dewitt, may have other ideas.

Detroit's maneuvers must await naming of a new manager, but the Tigers are hurting at first base, shortstop, catcher and on the mound. Second baseman Frank Bolling might be available.

Chicago White Sox are concentrating on some catching help for Sherm Lollar and bullpen strength. Pitcher Bob Shaw can be had. The Sox could use a man like McLish to help the pitching staff with Gerry Staley 40 years old and Turk Lown having had a bad year.

Calvin Griffith, leading his Washington club into a new operation at Minneapolis-St. Paul, has marked only Jim Lemon and Harmon Killebrew as "untouchables." Bob Allison might be available for suitable help in the catching and pitching departments.

Kansas City must tighten up in so many spots that even a Bud Daley might be available.

Boston is on the prowl for second base - shortstop help, convinced that the pitching is good enough. Bill Monbouquette is listed out of reach but the others, including batting champion Pete Runnels, could be had for the proper deal.

TUNING UP

SEC Cage Coaches Teams Doing Well

By VERNON BUTLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Progress reports indicated Saturday that most Southeastern Conference basketball coaches believe their teams are tuning up satisfactorily for the 1960-61 season.

Opening games come in less than two weeks, but the first conference games are more than a month away. SEC squads have been working out for more than a month while football has been occuping the attention of the fans.

The coaches agreed that Kentucky, Georgia Tech, Auburn and Vanderbilt should be among the leaders this year along with Mississippi and Tulane. Mississippi State and Georgia offer good darkhorse possibilities, but State is handicapped by Coach Babe McCarthy's illness. Hepatitis floored the young coach who guided the Maroons to the title in 1959 and he may miss part of the championship race in '61.

Auburn, 1960 winner with the celebrated "seven dwarfs", is expected to be tough again despite the loss of chief playmaker Henry Hart. The Tigers will have more height this time "but our bigger boys lack experience," according to Coach Joel Eaves.

"We need to develop a leader to take Hart's place," Eaves said.

Auburn expects assistance from 6-foot-2 sophomore Billy Tinker, who, Eaves says, "can be a big help to us outside or playing in close."

Kentucky has missed the title two years in a row, a real rarity in the SEC, and Coach Adolph Rupp isn't certain whether he will have a great team or a poor one.

"Our offense hasn't been consistent, and I just don't know where we are," Rupp explained. "Our defense may be ahead of the offense because we are coaching differently this year. In the past we have never worked on defense until our offense was going perfectly. This time we have been on defense since the first week."

Rupp is trying to find a potent mixture of seniors, sophomores and junior college transfers.

"We should field our tallest lineup in five years," a cautiously optimistic John Hyder at Georgia Tech reports. The Yellow Jackets finished second to Auburn last year. Kentucky was third.

"We could have a good team this season," said Coach Harbin Lawson of Georgia, "but I am going to reserve judgment until we play some games." The Bulldogs finished eight last year with a 6-8 mark.

Mississippi and Tulane tied for fourth place last season with 8-6 records in conference play. Ole Miss Coach Bonnie Graham said he was satisfied with early progress by his Rebels who have four solid returnees in Jack Waters, Bill White, Sterling Ainsworth and Larry Wagster.

Tennessee and Vanderbilt, who tied for sixth last year with disappointing 7-7 records, expect several returning veterans and a promising group of sophomores to better their chances of making a run at the championship.

Alabama and Florida have new coaches. Norman Sloan has replaced veteran John Mauer at Florida and Hayden Riley has taken over from Dr. Eugene Lambert at Alabama. LSU is also rebuilding.

Lehigh Laces Lafayette, 26-3

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—Lehigh uncorked a powerful ground attack and rolled to an easy 26-3 fotoball victory over Lafayette Saturday.

It was the 96th renewal of the nation's longest football series, and Lehigh's 33rd victory against 59 defeats and 4 ties.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TOO BUSY?

Inter-Loop Swap Session To Get Underway Dec. 15

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball swap market opens Monday with inter-league trading until Dec. 15, but the American League appears preoccupied with stocking its two new clubs from its talent pool.

The inter-league trading period, during which no waivers are required, was inaugurated last year with great anticipation. At the end of the period, 10 deals had been made involving 33 players.

Billy O'Dell and Billy Loes went from Baltimore to San Francisco for Jackie Brandt and two others in one of the swaps that appeared most important at the time. Another "big one" found Cincinnati shipping Johnny Temple to Cleveland for Cal McLish, Billy Martin and Gordon Coleman. Perhaps the best of them all was the deal that gave Pittsburgh's its much-needed catcher, Hal Smith, from Kansas City for Dick Hall, Ken Hamlin and Hank Foiles.

If you had to pick a man most like'y to be swapped to the other league in 1960 it probably would be Johnny Antonelli of the San Francisco Giants. However, Antonelli is very close to Al Dark, the Giants' new manager, and may yet remain with the club.

Roy Hamey, new general manager of the New York Yankees, has been discussing Antonelli with Chub Feeney, the Giants' vice president, for several weeks. The Giants insistence on a Yankee catcher, preferably Johnny Blanchard, has held up the deal. The Yanks are looking for another starting lefty to team with Whitey Ford and the Giants are desperate for a left - handed hitting catcher.

The St. Louis Cardinal reportedly have Bill White or Joe Cunningham on the market, hoping to land a shortstop or a center fielder with power.

Baltimore is looking for outfield strength and is willing to give up some of its young pitching for the right man. Paul Richards, signed for a new term as manager of the Orioles, is convinced the club needs more power if it is to dislodge the Yankees as American League champs.

Naturally, Frank Lane will be making the weeks spin at Cleveland. Nobody is untouchable with the Indians' general manager, and he might even deal a star like Vic Power, fancy fielding and consistent hitting first baseman, to get a solid third baseman and relief help.

Milwaukee has been looking to the American League for two years. Once again general manager Johnny McHale is talking with the Yanks about infield help for a pitcher. Braves' shortstop Johnny Logan also is available. Both Hamey and Ralph Houk, the new Yankee manager, are cautious about making their first move.

Pittsburgh appears in a good spot to stand pat with the possible exception of bench strength or another starting pitcher. Los Angeles might be ready to clean house with some of the older men, like Junior Gilliam, Gil Hodges, Duke Snider, to make way for the Davis boys and Charley Smith.

The Phillies need everything, especially power, and will let you have right-handers Jim Owens and Dick Farrell. Cincinnati would give up McLish or Joe Nuxhall, a lefty, for a hard hitting third baseman, although the new general manager, Bill Dewitt, may have other ideas.

Detroit's maneuvers must await naming of a new manager, but the Tigers are hurting at first base, shortstop, catcher and on the mound. Second baseman Frank Bolling might be available.

Chicago White Sox are concentrating on some catching help for Sherm Lollar and bullpen strength. Pitcher Bob Shaw can be had. The Sox could use a man like McLish to help the pitching staff with Gerry Staley 40 years old and Turk Lown having had a bad year.

Calvin Griffith, leading his Washington club into a new operation at Minneapolis-St. Paul, has marked only Jim Lemon and Harmon Killebrew as "untouchables." Bob Allison might be available for suitable help in the catching and pitching departments.

Kansas City must tighten up in so many spots that even a Bud Daley might be available.

Boston is on the prowl for second base - shortstop help, convinced that the pitching is good enough. Bill Monbouquette is listed out of reach but the others, including batting champion Pete Runnels, could be had for the proper deal.

TUNING UP

SEC Cage Coaches Teams Doing Well

By VERNON BUTLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Progress reports indicated Saturday that most Southeastern Conference basketball coaches believe their teams are tuning up satisfactorily for the 1960-61 season.

Opening games come in less than two weeks, but the first conference games are more than a month away. SEC squads have been working out for more than a month while football has been occuping the attention of the fans.

The coaches agreed that Kentucky, Georgia Tech, Auburn and Vanderbilt should be among the leaders this year along with Mississippi and Tulane. Mississippi State and Georgia offer good darkhorse possibilities, but State is handicapped by Coach Babe McCarthy's illness. Hepatitis floored the young coach who guided the Maroons to the title in 1959 and he may miss part of the championship race in '61.

Auburn, 1960 winner with the celebrated "seven dwarfs", is expected to be tough again despite the loss of chief playmaker Henry Hart. The Tigers will have more height this time "but our bigger boys lack experience," according to Coach Joel Eaves.

"We need to develop a leader to take Hart's place," Eaves said.

Auburn expects assistance from 6-foot-2 sophomore Billy Tinker, who, Eaves says, "can be a big help to us outside or playing in close."

Kentucky has missed the title two years in a row, a real rarity in the SEC, and Coach Adolph Rupp isn't certain whether he will have a great team or a poor one.

"Our offense hasn't been consistent, and I just don't know where we are," Rupp explained. "Our defense may be ahead of the offense because we are coaching differently this year. In the past we have never worked on defense until our offense was going perfectly. This time we have been on defense since the first week."

Rupp is trying to find a potent mixture of seniors, sophomores and junior college transfers.

"We should field our tallest lineup in five years," a cautiously optimistic John Hyder at Georgia Tech reports. The Yellow Jackets finished second to Auburn last year. Kentucky was third.

"We could have a good team this season," said Coach Harbin Lawson of Georgia, "but I am going to reserve judgment until we play some games." The Bulldogs finished eight last year with a 6-8 mark.

Mississippi and Tulane tied for fourth place last season with 8-6 records in conference play. Ole Miss Coach Bonnie Graham said he was satisfied with early progress by his Rebels who have four solid returnees in Jack Waters, Bill White, Sterling Ainsworth and Larry Wagster.

Tennessee and Vanderbilt, who tied for sixth last year with disappointing 7-7 records, expect several returning veterans and a promising group of sophomores to better their chances of making a run at the championship.

Alabama and Florida have new coaches. Norman Sloan has replaced veteran John Mauer at Florida and Hayden Riley has taken over from Dr. Eugene Lambert at Alabama. LSU is also rebuilding.

Lehigh Laces Lafayette, 26-3

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—Lehigh uncorked a powerful ground attack and rolled to an easy 26-3 fotoball victory over Lafayette Saturday.

It was the 96th renewal of the nation's longest football series, and Lehigh's 33rd victory against 59 defeats and 4 ties.

TALLIES TWICE

Mason Sparks Greenies Over Vanderbilt, 20 To 0

By RUSS DALEY
United Press International

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Halfback Tom Mason, the Southeastern Conference scoring leader, tallied two touchdowns Saturday as he led Tulane to a surprisingly easy 20-0 win over Vanderbilt.

It was the first conference win for Tulane since the Greenies whipped Alabama during the tag-end of the 1958 season. Vanderbilt hasn't won a conference game this year, and hasn't scored on a conference team since its opening game with Georgia.

Mason's two touchdowns give him 72 points so far this season with one more game to go.

Tulane scored the first time it got the ball and was never in serious trouble. The Greenies did not throw a single pass during the first half and only threw three during the game, completing two of them.

Vandy's only offensive weapon was the passing of sophomore quarterback Hank Lesesne who several times sparked Vandy drives into Tulane territory.

Mason was the big gun in the Tulane attack, but sat on the bench much of the second half.

Mason and fullback Bill Ary teamed up to lead Tulane to a score the first time the Green Wave got the ball.

Tulane moved 80 yards in 14 plays with Mason going one-yard for the score. Between them Mason and Ary accounted for 77 yards in the march.

Tulane got another score early in the second period after starting on its own 30-yard line. Just as in the first drive, quarterback Phil Nugent stuck strictly to a ground game with Mason doing much of the work. Mason got his second touchdown of the day on a three-yard run after it looked as if he were trapped behind the line of scrimmage.

The deepest Vanderbilt moved into Tulane territory in the first half was to the 20.

Tulane turned a Vanderbilt fumble into a break for its third score in the third period. Vandy halfback Ed Creagh called for a fair catch on a Tulane punt, then fumbled on his own 30 and Tulane center Larry Thompson pounced on the ball. The touchdown was scored by Ary on a three-yard run.

Lesesne's passes kept the crowd on edge during the final period as Vandy twice drove deep into Tulane territory, but could not score.

Lesesne attempted 35 passes, a Vanderbilt record for number of passes attempted, and completed 17 of them. Mason gained 86 yards rushing, 71 of which came in the first half.

Score by Periods

Vanderbilt	0	0	0	0	— 0

Scoring:
TUL—Mason 1 run (Miller kick)
TUL—Mason 3 run (Miller kick)
TUL—Ary 3 run (kick failed)

26 TO 7

Minnesota Rolls Over Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Minnesota's Rose Bowl-conscious Gophers captured a share of the Big Ten football championship by rolling past fired up Wisconsin 26-7 Saturday on touchdown drives in the first and final periods.

Knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Purdue last week, the Gophers managed a Western conference tie with Iowa by throwing up a tight defense against Wisconsin in a traditional windup before 55,576 fans. Minnesota and Iowa finished with 5-1 records in Big Ten play and are top prospects for a Rose Bowl bid.

The Gophers, rated No. 4 in the national rankings, struck for touchdowns the first two times they had possession of the ball and then, taking no chances, played conservatively until the fourth period when they increased the victory margin with two more scores.

A recovery of a freak fumble on which the Wisconsin center snapped the ball high into the air as his quarterback fell back too soon set up the first Minnesota touchdown. Sandy Stephens, the Gophers' sensational junior quarterback, capped a 31-yard move by faking a hand-off at the 8 and then skirting left end for the tally.

Minutes later, Minnesota launched a 58-yard scoring advance. On the 13th play, Stephens bulled one yard into the end zone on the heels of All-America guard candidate Tom Brown.

Wisconsin refused to quit and took charge of the play. The Badgers scored in the second period on a 15-yard pass play triggered by Ron Miller to end Hank Derleth. Erv Kunesh booted the extra point to make the score 12-7.

After being outplayed through the second and third periods when they failed to pick up a first down and had to halt two scoring bids by Wisconsin, the Gophers were rallied by Stephens in the finale.

The victory gave Minnesota an over-all record of 8-1 as it gained its first Big Ten laurels since 1941. Wisconsin wound up in last place in the conference with 2-5 in an unsuccessful attempt to defend its championship. The Badgers were 4-5 against all opponents.

Junction City In Playoff For District Title

JUNCTION CITY, Ark. (Special) — Junction City and Mineral Springs meet in a district 7-B playoff Wednesday, Nov. 23, at the Stamps High School Stadium at o'clock.

The two schools agreed to meet on the neutral field in anticipation of drawing a better crowd from both schools.

Mineral Springs won the west division district crown, going into last Friday night's game against Deriks with a 9-1 record. The only loss was to class A Ashdown by a 18-14 count. Coach Herman McAlister, Mineral Springs coach for 11 years, has three good backs in Stanley Mitchell, Dale Erwin and Larry Thornton and the two outstanding defensive performers are Thornton, a defensive tackle, and linebacker Vernon Collins.

The local Dragons have compiled a 7-1-1 record, losing only to Bernice, La., 19-7, and being tied by Stamps, 0-0. Brothers Bob and Bruce McKinnon have led the local offense.

Bruce has gained 958 yards rushing for a 6.3 average while Bob has picked up 723 yards for a 5.8 average.

Alvin Kelly, a 160 - pound senior, has probably been the most consistent lineman for Junction City while Clarence Owens (180) has been the most durable performer, missing only about five minutes of playing time this fall.

Furman Barely Trips Davidson

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Furman scored twice in the last five minutes Saturday to pull out a 22-21 Southern Conference football victory over Davidson.

Furman struck quickly after trailing 21-7. Quarterback Billy Canty and end Bill Newman clicked on a 78-yard scoring pass and Canty passed to halfback Kemp for two points with 4:44 to play.

Kemp raced three yards for the touchdown that tied the score and halfback Shelly Sutton kicked the game-winning point.

Buckeyes Top Michigan On TD In Fourth

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Battering Bob Ferguson broke up o tight defensive duel with a 17-yard fourth-quarter touchdown run Saturday to give Ohio State a 7-0 victory over Michigan in the season's final for both Big Ten teams.

Held at bay by a tenacious Wolverine defense, the Bucks called on their most potent weapon as the final session started. Ferguson, the league's leading scorer and ground-gained, carried four straight times for 37 yards, including the pay-off punch.

The Bucks, battling for their seventh win in nine starts this season, recovered a fumble and intercepted two passes after Ferguson had scored to save the conquest and shut out the Wolverines for only the second time in 23 years.

Coach Woody Hayes stuck to his quarterbock-fullback offense all the way. Bill Wentz was the only halfback to carry the ball while quarterback Tom Matte rushed 25 times for 41 yards and Ferguson 16 for 80.

For the season, Ferguson has 853 yards rushing in 160 tries, and Matte 682 yards in 161 attempts. Motte also completed two of seven passes Saturday for 40 yards, giving him 50 completions in 95 tries for 737 yards and eight touchdowns this year.

Michigan won everything but the game. The Wolverines outrushed the Ohioans 132 yards to 128, despite the fact quarterback Dave Glinka was thrown for 44 yards in losses. The invaders also had an 86 to 40 edge through the air as Glinka completed 10 of 17.

The victory gove Ohio a 7-2 record for the season and Michigan 5-4. Both teams came back from dismal losing seasons in 1959.

A crowd of 83,107 in Ohio Stadium boosted the season's five-game attendance to 413,385, exceeding the previous record set in 1953 by 15,693.

OHIO STATE quarterback Tom Matte (41) has his feet knocked out from under him by Michigan guard Dick Syring as Matte is thrown for a four-yard loss in the third quarter. The play was an end sweep. Ohio State won, 7-0. (AP Wirephoto)

Fraser Beats U.S. Star In Straight Sets

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — America's No. 1 Davis Cup hope, Barry MacKay, was beaten in straight sets by Australian ace Neale Fraser for the singles championship of the New South Wales Tennis Tournament Saturday, but the U.S. camp remained optimistic.

"We're not too unhappy," said David Freed, U.S. Davis Cup captain. "In fact, I think we did very well. We've been here only two weeks, and this is our first tournament. And we've always done [illegible]ly in these championships.

"I [illegible]ught Fraser was much the sharper player today. But I consider it an accommplishment that Barry got into the final at this stage of training."

MacKay, the Dayton, Ohio, veteran of Davis Cup play, admitted he was "bitterly disappointed at losing," but added:

"I'm still optimistic about the Davis Cup. Tell them in the States that we're working hard and we'll be ready."

The U.S. team leaves Sunday for Brisbane, where it meets the Philippines in the Cup interzone final. The best-of-5 match series opens Tuesday. The Philippine team passed up this tournament in favor of individual practice.

If they get past that test, as expected, the Yanks move on to Perth for a tougher showdown against Italy for the right to challenge Australia for the Cup here Dec. 26-28.

Fraser fairly bubbled with enthusiasm after his victory over MacKay. "If I can play like that," he said, "I know I can stay in a match."

You might say MacKay shocked the Aussie ace into form. Barry won his first service to 30, broke Fraser at the first duece and carried his next two services to a love 4-1 break against the Wimbledon and U.S. champion.

In a brilliant burst, MacKay won 10 straight points on the second, third and fourth games of the first set.

But the jolt failed to floor Fraser. Instead, the lean left-hander came back tremendously, serving with startling speed and accuracy that turned MacKay's fast start into a fadeout.

Not once was MacKay again able to get to duece against Fraser's serve.

MacKay conceded that it was Fraser's snap-back, when he broke Barry as the Yank led 4-2 in the first set, that proved the turning point.

"That made all the difference," said MacKay. "When you have a break on a good service, you can't afford to be broken yourself. It might have been different had I held that service and kept the pressure on him.

Purdue Tramples Indiana, 35 To 6

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers mauled Indiana 35-6 Saturday in their ancient football series for the Old Oaken Bucket, thus keeping the trophy for the 13th straight year.

Purdue senior quarterback Bernie Allen closed out a brilliant career by passing for two touchdowns, kicking three extra points and running a two-point conversion. He also tried a 29-yard field goal but missed.

The Boilermakers scored in every period and got two touchdowns in the third quarter. Allen hit Willie Jones for a 16-yard TD pass in the first quarter and tossed 11 yards to Dave Miller for another in the second.

Indiana averted a shutout on Woody Moore's 13-yard pass to Nate Ramsey in the final minutes. A pass, Moore to Will Scott for 48 yards, set up the touchdown.

FREE-FOR-ALL ENDS GAME

Vols, Kentucky Deadlock, 10-10

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Clark Mayfield's 26-yard field goal in the final period gave slow-starting Kentucky a 10-10 tie with Tennessee Saturday in a game that ended with a five-minute free-for-all by players and fans for the ball.

The Tennessee Vols, who haven't beaten Kentucky since 1956, struck swiftly and led at halftime, 10-0. But the Wildcats roared back on the deadly passing of quarterback Jerry Elsaman, scoring on a 94-yard march in the third period and then catching up with Mayfield's field goal.

The Tennessee single-wing attack was highly effective in the first half. The Vols marched 53 yards to the Kentucky nine in the first period. But the Cats' defense stiffened and end Cotton Letner put the Vols in the lead with a 28-yard field goal.

Junior tailback Glenn Glass guided the Vols to a second period touchdown which came after a drive of 57 yards. Glass plunged over right tackle with seven minutes left in the half and Letner kicked the extra point.

After failing to mark a first down in the first half the Cats, sparked by Elsaman, roared back.

The Kentucky drive featured passes to end Tom Hutchinson and halfback Jerry Steward, good for consistent gains.

The fighting at the end of the game erupted when Wildcat guard Jon Jurgens grabbed the ball and ran down the field. Jurgens tossed the ball to halfback Charles Sturgeon who headed for the Kentucky gate under the south part of the stadium.

Sturgeon was tackled by Tennessee end Marvin Phillips who came up with the ball.

A large crowd of fans gathered at the south end of the field, several of whom were swinging fists along with the players.

Tennessee piled up 14 first downs to 11 for Kentucky. Tennessee rushing yardage was 163 compared to 57 gained by the Wildcats.

Score by Periods

Tennessee	3	7	0	0	—10
Kentucky	0	0	7	3	—10

Scoring:
Tenn—FG Letner 28.
Tenn—Glass 1 run (Letner kick)
KY—Ransdell 2 run (Mayfield kick)

Halimi Willing To Meet Jofre

PARIS (AP)—Alphonse Halimi of France Saturday night said he is willing to meet Brazil's newly-crowned Eler Jofre for the undisputed world bantamweight boxing title—if the purse is right.

Halimi is the recognized champ in Europe and Britain since he out-pointed Ireland's Freddie Gilroy in London recently. Jofre won the U.S. National Boxing association's version of the title by knocking out Eloy Sanchez of Mexico in the sixth round at Los Angeles Friday night.

Ex-Ring Great Tom Gibbons Dies In Sleep

ST. PAUL (AP)—Thomas J. (Tommy) Gibbons, 69, onetime contender for the heavyweight boxing championship, died in his sleep at his home Friday.

His most famous fight was a July 4, 1923, battle with Jack Dempsey, then heavyweight champion, in Shelby, Mont. Gibbons lost, but was still on his feet at the end of the bout.

Gibbons was a big hearty man who kept his personal popularity to the end. He spent 10 years as a successful life insurance agent before becoming a county sheriff, a post he held for 24 years until retiring Jan. 1, 1959.

At the peak of his ring fame, after his famous fight with Dempsey, Gibbons deliberately turned down an offer of $100,000 for a return to the ring in order to save his health.

"I thought of my brother, Mike, blind in one eye. Harry Greb, blind in both eyes. I decided that maybe it was time to get out," said Gibbons in later years.

The fight at Shelby with Dempsey went 15 rounds.

As Gibbons told it, Dempsey hit him a terrific blow on the forehead in the first round that almost knocked him out.

"But I came out of it, and I really think I was even with him on points after ten. Then he got stronger, and I was in trouble near the end."

Gibbons got nothing out of the fight, which drew a disappointingly small crowd that paid $201,485. Dempsey, who was guaranteed $250,000, took all of the gate. However, the fame the fight brought to Gibbons launched him on his successful business and political career.

Deadline Set On Cage Entries

The Monroe Recreation Dept. has set a deadline of Wednesday on entries in their Recreation Basketball Program. At the present time only three teams have entered the City League and three more teams are needed if this league is to operate.

There is also an opening in the Ladies League and the Church and Junior League.

All of the Leagues will begin playing the week of Nov. 28. Anyone desiring to enter a team in any of the Recreation Leagues are urged to contact Jackie Neal at the Community Center, 113 Catalpa, FA 2-2170.

There will also be a meeting Monday night at 7:00 at the Community Center for anyone who is interested in officiating in the Recreation Basketball Program.

Buckeyes Top Michigan On TD In Fourth

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Battering Bob Ferguson broke up a tight defensive duel with a 17-yard fourth-quarter touchdown run Saturday to give Ohio State a 7-0 victory over Michigan in the season's final for both Big Ten teams.

Held at bay by a tenacious Wolverine defense, the Bucks called on their most potent weapon as the final session started. Ferguson, the league's leading scorer and ground-gained, carried four straight times for 37 yards, including the pay-off punch.

The Bucks, battling for their seventh win in nine starts this season, recovered a fumble and intercepted two passes after Ferguson had scored to save the conquest and shut out the Wolverines for only the second time in 23 years.

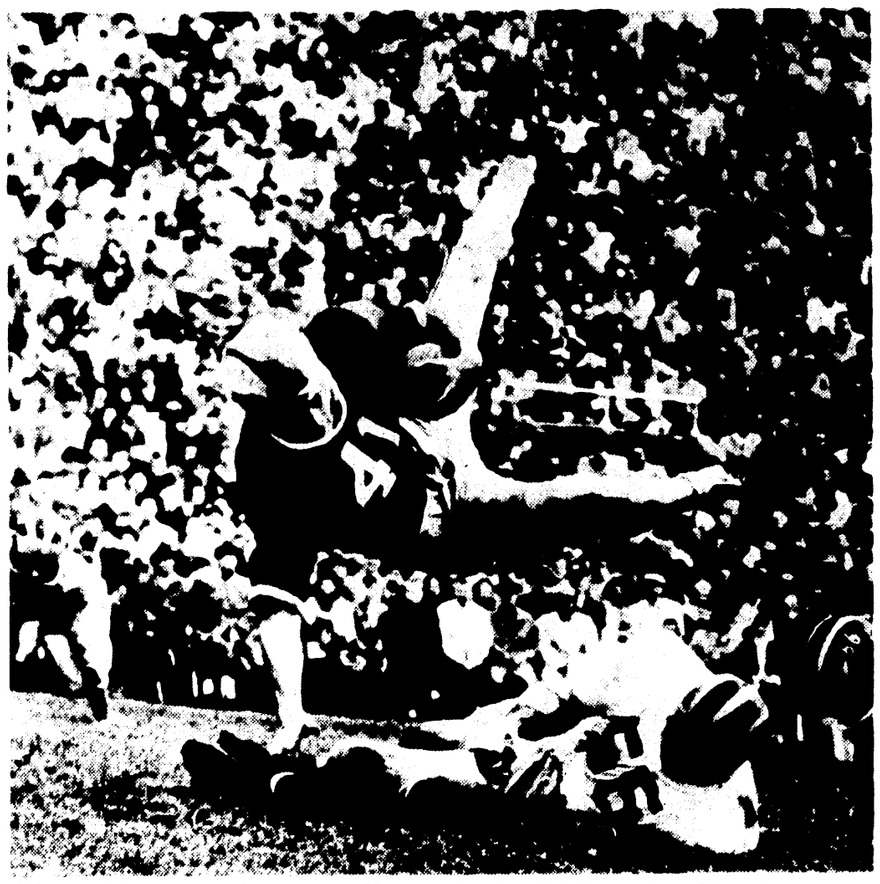

Coach Woody Hayes stuck to his quarterbock-fullback offense all the way. Bill Wentz was the only halfback to carry the ball while quarterback Tom Matte rushed 25 times for 41 yards and Ferguson 16 for 80.

For the season, Ferguson has 853 yards rushing in 160 tries, and Matte 682 yards in 161 attempts. Motte also completed two of seven passes Saturday for 40 yards, giving him 50 completions in 95 tries for 737 yards and eight touchdowns this year.

Michigan won everything but the game. The Wolvermes outrushed the Ohioans 132 yards to 128, despite the fact quarterback Dave Glinka was thrown for 44 yards in losses. The invaders also had an 86 to 40 edge through the air as Glinka completed 10 of 17.

The victory gove Ohio a 7-2 record for the season and Michigan 5-4. Both teams came back from dismal losing seasons in 1959.

A crowd of 83,107 in Ohio Stadium boosted the season's five-game attendance to 413,385, exceeding the previous record set in 1953 by 15,693.

OHIO STATE quarterback Tom Matte (41) has his feet knocked out from under him by Michigan guard Dick Syring as Matte is thrown for a four-yard loss in the third quarter. The play was an end sweep. Ohio State won, 7-0. (AP Wirephoto)

Fraser Beats U.S. Star In Straight Sets

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — America's No. 1 Davis Cup hope, Barry MacKay, was beaten in straight sets by Australian ace Neale Fraser for the singles championship of the New South Wales Tennis Tournament Saturday, but the U.S. camp remained optimistic.

"We're not too unhappy," said David Freed, U.S. Davis Cup captain. "In fact, I think we did very well. We've been here only two weeks, and this is our first tournament. And we've always done [illegible]ly in these championships.

"I thought Fraser was much the sharper player today. But I consider it an accommplishment that Barry got into the final at this stage of training."

MacKay, the Dayton, Ohio, veteran of Davis Cup play, admitted he was "bitterly disappointed at losing," but added:

"I'm still optimistic about the Davis Cup. Tell them in the States that we're working hard and we'll be ready."

The U.S. team leaves Sunday for Brisbane, where it meets the Philippines in the Cup interzone final. The best-of-5 match series opens Tuesday. The Philippine team passed up this tournament in favor of individual practice.

If they get past that test, as expected, the Yanks move on to Perth for a tougher showdown against Italy for the right to challenge Australia for the Cup here Dec. 26-26.

Fraser fairly bubbled with enthusiasm after his victory over MacKay. "If I can play like that," he said, "I know I can stay in a match."

You might say MacKay shocked the Aussie ace into form. Barry won his first service to 30, broke Fraser at the first duece and carried his next two services to a love 4-1 break against the Wimbledon and U.S. champion.

Not once was MacKay again able to get to duece against Fraser's serve.

MacKay conceded that it was Fraser's snap-back, when he broke Barry as the Yank led 4-2 in the first set, that proved the turning point.

"That made all the difference," said MacKay. "When you have a break on a good service, you can't afford to be broken yourself. It might have been different had I held that service and kept the pressure on him.

On Dit'

by Denise

This was, in Monroe, the week of the Follies. Neville auditorium was the place to see and be seen on Wednesday and Thursday night, when audiences were laughing at the revue presented by the Junior Charity League.

Preformers enjoy the sociability of participation as well as the knowledge that they are helping the League's worthy causes. Following the second performance, cast, crew, and committee members attended the traditional Follies' cabaret at the Paragon club.

Last night BESS and SOL COURTMAN invited a small group for a cocktail buffet at home. Bess, General Chairman of the Follies, was too hard pressed for time to go by the U. S. Mails, and handed out her clever invitations herself to committee chairman working on the show. White chrysanthemums centered the table where various dips and finger foods, highlighted by smothered crab meat and mushrooms in patty shells were served. Some fifteen couples attended.

Friday morning, following the "settling - up" meeting, League president CISSY RYAN invited a group of the Follies committee chairmen to impromptu luncheon in her home. Joys and hazards of amateur theatricals were the big topic of conversation at this party. Cissy, who arrived home thirty seconds ahead of her twelve guests, concocted an unusual and delectable main dish of creamed crabmeat, oysters, and shrimp, served in nests of chow mein noodles. With this, marinated asparagus, peach pickle, and garlic bread, with chocolate pie for dessert.

Newcomers and newlyweds, the CHARLES HAMAKERS, JR., are being honored at a round of festivities. Saturday night ROSALIE and FRED FUDICKAR, JR., and McVEA OLIVER entertained in their honor at the Fudickar home. Yellow chrysanthemums decorated the entrance hall. In the den a wicker container shaped like a turkey held variegated euonymus foliage and purple grapes. White stock and chrysanthemums centered the dining table.

For the occasion, Brooksie was wearing seafoam green with dyed - to - match shoes, while Rosalie chose an avocado green satin shirtwaist . . . . and ANNE BERNHARDT in blue and green printed silk . . . . . Very stylish was ANNA CLAIRE SEYMOUR's tunic dress printed in greyed - down roses on a grey background.

Also honoring Brooksie was PAT GODFREY's bridge party held last Friday afternoon at Bayou DeSiard country club. Ten tables played in the young people's lounge, with FRAN GUTHRIE winning high; PUD HARRIS, low; and DEDE BUFFINGTON, travelling prize for slam. Alaska refrigerator cake was the dessert served to forty guests.

This Friday, a group of friends motored to Bastrop for a sherry party honoring Brooksie. Hostesses for the occasion were SUE SHACKLEFORD and MARY MOSS HENDERSON.

On Tuesday afternoon, the Paragon club's private dining room was decorated with crepe paper, balloons, and jacks-in-the-box to suggest a circus for SARA MADISON's fifth birthday party. Guests played Pin the Tail on the Donkey, with ADELE DIXON and ROOKIE DAVIS winning prizes. Ice cream and birthday cake were served to eighteen five - year - olds who attended.

In the entrance hall, walls are bone white, as throughout the house. A pair of scones hung with prisms flank the tall, narrow carved mirror placed over the console.

Eyecatching in the kitchen is the stove, built-into a blue-tiled island in the center. White Formica is used on other counter tops, and cabinets are of walnut-finished maple. Built - in appliances are finished to match.

In the bedroom wing, all walls are bone white, and all three baths are white tile, with blue lighting fixtures and deep blue towels . . . Sherrye's desk and chests are designed to fit in line under her windows. On the white curtains is a hand - painted blue and green border. This design is repeated in the bed's dust ruffle. Sherrye's closet is a marvel, with one whole wall of shelves and shoe racks, and both tall and short hanging space . . . . In the master bedroom, a back wall of glass commands a view of the bayou which is reflected in full length mirrors hanging on the dressing room doors. Sheer draperies of blue stripes, with lining hung separately, are used. Storage in the dressing room shows the same careful attention to detail, with closets for his, hers, and guns.

Today's poem is Milton's "On His Blindness":

When I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent
To serve therewith my Maker, and present
My true account, lest He returning chide;
"Doth God exact day-labor. light denied?"
I fondly ask. But Patience, to prevent
That murmur, soon replies, "God doth not need
Either man's work or his own gifts. Who best
Bear his mild yoke, they serve him best. His state
Is kingly: thousands at his bidding speed,
And post o'er land and ocean without rest;
They also serve who only stand and wait."

This was, in Monroe, the week of the Follies. Neville auditorium was the place to see and be seen on Wednesday and Thursday night, when audiences were laughing at the revue presented by the Junior Charity League.

Preformers enjoy the sociability of participation as well as the knowledge that they are helping the League's worthy causes. Following the second performance, cast, crew, and committee members attended the traditional Follies' cabaret at the Paragon club.

Last night BESS and SOL COURTMAN invited a small group for a cocktail buffet at home. Bess, General Chairman of the Follies, was too hard pressed for time to go by the U. S. Mails, and handed out her clever invitations herself to committee chairman working on the show. White chrysanthemums centered the table where various dips and finger foods, highlighted by smothered crab meat and mushrooms in patty shells were served. Some fifteen couples attended.

Friday morning, following the "settling - up" meeting, League president CISSY RYAN invited a group of the Follies committee chairmen to impromptu luncheon in her home. Joys and hazards of amateur theatricals were the big topic of conversation at this party. Cissy, who arrived home thirty seconds ahead of her twelve guests, concocted an unusual and delectable main dish of creamed crabmeat, oysters, and shrimp, served in nests of chow mein noodles. With this, marinated asparagus, peach pickle, and garlic bread, with chocolate pie for dessert.

Newcomers and newlyweds, the CHARLES HAMAKERS, JR., are being honored at a round of festivities. Saturday night ROSALIE and FRED FUDICKAR, JR., and McVEA OLIVER entertained in their honor at the Fudickar home. Yellow chrysanthemums decorated the entrance hall. In the den a wicker container shaped like a turkey held variegated euonymus foliage and purple grapes. White stock and chrysanthemums centered the dining table.

For the occasion, Brooksie was wearing seafoam green with dyed - to - match shoes, while Rosalie chose an avocado green satin shirtwaist . . . . . and ANNE BERNHARDT in blue and green printed silk . . . . . Very stylish was ANNA CLAIRE SEYMOUR's tunic dress printed in greyed - down roses on a grey background.

Also honoring Brooksie was PAT GODFREY's bridge party held last Friday afternoon at Bayou DeSiard country club. Ten tables played in the young people's lounge, with FRAN GUTHRIE winning high; PUD HARRIS, low; and DEDE BUFFINGTON, travelling prize for slam. Alaska refrigerator cake was the dessert served to forty guests.

This Friday, a group of friends motored to Ba-trop for a sherry party honoring Brooksie. Hostesses for the occasion were SUE SHACKLEFORD and MARY MOSS HENDERSON.

On Tuesday afternoon, the Paragon club's private dining room was decorated with crepe paper, balloons, and jacks-in-the-box to suggest a circus for SARA MADISON's fifth birthday party. Guests played Pin the Tail on the Donkey, with ADELE DIXON and ROOKIE DAVIS winning prizes. Ice cream and birthday cake were served to eighteen five - year - olds who attended.

In the entrance hall, walls are bone white, as throughout the house. A pair of sconces hung with prisms flank the tall, narrow carved mirror placed over the console.

Peggy Earl, Lewis Sikes Plan December 22 Vows

Mr. and Mrs. James Earl of Crowville, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Peggy Ann Earl to Lewis Sikes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Sikes, Crowville.

The vows will be solemnized at 6 o'clock in the evening of December 22 in Crowville Baptist church, with the pastor, Rev. Clemen T. Smith, officiating.

The bride-elect, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jareld Earl, Crowville, was graduated from Crowville high school and is now a junior student at Northeast Louisiana State college, Monroe. She is a member of the N.L.S.C. Honor Society.

Grandparents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sikes. Also a graduate of Crowville high school, he is at present a student at Northeast.

Miss Earl has selected Miss Dorothy Marsh as maid of honor and bridesmaids for the wedding will be Miss Rita Williams, Miss Linda Sikes and Rhonda White.

James Saxon will attend Mr. Sikes as best man and ushers will be Jareld Earl and Joe Earl.

The couple plans to reside in Monroe following their marriage.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Evelene Arrant, above, to Ralph Malone. The bride-elect is the daughter of L. V. Arrant, and the late Mrs. Arrant. Parents of the future bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Malone of Farmerville. The wedding will be an event of December 16 at 8 p.m. in the Jackson Street Church of Christ, with E. C. McKenzie, minister, officiating.

Miss Freeman Betrothed To Bobby LaRue Adair

December 18 is the date selected by Miss Carolyn Roberta Freeman and Bobby LaRue Adair for their marriage which will be solemnized at 3:30 p.m. in the First Baptist church of Monroe.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Freeman, 1011 St. John Street, Monroe, and her fiance is the son of the late C. S. Adair of LaGrange, Georgia.

Dr. James T. Horton will officiate at the exchange of vows.

Half And Half

If there's whole-wheat bread in the house and you are making sandwiches for the lunchbox, make each sandwich with one slice of the whole-wheat bread and one slice of white bread.

Miss Catherine Barfield To Marry Thomas Cochis

Announcement is made this weekend by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Barfield of Lake Providence, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Catherine Feltus Barfield to Thomas Cochis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Cochis of Lake Charles.

The wedding will be solemnized December 26 at 10:30 a.m. in Grace Episcopal Church, Lake Providence. The Rev. Paul A. Voney will officiate at the exchange of vows.

The bride-elect has chosen her cousin, Mrs. Fred Westrom, to serve as matron of honor. Serving as best man will be Joe Theriot of Lake Charles, and ushers will be King Trieschmann and Timothy Cochis of Lake Providence.

Miss Barfield is the granddaughter of Mrs. J. L. Powers of Monroe. She was graduated from Lake Providence high school and Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and received her degree in elementary education from Northeast Louisiana State College.

A graduate of Worfolk County high school in Boston, Mass., and McNeese State College, Lake Charles, Mr. Cochis is at present enrolled at Louisiana State University from where he will receive his masters degree next June. The grandson of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Cochis, he is a member of T.K.E. fraternity.

A reception is planned in the American Legion Home in Lake Providence, following the wedding ceremony.

Save On Calories

Make up a package of instant pudding with dry milk and water, instead of the usual whole fluid milk, and you'll save calories.

High Protein

Cheeses such as American, Swiss and cottage cheese are high protein foods and important in a reducing diet. Cheese "stays by you" and is relatively low in calories.

Gala Fall Formal Held By Revelers

"Fall Frolic" was the theme for the Revelers club annual fall formal held last night in the Paragon club ballroom.

Autumn leaves and foliage decorated the room where music for dancing was provided by Jerry Lane's orchestra. Hurricane lamps in clusters of leaves were used on the tables around the dance floor.

Approximately 64 couples, who comprise the club's membership attended the gala event, with each inviting another couple as guests.

Serving on the committee in charge of arrangements were Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wood, Dr. and Mrs. Doyle Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Holmes.

Breakfast was served to the group at 1 a.m.

Black And White Is Choice For Party Season

A black and white winter in fashion is the preference of the "black tie set." White cocktail-party wools are voted "in" with a modicum of beading or jeweled trimming. Or choose any of the simple-does-it, sleeveless black wools he loves for understated figure flattery and you love for wearability in texture as well as lightweight warmth.

For the jet-propelled look of the party season, jet beading, appliqued in bold scrollwork designs on white satin gets rave notices from all the masculine voters. If you can wield a clever needle you can make your own black over white or vice versa satin separates.

Experts can apply the jet-work to whichever topping you prefer, with your new black or white satin skirt. . . .and elongated shoes for evening, newer than ever with their lower heels.

Norman-Fontana Wedding Held In Catholic Church

Large white chrysanthemums and greenery in gold altar vases formed a setting in Jesus the Good Shepherd Church for the wedding ceremony Saturday, November 12, which united Miss Joan Fontana and Richard Norman. Father Dave Dabria performed the double ring ceremony at 10 a.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom J. Fontana, 2207 Dogwood Drive, Monroe, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Norman, 3702 Cypress, West Monroe.

A program of nuptial music including Ave Maria, Panis Angelicus, and Mother Beloved was presented prior to the exchange of vows by Mrs. Della Williamson, organist and Mrs. Wayman Etier, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a chapel length gown of white silk peau de soie with reembroidered Alencon lace appliques around the portrait neckline, jeweled with seed pearls and sequins. Lace appliques formed scalloped borders on either side of the skirt and the long sleeves tapered to points over her hands. Her petal shaped veil of Heathcoat illusion cascaded from a pearl coronet and she carried a colonial bouquet of feathered white carnations centered with a large white orchid.

Miss Dolores Fontana was maid of honor and wore a dress fashioned with a moss green velveteen bodice and full skirt of lime green taffeta. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and short sleeves with a flat taffeta bow at the waistline. She also wore a moss green feather half hat and carried a cascade bouquet of chartreuse Fuji chrysanthemums and variegated Dracaena foliage.

Miss Gaye Tonore, bridesmaid and Miss Jo Marie Fontana, junior bridesmaid, were dressed identical to the honor attendant and carried matching bouquets. Robbie Ledbetter as flower girl, wore a dress of moss green velveteen and taffeta with matching hat and carried a small white basket of rose petals.

Jimmy Devereux attended the bridegroom as best man and groomsmen-ushers were Arthur F. Craig Jr., Pat Norman and Jimmy Tonore. Richie Hendrix was ring bearer.

A reception followed at 11 a.m. at the Paragon Club, where magnolias were used throughout in decorating the reception room. A cupid epergne filled with white stock, chrysanthemums and pompons centered the punch table, which was presided over by Miss Sally Moore and Mrs. David Petrus. Miss Patricia Davis served the cake from a table covered with white organdy over white satin, garlanded with Florida fern. The guest book was in charge of Mrs. John Norman.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip, the bride was wearing an olive green suit with mink trim and matching accessories. Both Mr. and Mrs. Norman are graduates of St. Matthews high school and will make their home in West Monroe.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Sam Marrino, Mr. and Mrs. Nichlos Fontana, Mr. and Mrs. Ryan Dozart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vince, all of Baton Rouge; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiese, Pine Bluff, Ark., M. A. Jacob, New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bruce, Vicksburg, Miss.

BETROTHED — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Albritton of Farmerville announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Hilda Gay, above, to Edward Austin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brady Austin, also of Farmerville. Both graduates of Farmerville high school, the couple will be united in marriage on December 17 at 7 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents.

MISS GLORIA DEAN BRATTON

Gloria Bratton To Wed Jerry Huckaby December 3

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Gloria Dean Bratton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Bratton, of West Monroe, to Jerry Wayne Huckaby of Jonesboro, is made this weekend by the parents of the bride-elect. Mr. Huckaby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammie Huckaby of Jonesboro.

The wedding is scheduled for December 3 at 7 p.m. in the home of the bridegroom's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Maxwell at Hodge. Rev. W. E. Spencer, pastor of the Mount Vernon Baptist church, will perform the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Borland of Jonesboro, sister and brother-in-law of the bride-elect, will serve as only attendants for the couple.

A graduate of West Monroe high school, Miss Bratton is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Stuckey of Chatham, La., and W. R. Bratton of Columbia and the late Mrs. Bratton.

The grandson of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Maxwell of Hodge and Mrs. Vengie Huckaby of Jonesboro and the late Bryant Huckaby, the bridegroom is a graduate of Jonesboro-Hodge high school and is now employed in Jonesboro, where the couple will reside.

Silver Finish

NEW YORK (AP) — A new finish for silver holloware is expected to make life easier for the homemaker who likes to set a gracious table, and often.

The finish, made of a silicone material that sticks tenaciously to silver, is supposed to prevent tarnish and eliminate the need for polishing. The housewife can apply her own finish, too; it comes in an aerosol dispenser.

Norman-Fontana Wedding Held In Catholic Church

Large white chrysanthemums and greenery in gold altar vases formed a setting in Jesus the Good Shepherd Church for the wedding ceremony Saturday, November 12, which united Miss Joan Fontana and Richard Norman. Father Dave Dabria performed the double ring ceremony at 10 a.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom J. Fontana, 2207 Dogwood Drive, Monroe, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Norman, 3702 Cypress, West Monroe.

A program of nuptial music including Ave Maria, Panis Angelicus, and Mother Beloved was presented prior to the exchange of vows by Mrs. Della Williamson, organist and Mrs. Wayman Etier, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a chapel length gown of white silk peau de soie with reembroidered Alencon lace appliques around the portrait neckline, jeweled with seed pearls and sequins. Lace appliques formed scalloped borders on either side of the skirt and the long sleeves tapered to points over her hands. Her petal shaped veil of Heathcoat illusion cascaded from a pearl coronet and she carried a colonial bouquet of feathered white carnations centered with a large white orchid.

Miss Dolores Fontana was maid of honor and wore a dress fashioned with a moss green velveteen bodice and full skirt of lime green taffeta. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and short sleeves with a flat taffeta bow at the waistline. She also wore a moss green feather half hat and carried a cascade bouquet of chartreuse Fuji chrysanthemums and variegated Dracaena foliage.

Miss Gaye Tonore, bridesmaid and Miss Jo Marie Fontana, junior bridesmaid, were dressed identical to the honor attendant and carried matching bouquets. Robbie Ledbetter as flower girl, wore a dress of moss green velveteen and taffeta with matching hat and carried a small white basket of rose petals.

Jimmy Devereux attended the bridegroom as best man and groomsmen-ushers were Arthur F. Craig Jr., Pat Norman and Jimmy Tonore. Richie Hendrix was ring bearer.

A reception followed at 11 a.m. at the Paragon Club, where magnolias were used throughout in decorating the reception room. A cupid epergne filled with white stock, chrysanthemums and pompons centered the punch table, which was presided over by Miss Sally Moore and Mrs. David Petrus. Miss Patricia Davis served the cake from a table covered with white organdy over white satin, garlanded with Florida fern. The guest book was in charge of Mrs. John Norman.

MISS SUSAN FELDSTERN

Pennsylvania Girl's Engagement Announced To Alvin S. Lipson

Of interest in Monroe is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Susan Feldstern of Merion, Pennsylvania, to Alvin S. Lipson, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, formerly of Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lipson, 406 Bres.

The forthcoming marriage was revealed at a large engagement party given by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Feldstern of Merion, in the Belview Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia.

Among the guests for the gala affair were Mr. Lipson's parents of Monroe, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Maxwell of Hillsdale, New Jersey.

The wedding is scheduled as an event of June 25, following Miss Feldstern's graduation from Temple University in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Lipson was graduated from Neville high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe. He received his degree from Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, where he was a member of Z.B.T. fraternity. He is now employed in Philadelphia.

New Door Mat

A really efficient door mat is half perforated rubber for scraping and half absorbent carpeting for drying.

Done attractively in blue and gray, this half-and-half mat can be kept at peak performance by scrubbing with a brush dipped into hot soap or detergent suds.

Be sure to also scrub under the perforations, in order to catch the mud and grime which filter through to the floor. Then rinse with the hose.

Local VFW Units Host District Supper Meeting

Members of the 14th District Veterans of Foreign Wars posts and auxiliary units were entertained at a supper meeting Monday night, November 14, with the local Rodney J. Hobbs Post 1809 and its Auxiliary as hosts.

Grady Bagwell, 15th district commander and Mrs. Vera Gunter, district auxiliary president, conducted the separate business sessions following supper.

Community service reports from all of the 14th district Auxiliaries were made during the meeting. It was also announced that the national auxiliary president, Mrs. Frances Millican, will make her official visit to Louisiana in January, with headquarters in New Orleans.

Mrs. Gunter urged members to attend the VFW Mid-Winter conference to be held in Shreveport during December and the Southern Conference meeting scheduled in New Orleans in January.

VFW Posts and Auxiliaries represented at the meeting were Hanna-Richardson 3155; Thomas-Tyson 3977; Christian-Phillips 3375 and Rodney J. Hobbs 1809.

REGULAR MEETING

A regular meeting of the local Auxiliary Unit 1809 was held Tuesday evening at the post home with Mrs. Odie Lee Gossett presiding.

Mrs. Rose Bartlett, National VFW Home chairman, requested units to donate $1 per member to the Health and Happiness fund for the National VFW home fund. The auxiliary also purchased Christmas seals from the national home.

Plans were also made to cooperate with the Monroe-West Monroe Christmas party committee at the Alexandria Veterans hospital on December 11. Members will donate homemade cookies and personal gifts for the party.

Mrs. Gossett requested the group to provide food for a needy family as a Thanksgiving project and plans were completed for the auxiliary's Christmas party to be held December 20.

Dorothy MeMoss, Fiance Plan Late December Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Brown DeMoss of Tallulah, announce this weekend the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Ann DeMoss to Clyde L. Keene, son of Mrs. Katherine W. Brown of Tallulah.

The wedding, to be an event of late December, will be solemnized in St. Edward's Catholic church with the Rev. Henry M. Hopp officiating.

The future bride has chosen her sister, Miss Margaret DeMoss, to serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be her cousin, Miss Susan Ward of New Orleans, Miss Ginny Williamson, cousin of the prospective bridegroom, and Miss Mary Jane King.

Serving as best man will be Cordes Williamson, uncle of the future bridegroom, and groomsmen will be Jim Brown, Johnny Goss and Edward Smith. Ushers will include Billy DeMoss, Eddy Gunn, Billy Ray Sullivan and Jerry Fulton.

Miss DeMoss and Mr. Keene are both graduates of Tallulah high school and attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. He is now serving with the United States Navy as a submarine radar specialist.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ward of New Orleans, and C. B. DeMoss of Tallulah and the late Mrs. DeMoss.

Mr. Keene is the grandson of Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland and the late Ludie Westmoreland of Tallulah, and Mrs. Edgar Keene of Bogue Chitto, Miss., and the late Mr. Keene.

Easley-Murphy Nuptials Read In Tallulah Church

Tallulah Presbyterian Church was the scene of the wedding which united Miss Elizabeth Ann Murphy of Tallulah and William Eugene Easley of McComb, Miss., on November 5 at 4 p.m. with the Rev. Dan Lott officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Murphy, Tallulah, and J. O. Murphy, DeKalb, Texas, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Easley of McComb, Miss.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladioli with fern, potted palms and tall branched candelabra, entwined with ivy and holding cathedral tapers, formed a background for the exchange of vows. White carnations and ivy sprays bedecked the windows.

Mrs. William Clark rendered nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Wallace Lancaster, who sang "Because," and at conclusion of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, escorted by her grandfather, R. W. Muldrow, who gave her in marriage, wore a gown of Avalon lace over silk organza and satin. The scalloped V neckline was accented with seed pearls and the long sleeves tapered to lily points over her hands. Her fingertip veil fell from a queen's crown of pearls and sequins and she carried an orchid, encircled with white carnations.

Mrs. David Olive of Shreveport, sister of the bride, and her only attendant, wore a waltz length dress of blue Avalon lace over taffeta, styled with brief sleeves and V neckline. Her headdress was of blue satin and tulle and she carried an arrangement of white feathered carnations.

Clyde Roy Lazarus of Meadville, Miss., served as best man and ushers were Tommy Williams and George Holmes of McComb, Miss.

Mrs. Murphy selected for her daughter's wedding a blue silk suit with a white feathered hat and black accessories. Mrs. Easley, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy embroidered dress with black accessories and both wore corsages of white carnations.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. The bride's table covered with an embroidered linen cloth was centered with a crystal bowl of white carnations, chrysanthemums and greenery, flanked by tall white tapers in crystal holders.

Mrs. Louise Lee and Mrs. Gloria Bradley presided at the crystal punch bowl at one end of the table and the tiered wedding cake opposite was served by Miss Blanche Washman. Mrs. Irma Redd had charge of the guest book on a table which held the bride's bouquet and a single white candle. Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Lloyd Evans and Mrs. Louise Davis.

When the couple left on a trip to Florida, Mrs. Easley was wearing a blue knit suit with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will reside in McComb, where Mr. Easley is employed.

The bride is a graduate of Tallulah High School and Mr. Easley, a graduate of McComb High School and served two years in the navy.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Easley, Miss Deloris Easley, Tommy Williams and George Holmes of McComb, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lazarus, Meadville, Miss., Mrs. eanne McMote and Miss Sybil Jones of Jackson, Miss., and Mrs. Myrtis Brunson of Epps.

Hair Style Is Short, Sleek

Hairdo of the season, an Americanized version of the "Paris bob," is shorter (to the chinline or slightly above it), sleeker (minus elaborate twists or puffs), and deceptively as sweet as a school-girl's graduation picture.

Try it by way of contrast to the new short, flippant hemlines, or for evening with ornaments of rhinestone stars.

MISS DOROTHY ANN DEMOSS

Symphony Association Announces Consolidation As New Season Launched

The Twin City Symphony Association in launching its 1960 season, announces the consolidation of the Twin City Symphony Orchestra with the Northeast State Concerts Association, through their sponsoring institution.

The consolidation was approved by the association board to perpetuate the cultural benefits to the college and the continued growth of the orchestra. The Concerts Association will sponsor the orchestra in all matters pertaining to the operation and maintenance.

The Symphony Association, represented by the board of directors, shall become an official advisory group, dedicated to the fostering of the growth and development of the orchestra within the framework of the Northeast State Concerts Association and shall continue its scholarship and Talent auditions projects in cooperation with the college.

Now beginning its ninth year, the orchestra was formed in January, 1952 by a group of musicians who discussed with Dr. Harry Lemmert, dean of Fine Arts Department at Northeast State College, the possibility of forming an orchestra to be composed of interested musicians in the Twin Cities and surrounding area.

Early in February the first meeting was held with approximately 20 persons attending and the sessions continued each Sunday afternoon. Enthusiasm of the Sunday meetings grew and the orchestra increased in size as other interested persons were contacted.

To date the orchestra is composed of 35 local musicians and 15 college students, including three who are studying under scholarships presented by the Twin City Symphony Association.

In addition to its sponsorship of the orchestra, the Twin City Association has presented outstanding artists, has been instrumental in sponsoring symphonic music throughout North Louisiana and South Arkansas; has promoted young artists through talent auditions and introduced music through schools and libraries in the area by making available books and records on symphonic music.

Board members of the Twin City Symphony Association, sponsors of the orchestra are Miss Emy-Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. W. E. Dent, Hugo Angelini, John Rudisill, Lealis Hale, Jack Terzia, Bob Cretney, Mrs. Jamar Adcock, Mrs. Estelle Sanders, Mrs. James Caldwell, Jack Madden, Grayson Guthrie, D. X. Ellett, Dr. Ben Oliphint, Miss Carrie Dee Drew and Mrs. Marion Gray, president.

The Association plans to continue its annual fund raising projects to provide music scholarships and talent auditions.

Delores Young Is Bride Of James McAdams

Miss Delores Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Young of Olla, became the bride of James Alton McAdams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Adams of Tullos, in day evening, November 12.

Southern greenery, chrysanthemums and candles formed a setting for the exchange of vows performed by the Rev. Coda Salter, pastor of Tullos Baptist Church, in the home of the bride's parents.

For her wedding the bride wore a pale blue wool suit with white fur collar, accented by a white hat and gloves. A single white orchid was pinned to her shoulder.

After a brief wedding trip the couple will be at home in Camden, Ark., where Mr. Adams is employed.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Powell, Mrs. B. J. Martin, Linda, Rita, Deborah and Sandra and Mrs. Roland Davis, all of Kelly.

Dorothy MeMoss, Fiance Plan Late December Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Brown DeMoss of Tallulah, announce this weekend the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Ann DeMoss to Clyde L. Keene, son of Mrs. Katherine W. Brown of Tallulah.

The wedding, to be an event of late December, will be solemnized in St. Edward's Catholic church with the Rev. Henry M. Hopp officiating.

The future bride has chosen her sister, Miss Margaret DeMoss, to serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be her cousin, Miss Susan Ward of New Orleans, Miss Ginny Williamson, cousin of the prospective bridegroom, and Miss Mary Jane King.

Serving as best man will be Cordes Williamson, uncle of the future bridegroom, and groomsmen will be Jim Brown, Johnny Goss and Edward Smith. Ushers will include Billy DeMoss, Eddy Gunn, Billy Ray Sullivan and Jerry Fulton.

Miss DeMoss and Mr. Keene are both graduates of Tallulah high school and attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. He is now serving with the United States Navy as a submarine radar specialist.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ward of New Orleans, and C. B. DeMoss of Tallulah and the late Mrs. DeMoss.

Mr. Keene is the grandson of Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland and the late Ludie Westmoreland of Tallulah, and Mrs. Edgar Keene of Bogue Chitto, Miss., and the late Mr. Keene.

Easley-Murphy Nuptials Read In Tallulah Church

Tallulah Presbyterian Church was the scene of the wedding which united Miss Elizabeth Ann Murphy of Tallulah and William Eugene Easley of McComb, Miss., on November 5 at 4 p.m. with the Rev. Dan Lott officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Murphy, Tallulah, and J. O. Murphy, DeKalb, Texas, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Easley of McComb, Miss.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladioli with fern, potted palms and tall branched candelabra, entwined with ivy and holding cathedral tapers, formed a background for the exchange of vows. White carnations and ivy sprays bedecked the windows.

Mrs. William Clark rendered nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Wallace Lancaster, who sang "Because," and at conclusion of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, escorted by her grandfather, R. W. Muldrow, who gave her in marriage, wore a gown of Avalon lace over silk organza and satin. The scalloped V neckline was accented with seed pearls and the long sleeves tapered to lily points over her hands. Her fingertip veil fell from a queen's crown of pearls and sequins and she carried an orchid, encircled with white carnations.

Mrs. David Olive of Shreveport, sister of the bride, and her only attendant, wore a waltz length dress of blue Avalon lace over taffeta, styled with brief sleeves and V neckline. Her headdress was of blue satin and tulle and she carried an arrangement of white feathered carnations.

Clyde Roy Lazarus of Meadville, Miss., served as best man and ushers were Tommy Williams and George Holmes of McComb, Miss.

Mrs. Murphy selected for her daughter's wedding a blue silk suit with a white feathered hat and black accessories. Mrs. Easley, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy embroidered dress with black accessories and both wore corsages of white carnations.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. The bride's table covered with an embroidered linen cloth was centered with a crystal bowl of white carnations, chrysanthemums and greenery, flanked by tall white tapers in crystal holders.

MR. AND MRS. SIDNEY R. MOORE

Bastrop Church Setting For Moore-Entrican Vows

Second Baptist Church in Bastrop was the setting for the wedding of Miss Shardie Faye Entrican and Sidney R. Moore, which was solemnized at 6:30 p.m. Monday, November 7. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Entrican, Bastrop and Mrs. Sylvester Moore, also of Bastrop, is the mother of the bridegroom.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Hinkie, before an arch of fall foliage and white gladioli and stock blossoms. Baskets of white gladioli and stock, interspersed with jade trees and tall white tapers in graduated candelabra, formed a background for the setting.

Miss Patsy Fleming presented a program of nuptial music and also accompanied Mrs. Clyde Hall as she sang, "I Love You Truly," "Because," and Mallotte's "Lord's Prayer."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace over magnolia satin, featuring a sweetheart neckline re-embroidered in seed pearls and beads. The bouffant skirt worn over hoops was designed with a back insert of alternate ruffles of lace and chiffon which terminated in a chapel train. A coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones held her veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of sweetheart roses centered with a single specimen orchid. Her only jewelry was a strand of matched pearls, sent her by the bridegroom while stationed in Japan.

Mrs. John Thomas of Monroe, was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a blue lace sheath with matching slippers and velvet bow headpiece to which a brief nose veil was attached. Bridesmaids were Misses Shirley Wallace, Donnice Collins, Bennie Maud Johnson and Ann Eppinette, who wore pink taffeta sheaths with overskirts of chiffon, and matching headdresses. The attendants carried bouquets of white feathered carnations.

Janice Johnson, flower girl, wore a floor length frock of white chiffon with a headband of white satin and tiny flowers, and scattered rose petals from a decorated basket. Ringbearers were Karren Porter, cousin of the bride and Stevie Baker of Monroe. Karren wore a frock of pink taffeta with matching taffeta headband, adorned with flowers.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlor where the bride's table was covered with white net over pink satin, and centered with an arrangement of pink and white chrysanthemums. Tall tapers flanked the centerpiece. White carnations and jade greenery encircled the cake at one end of the table, where Mrs. John Thomas served. Alternating at the punch bowl were Misses Shirley Wallace and Donnice Collins. Mrs. Joe Entrican Jr., presided at the guest book.

For a wedding trip to Alabama the bride changed to a suit of mint green wool with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will establish a home at 805 Commerce Street in Bastrop.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mrs. Sylvester Moore was hostess for a buffett dinner following rehearsal of the Moore-Entricaan wedding party, when she entertained in the social room of the church.

Crystal candelabra holding tall yellow tapers, garlanded with ivy and yellow chrysanthemums centered the table from which dinner was served. Gifts were presented by the betrothed couple to their attendants at this time.

Guests in addition to the honorees and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Entrican, Mrs. Ben Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baker, Stevie and Donnie, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, Pinkie and Janice, Donnice Collins, Bennie Maud Johnson, Shirley Wallace, Mrs. Harry Porter and Carron, Jack White, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Entrican Jr., James Conway, Ann Eppinett, Mrs. Clyde Hall and Miss Patsy Fleming.

Moment Musical Coterie Installs New Officers

Officers installed for the ensuing term are Miss Susan Kilpatrick, president; Miss Mary Ann Salisbury, vice - president; Miss Ann Murphy, secretary; Miss Kay Odom, treasurer; Miss Myla Lance, historian and Miss Elizabeth Ann Heard, reporter.

Following a short business session a program was given which included piano selections. They were Marching Marionettes by Deborah Warren; Rondo by Emily Seegers; The Frog, by Martha Lynn Allen; Skating by Jennifer Jackson; two folk songs by Susan Martin; Sonatina Op 157 No. 4 by Ann Murphy; Prelude in C Minor, by Susan Kilpatrick and a duet, Little Gypsy Song, by Jennifer Frazer and Carol Husted.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program. A joint meeting of the three Monroe clubs, Moment, Chansonettes and A Sharp will be held December 10 at the Little Theater building at Northeast State College.

MR. AND MRS. SIDNEY R. MOORE

Bastrop Church Setting For Moore-Entrican Vows

Second Baptist Church in Bastrop was the setting for the wedding of Miss Shardie Faye Entrican and Sidney R. Moore, which was solemnized at 6:30 p.m. Monday, November 7. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Entrican, Bastrop and Mrs. Sylvester Moore, also of Bastrop, is the mother of the bridegroom.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Hinkie, before an arch of fall foliage and white gladioli and stock blossoms. Baskets of white gladioli and stock, interspersed with jade trees and tall white tapers in graduated candelabra, formed a background for the setting.

Miss Patsy Fleming presented a program of nuptial music and also accompanied Mrs. Clyde Hall as she sang, "I Love You Truly," "Because," and Mallotte's "Lord's Prayer."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace over magnolia satin, featuring a sweetheart neckline re-embroidered in seed pearls and beads. The bouffant skirt worn over hoops was designed with a back insert of alternate ruffles of lace and chiffon which terminated in a chapel train. A coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones held her veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of sweetheart roses centered with a single specimen orchid. Her only jewelry was a strand of matched pearls, sent her by the bridegroom while stationed in Japan.

Mrs. John Thomas of Monroe, was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a blue lace sheath with matching slippers and velvet bow headpiece to which a brief nose veil was attached. Bridesmaids were Misses Shirley Wallace, Donnice Collins, Bennie Maud Johnson and Ann Eppinette, who wore pink taffeta sheaths with overskirts of chiffon, and matching headdresses. The attendants carried bouquets of white feathered carnations.

Janice Johnson, flower girl, wore a floor length frock of white chiffon with a headband of white satin and tiny flowers, and scattered rose petals from a decorated basket. Ringbearers were Karren Porter, cousin of the bride and Stevie Baker of Monroe. Karren wore a frock of pink taffeta with matching taffeta headband, adorned with flowers.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlor where the bride's table was covered with white net over pink satin, and centered with an arrangement of pink and white chrysanthemums. Tall tapers flanked the centerpiece. White carnations and jade greenery encircled the cake at one end of the table, where Mrs. John Thomas served. Alternating at the punch bowl were Misses Shirley Wallace and Donnice Collins. Mrs. Joe Entrican Jr., presided at the guest book.

For a wedding trip to Alabama the bride changed to a suit of mint green wool with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will establish a home at 805 Commerce Street in Bastrop.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mrs. Sylvester Moore was hostess for a buffett dinner following rehearsal of the Moore-Entricaan wedding party, when she entertained in the social room of the church.

Crystal candelabra holding tall yellow tapers, garlanded with ivy and yellow chrysanthemums centered the table from which dinner was served. Gifts were presented by the betrothed couple to their attendants at this time.

Guests in addition to the honorees and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Entrican, Mrs. Ben Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baker, Stevie and Donnie, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, Pinkie and Janice, Donnice Collins, Bennie Maud Johnson, Shirley Wallace, Mrs. Harry Porter and Carron, Jack White, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Entrican Jr., James Conway, Ann Eppinett, Mrs. Clyde Hall and Miss Patsy Fleming.

Just drop in and take a drive in one of the 30 spanking new '61 models your Chevy dealer now offers under the same roof. With every drive, your dealer is giving away free Dinah Shore Christmas records while they last. So hurry! And you'll find that here's the easy, one-stop way to shop for the car you want. There's a model to suit almost any taste or need—at a price to suit almost any budget. There's a whole crew of new Chevy Corvairs, including four family-lovin' wagons. New Biscaynes—the lowest priced full-size Chevrolets. Popular Bel Airs. Sumptuous Impalas. And America's only true sports car—the Corvette. Come on in and pick your new car the easy way—on a one-stop shopping tour!

CHEVROLET

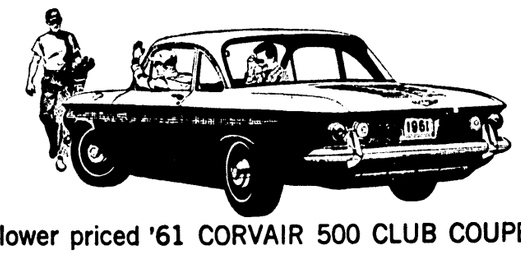

New '61 Chevrolet IMPALA SPORT SEDAN

You'll see five models in the '61 Impala series—the most elegant Chevies of all. They're sensationally sensible from their more parkable out size to their remarkably roomy in size. And note that trim new roof line.

New '61 Chevrolet 2-DOOR BEL AIR SEDAN

These beautiful Bel Airs, priced just above the thriftiest full-size Chevies, bring you newness you can use. Roomier dimensions reach right back to the easier loading trunk that lets you pile baggage 15% higher.

New lower priced '61 CORVAIR 500 CLUB COUPE

See what Corvair's got in store for you in '61! Thriftier sedans and coupes with nearly 12% more room up front for luggage. That rear engine's spunkier, too, with a gas-saving new axle ratio to go with it.

New '61 Corvair 700 LAKEWOOD STATION WAGON

There's room for almost everything but antifreeze in these new one-and-only 6-passenger Lakewoods. And they're the only wagons with lockable trunk under the hood. Be sure to see the new Greenbriers, too.

New '61 Chevrolet 2-DOOR BISCAYNE 6 NOW—Big-Car Comfort at Small-Car Prices

These new Biscayne 6's*—the lowest priced full-size Chevrolets—let you save money in a big way, yet give you a full measure of Chevy's new roominess—such things as higher easy chair seats, larger door openings, more leg room in front, more foot room in the rear.

'North To Alaska' Now At Paramount

With public curiosity at high pitch these days on every aspect of life in our 49th State, the new 20th Century - Fox CinemaScope DeLuxe Color epic, "North to Alaska," reaches audiences at a timely moment in our history. Opening today at the Paramount Theatre, this fast-paced action drama of gold-rush days, claim-jumpers, confidence of top stars romance on the roaring frontier of Nome, brings to the screen a roster of top stars including John Wayne, Stewart Granger, Ernie Kovacs, Fabian and the lovely French newcomer Capucine.

It's the year 1900, and strike-it-rich excitement sparks the atmosphere in the dance-hall and gold-buying bank at Nome as brash Sam McCord (John Wayne) and his partner George Pratt (Stewart Granger) exchange gold dust for $100,000 in bills. Sam is off to Seattle to buy mining machinery and bring back George's fiancee.

To Sam's consternation, he finds the girl married to somebody else, and in an effort to save his partner from heartbreak, decides to pick up a curvacious beauty named Michelle (Capucine) in a Seattle honky-tonk and and bring her back to Nome as a substitute bride-to-be.

RIVALRY

So begins a bitter-friendly contest for the love of this high-spirited wench, a rivalry complicated by still another suitor, George's kid brother 17-year-old Billy (Fabian) who develops a romantic yearning for this entrancing "older woman" and woos her with adolescent ardor spiked by candles, champagne and other schoolboy advances.

Fighting the invasion of claim-jumpers, Sam and George come to a parting of the ways and are forced to place their holdings in government custody as they set out on a man-hunt for the crooks who have cross-filed on their hard-won mining stake. In a roaring chase, peppered with plenty of street-brawling, gunfire and bar-room fracas, their common cause makes real partners of them again, and the right man (the one Michelle really loves) gets the girl.

PRODUCER

This epic of the Alaska gold rush was produced and directed by Henry Hathaway, veteran Hollywood movie-maker who has literally grown up with the picture industry and is associated with some of its biggest action money-makers, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "Johnny Apollo," and other hits.

In the role of Sam, the lusty, good-looking, hard-drinking pioneer, John Wayne delivers one of the top performances of his action-packed career as a box-office draw.

"North to Alaska" brings back to the screen the glamorous talents of French model Capucine, who won the hearts of picture audiences as the princess in the recent life-story of Franz Liszt, "Song Without End." As the bewitching Michelle of the Alaska frontier epic, she gives a performance which should insure her stellar future in Hollywood.

Off-Broadway Hit

The English rights have been acquired by Frank Productions, the corporate being of composer Frank Loesser.

CELEBRATING a victory over the claim-jumpers in the rip-roaring gold rush are Fabian, John Wayne, Stewart Granger and Capucine. The scene is from "North to Alaska," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

OPENING Sunday, Nov. 27, at the Paramount Theatre is "Girl of the Night," which stars Anne Francis and John Kerr as a "young girl" and her lover. The picture also stars Lloyd Nolan and Kay Medford.

PRESLEY PERFORMS in Hal Wallis' Technicolor musical romance, "G. I. Blues," which marks Elvis' return to cinematic life following his Army duties. The Paramount release, due Wednesday at the Jim Theatre, co-stars dancer Juliet Prowse, top girl, with the Italian lass, Leticia Roman, and German beauty, Sigrid Maier, featured.

'G. I. Blues' With Presley Coming Soon

Elvis is back in a great, big and different way in "G.I. Blues," which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. He's the same wonderfully-voiced singer, but has the added dimension of maturity plus a demonstrated flair for playing romantic comedy that stamps him another graduate from simply a singer of style to a singer-actor of considerable appeal.

The the Hal Wallis Technicolor production is a Paramount release. Presley's leading lady is Juliet Prowse, a knockout of a redhead, who is also a sensational dancer. Fans will remember her as the leading dancer of "Can-Can." She goes a step farther — and a long step it is, too — as Elvis' romantic "target" in "G. I. Blues," a torrid cabaret dancer who has a reputation with the G.I.s of having a heart of ice. Presley becomes involved when he is drafted by his buddies to break through her defenses and win a $300 wager they have that it can be done by the G.I. who has the right tactical maneuvers. During the "maneuvers" Elvis and Juliet fall in love and there are amusing complications before the path of romance leads to a happy end.

The film represents a liberally fictionized version of Presley's own Army service in that it is set in West Germany with the star's own outfit providing the military aspects of the story.

Presley sings ten new, terrific tunes and he's in great voice. Miss Prowse's dancing is nothing short of sensational, too. Contributing to the fun are Robert Ivers and James Douglas as Elvis' buddies, and two European beauties, Leticia Roman and Sigrid Maier as their frauleins.

Norman Taurog did an excellent directing job.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

The Selman Field Playhouse is buzzing with activity.

Rehearsals for the "Gazebo" are in full swing. However, the cast and crew will take a holiday Thursday to celebrate Thanksgiving Day. No rehearsals Thursday night. However, rehearsals will resume on Friday as usual, because time is getting short. The play is scheduled to open in about two weeks, and everyone is busy.

Those who attended one of the two performances of "Ghosts," which was presented this past Monday and Tuesday nights by the Drama Department, Division of Fine Arts of Northeast Louisiana State College, were more than pleased with the performances and the presentation as a whole.

TRAGEDY

This was a family tragedy by Henrik Ibsen, and was directed by George Brian. Making up the cast were Phyllis Gardsbane, W. J. Haddad, George Patterson, Pat Medaries and Chuck Morgan. You will recognize most of these actors from past Little Theatre plays. This was a very difficult play and very well done.

The cast of "The Gazebo" has been completed, with Dr. H. L. Browning playing the part of a policeman. Our hats are off this week to Northeast Louisiana State College. Three of the college staff are in "The Gazebo," Dr. Browning, Claude Fuller and Dr. Beryl Franklin.

Miss Lallage Feazel, Frances Ritter and Kathryn Sloan, are leaving this week for Dallas to attend the opera. They plan to see "Alcina," and "Don Giovanni".

We want to thank our faithful Little Theatre members for assuming responsibilities for our current play. Patricia Peyton is serving as assistant to the director. Walter Carlisle, Curtis Rape and Ray Magruder are handling the lights, while Charlene Correro and Edna Frantom are in charge of properties. All these things are necessary and important and we appreciate the part these play in getting the play before the public.

Happy Thanksgiving!

PRESLEY PERFORMS in Hal Wallis' Technicolor musical romance, "G. I. Blues," which marks Elvis' return to cinematic life following his Army duties. The Paramount release, due Wednesday at the Jim Theatre, co-stars dancer Juliet Prowse, top girl, with the Italian lass, Leticia Roman, and German beauty, Sigrid Maier, featured.

'G. I. Blues' With Presley Coming Soon

Elvis is back in a great, big and different way in "G.I. Blues," which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. He's the same wonderfully-voiced singer, but has the added dimension of maturity plus a demonstrated flair for playing romantic comedy that stamps him another graduate from simply a singer of style to a singer-actor of considerable appeal.

The the Hal Wallis Technicolor production is a Paramount release. Presley's leading lady is Juliet Prowse, a knockout of a redhead, who is also a sensational dancer. Fans will remember her as the leading dancer of "Can-Can." She goes a step farther — and a long step it is, too — as Elvis' romantic "target" in "G. I. Blues," a torrid cabaret dancer who has a reputation with the G.I.s of having a heart of ice. Presley becomes involved when he is drafted by his buddies to break through her defenses and win a $300 wager they have that it can be done by the G.I. who has the right tactical maneuvers. During the "maneuvers" Elvis and Juliet fall in love and there are amusing complications before the path of romance leads to a happy end.

The film represents a liberally fictionized version of Presley's own Army service in that it is set in West Germany with the star's own outfit providing the military aspects of the story.

Presley sings ten new, terrific tunes and he's in great voice. Miss Prowse's dancing is nothing short of 'sensational, too. Contributing to the fun are Robert Ivers and James Douglas as Elvis' buddies, and two European beauties, Leticia Roman and Sigrid Maier as their frauleins.

Norman Taurog did an excellent directing job.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

The Selman Field Playhouse is buzzing with activity.

Rehearsals for the "Gazebo" are in full swing. However, the cast and crew will take a holiday Thursday to celebrate Thanksgiving Day. No rehearsals Thursday night. However, rehearsals will resume on Friday as usual, because time is getting short. The play is scheduled to open in about two weeks, and everyone is busy.

Those who attended one of the two performances of "Ghosts," which was presented this past Monday and Tuesday nights by the Drama Department, Division of Fine Arts of Northeast Louisiana State College, were more than pleased with the performances and the presentation as a whole.

TRAGEDY

This was a family tragedy by Henrik Ibsen, and was directed by George Brian. Making up the cast were Phyllis Gardsbane, W. J. Haddad, George Patterson, Pat Medaries and Chuck Morgan. You will recognize most of these actors from past Little Theatre plays. This was a very difficult play and very well done.

The cast of "The Gazebo" has been completed, with Dr. H. L. Browning playing the part of a policeman. Our hats are off this week to Northeast Louisiana State College. Three of the college staff are in "The Gazebo," Dr. Browning, Claude Fuller and Dr. Beryl Franklin.

Miss Lallage Feazel, Frances Ritter and Kathryn Sloan, are leaving this week for Dallas to attend the opera. They plan to see "Alcina," and "Don Giovanni".

We want to thank our faithful Little Theatre members for assuming responsibilities for our current play. Patricia Peyton is serving as assistant to the director. Walter Carlisle, Curtis Rape and Ray Magruder are handling the lights, while Charlene Correro and Edna Frantom are in charge of properties. All these things are necessary and important and we appreciate the part these play in getting the play before the public.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Broadway Actors Are Disappointed

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Broadway actors who come to Hollywood for the first time invariably hate it. Tony Mordente, veteran of the Broadway and London versions of "West Side Story" and now in town for the movie version, tells why:

"So what's to do?" he asks. "In New York when you finish a show you go out and meet people, show people, and talk. There's a couple dozen all-night joints to sit and gab in. Next morning you sleep until noon or later.

Cowboy Boots Credited With Changing Mood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Roger Moore, veteran of many movies in his native Britain and Hollywood, is now a Western star on TV's "Maverick."

"At last," the Britishers says, "I have found out why so many of your Western gunslingers were so mean. Have you ever worn cowboy boots?

"As soon as I put them on every morning, I feel mean. They pinch, they hurt—and when your feet feel mean the rest of you feels mean.

"If loafers had been invented 100 years ago there never would have been a Wild West."

'North To Alaska' Now At Paramount

With public curiosity at high pitch these days on every aspect of life in our 49th State, the new 20th Century - Fox CinemaScope DeLuxe Color epic, "North to Alaska," reaches audiences at a timely moment in our history. Opening today at the Paramount Theatre, this fast-paced action drama of gold-rush days, claim-jumpers, confidence of top stars romance on the roaring frontier of Nome, brings to the screen a roster of top stars including John Wayne, Stewart Granger, Ernie Kovacs, Fabian and the lovely French newcomer Capucine.

It's the year 1900, and strike-it-rich excitement sparks the atmosphere in the dance-hall and gold-buying bank at Nome as brash Sam McCord (John Wayne) and his partner George Pratt (Stewart Granger) exchange gold dust for $100,000 in bills. Sam is off to Seattle to buy mining machinery and bring back George's fiancee.

To Sam's consternation, he finds the girl married to somebody else, and in an effort to save his partner from heartbreak, decides to pick up a curvacious beauty named Michelle (Capucine) in a Seattle honky-tonk and and bring her back to Nome as a substitute bride-to-be.

RIVALRY

So begins a bitter-friendly contest for the love of this high-spirited wench, a rivalry complicated by still another suitor, George's kid brother 17-year-old Billy (Fabian) who develops a romantic yearning for this entrancing "older woman" and woos her with adolescent ardor spiked by candles, champagne and other schoolboy advances.

Fighting the invasion of claim-jumpers, Sam and George come to a parting of the ways and are forced to place their holdings in government custody as they set out on a man-hunt for the crooks who have cross-filed on their hard-won mining stake. In a roaring chase, peppered with plenty of street-brawling, gunfire and bar-room fracas, their common cause makes real partners of them again, and the right man (the one Michelle really loves) gets the girl.

PRODUCER

This epic of the Alaska gold rush was produced and directed by Henry Hathaway, veteran Hollywood movie-maker who has literally grown up with the picture industry and is associated with some of its biggest action money-makers, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "Johnny Apollo," and other hits.

In the role of Sam, the lusty, good-looking, hard-drinking pioneer, John Wayne delivers one of the top performances of his action-packed career as a box-office draw.

"North to Alaska" brings back to the screen the glamorous talents of French model Capucine, who won the hearts of picture audiences as the princess in the recent life-story of Franz Liszt, "Song Without End." As the bewitching Michelle of the Alaska frontier epic, she gives a performance which should insure her stellar future in Hollywood.

Off-Broadway Hit

The English rights have been acquired by Frank Productions, the corporate being of composer Frank Loesser.

CELEBRATING a victory over the claim-jumpers in the rip-roaring gold rush are Fabian, John Wayne, Stewart Granger and Capucine. The scene is from "North to Alaska," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

OPENING Sunday, Nov. 27, at the Paramount Theatre is "Girl of the Night," which stars Anne Francis and John Kerr as a "young girl" and her lover. The picture also stars Lloyd Nolan and Kay Medford.

Broadway Actors Are Disappointed

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Broadway actors who come to Hollywood for the first time invariably hate it. Tony Mordente, veteran of the Broadway and London versions of "West Side Story" and now in town for the movie version, tells why:

"So what's to do?" he asks. "In New York when you finish a show you go out and meet people, show people, and talk. There's a couple dozen all-night joints to sit and gab in. Next morning you sleep until noon or later.

PRESLEY PERFORMS in Hal Wallis' Technicolor musical romance, "G. I. Blues," which marks Elvis' return to cinematic life following his Army duties. The Paramount release, due Wednesday at the Jim Theatre, co-stars dancer Juliet Prowse, top girl, with the Italian lass, Leticia Roman, and German beauty, Sigrid Maier, featured.

'G. I. Blues' With Presley Coming Soon

Elvis is back in a great, big and different way in "G.I. Blues," which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. He's the same wonderfully-voiced singer, but has the added dimension of maturity plus a demonstrated flair for playing romantic comedy that stamps him another graduate from simply a singer of style to a singer-actor of considerable appeal.

The the Hal Wallis Technicolor production is a Paramount release. Presley's leading lady is Juliet Prowse, a knockout of a redhead, who is also a sensational dancer. Fans will remember her as the leading dancer of "Can-Can." She goes a step farther — and a long step it is, too — as Elvis' romantic "target" in "G. I. Blues," a torrid cabaret dancer who has a reputation with the G.I.s of having a heart of ice. Presley becomes involved when he is drafted by his buddies to break through her defenses and win a $300 wager they have that it can be done by the G.I. who has the right tactical maneuvers. During the "maneuvers" Elvis and Juliet fall in love and there are amusing complications before the path of romance leads to a happy end.

The film represents a liberally fictionized version of Presley's own Army service in that it is set in West Germany with the star's own outfit providing the military aspects of the story.

Presley sings ten new, terrific tunes and he's in great voice. Miss Prowse's dancing is nothing short of sensational, too. Contributing to the fun are Robert Ivers and James Douglas as Elvis' buddies, and two European beauties, Leticia Roman and Sigrid Maier as their frauleins.

Norman Taurog did an excellent directing job.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

The Selman Field Playhouse is buzzing with activity.

Rehearsals for the "Gazebo" are in full swing. However, the cast and crew will take a holiday Thursday to celebrate Thanksgiving Day. No rehearsals Thursday night. However, rehearsals will resume on Friday as usual, because time is getting short. The play is scheduled to open in about two weeks, and everyone is busy.

Those who attended one of the two performances of "Ghosts," which was presented this past Monday and Tuesday nights by the Drama Department, Division of Fine Arts of Northeast Louisiana State College, were more than pleased with the performances and the presentation as a whole.

TRAGEDY

This was a family tragedy by Henrik Ibsen, and was directed by George Brian. Making up the cast were Phyllis Gardsbane, W. J. Haddad, George Patterson, Pat Medaries and Chuck Morgan. You will recognize most of these actors from past Little Theatre plays. This was a very difficult play and very well done.

The cast of "The Gazebo" has been completed, with Dr. H. L. Browning playing the part of a policeman. Our hats are off this week to Northeast Louisiana State College. Three of the college staff are in "The Gazebo," Dr. Browning, Claude Fuller and Dr. Beryl Franklin.

Miss Lallage Feazel, Frances Ritter and Kathryn Sloan, are leaving this week for Dallas to attend the opera. They plan to see "Alcina," and "Don Giovanni".

We want to thank our faithful Little Theatre members for assuming responsibilities for our current play. Patricia Peyton is serving as assistant to the director. Walter Carlisle, Curtis Rape and Ray Magruder are handling the lights, while Charlene Correro and Edna Frantom are in charge of properties. All these things are necessary and important and we appreciate the part these play in getting the play before the public.

Happy Thanksgiving!

The Paramount release, due Wednesday at the Jim Theatre, co-stars dancer Juliet Prowse, top girl, with the Italian lass, Leticia Roman, and German beauty, Sigrid Maier, featured.

'G. I. Blues' With Presley Coming Soon

Elvis is back in a great, big and different way in "G.I. Blues," which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. He's the same wonderfully-voiced singer, but has the added dimension of maturity plus a demonstrated flair for playing romantic comedy that stamps him another graduate from simply a singer of style to a singer-actor of considerable appeal.

The the Hal Wallis Technicolor production is a Paramount release. Presley's leading lady is Juliet Prowse, a knockout of a redhead, who is also a sensational dancer. Fans will remember her as the leading dancer of "Can-Can." She goes a step farther — and a long step it is, too — as Elvis' romantic "target" in "G. I. Blues," a torrid cabaret dancer who has a reputation with the G.I.s of having a heart of ice. Presley becomes involved when he is drafted by his buddies to break through her defenses and win a $300 wager they have that it can be done by the G.I. who has the right tactical maneuvers. During the "maneuvers" Elvis and Juliet fall in love and there are amusing complications before the path of romance leads to a happy end.

The film represents a liberally fictionized version of Presley's own Army service in that it is set in West Germany with the star's own outfit providing the military aspects of the story.

Presley sings ten new, terrific tunes and he's in great voice. Miss Prowse's dancing is nothing short of 'sensational, too. Contributing to the fun are Robert Ivers and James Douglas as Elvis' buddies, and two European beauties, Leticia Roman and Sigrid Maier as their frauleins.

Norman Taurog did an excellent directing job.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

The Selman Field Playhouse is buzzing with activity.

Rehearsals for the "Gazebo" are in full swing. However, the cast and crew will take a holiday Thursday to celebrate Thanksgiving Day. No rehearsals Thursday night. However, rehearsals will resume on Friday as usual, because time is getting short. The play is scheduled to open in about two weeks, and everyone is busy.

Those who attended one of the two performances of "Ghosts," which was presented this past Monday and Tuesday nights by the Drama Department, Division of Fine Arts of Northeast Louisiana State College, were more than pleased with the performances and the presentation as a whole.

TRAGEDY

This was a family tragedy by Henrik Ibsen, and was directed by George Brian. Making up the cast were Phyllis Gardsbane, W. J. Haddad, George Patterson, Pat Medaries and Chuck Morgan. You will recognize most of these actors from past Little Theatre plays. This was a very difficult play and very well done.

The cast of "The Gazebo" has been completed, with Dr. H. L. Browning playing the part of a policeman. Our hats are off this week to Northeast Louisiana State College. Three of the college staff are in "The Gazebo," Dr. Browning, Claude Fuller and Dr. Beryl Franklin.

Miss Lallage Feazel, Frances Ritter and Kathryn Sloan, are leaving this week for Dallas to attend the opera. They plan to see "Alcina," and "Don Giovanni".

We want to thank our faithful Little Theatre members for assuming responsibilities for our current play. Patricia Peyton is serving as assistant to the director. Walter Carlisle, Curtis Rape and Ray Magruder are handling the lights, while Charlene Correro and Edna Frantom are in charge of properties. All these things are necessary and important and we appreciate the part these play in getting the play before the public.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Church Art Is Analyzed By Decorator

SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI) — Housewives who start fretting about changing the color of the living room wallpaper or the drapes just think they have problems.

Consider Maurice Loriaux. He's an interior decorator — of churches. Loriaux is one of a half-dozen eccesiologists in the United States, a title that means he's studied theology, architecture, art, sculpture, symbology and iconography.

Loriaux, 49 years old, has been in his work 17 years, 13 as part-owner of the Santa Fe Studios of Church Art, and has done the "insides" of 300

Church Art Is Analyzed By Decorator

SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI) — Housewives who start fretting about changing the color of the living room wallpaper or the drapes just think they have problems.

Consider Maurice Loriaux. He's an interior decorator — of churches. Loriaux is one of a half-dozen eccesiologists in the United States, a title that means he's studied theology, architecture, art, sculpture, symbology and iconography.

Loriaux, 49 years old, has been in his work 17 years, 13 as partowner of the Santa Fe Studios of Church Art, and has done the "insides" of 300 new or renovated churches — 90 per cent of them Roman Catholic or Episcopal.

In that time Loriaux—a

THE HOME SHIFT

Lawn Beauty Is Seen Here

By MILDRED SWIFT

Just passed the Tom Davis home, 106 Glenmar, and admired their perfectly sod zoysia matrella lawn. This is a beautiful sight. The grass is slow getting a start and is more expensive than most others, but my, it's gorgeous. Take a look and see for yourself.

ALL-AMERICA ROSES

The most important honor a rose can win in the United States has been accorded a hybrid tea named Duet, and a grandiflora known as Pink Parfait.

The Duet is a blend of two warm, rich colors, the inner surface of its petals is a soft salmon pink, the outer a rosey crimson. The blooms are medium in size, beautifully formed and composed of 30 petals borne on strong stems of medium length. They are idea for cutting and arranging. Duet holds its petals well and retains its rich colors through wide variations in weather.

DELICATE

Pink Parfait produces blossoms that are a delicate mixture of pink pastel shades, the bud stage ranging from down pink to apple-blossom pink. The flowers are of medium size and are produced in heavy quantity. It is not unusual for a mature plant to bear 100 or more buds at the same time. As befits a glandiflora, the plant is large and vigorous and has neat, compact foliage that forms a perfect background for its heavy clusters of blooms.

Both 1961 winners can be grown anywhere in the United States.

This is not the time to put out roses, but the beds can be prepared and the list made. Call our office for a rose bulletin that gives you full instructions on planting, culture, varieties, etc.

WE'RE ENVIED

Our friends from the north say they are envious of the color we can get in our gardens through the use of foliage. One of the simplest is to use variegated and gray varieties of well-known plants. A garden gets pretty monotonous with just green even though there are many different shades.

Some of those interesting plants are variegated enonymous, variegated hydrangea, pittosporum, eleoagnes, the privets and many others. Just visit the nurseries.

Then there are gray foliages, the most outstanding being santolina. If you're not familiar with this ground cover, notice the lovely plantings at the Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabititation Center on Oliver Road.

Then there are colored foliage plants such as crotons, acubas, caladiums and coleus (for summer), variegated asperdistra, lirope and trailing periwinkle.

SUSANGEAS

While susangeas are in bloom is the best time for deciding on varieties you'd like to plant. This shrub belongs to the same family with the camellia. It needs the same type soil, which of course means acid and that means humus. It also needs about the same care. There are many new varieties, including a red. Also there are dwarf varieties for those who need smaller plants in their gardens. Visit the nurseries while these are in bloom and select those you like. This plant is evergreen, is bought with a ball of dirt or in buckets, so can be moved now.

However, remember this —some years when we have early cold the blossoms will be killed. This is such a beautiful everygreen with its bright shiny leaves, it's worth its price for just an evergreen.

AROUND GARDEN

Violets are beginning to bloom. Before tying these in bunches for your arrangements and corsages, submerge them in water but, upside down. I'm told the blooms will stay fresh a week after this conditioning. It seems that violets take in water through their blossoms — or some such funny habit.

If you have a fig tree, a good mulch of leaves or grass clippings is excellent for protecting the shallow roots. Pile the mulch about six inches high beginning six inches from the trunk and extend the mulch slightly beyond the ends of the branches of the tree.

Many young homemakers yearn for their first home. In their dreams they see flowers blooming and nine times out of ten among those flowers are tulips. Then when this dream does come true, they're quite disappointed when the tulips fail to come up and bloom the second year. But tulips just don't do that for us in this warm climate. You'll have to buy and plant the bulbs every year.

Time to snip some coleus or wondering jew and either plant in pots or put in water for the house this winter. I find both grow well in water.

As the perennial seed you planted early begin to grow, pinch out the tops. This pinching makes the plant husky rather than tall and skinny. If these perennials grow too tall, next spring they'll fall over in the beds. This includes larkspur, cornflower, poppy and others.

This is not the time to move chrysanthemum plants. After they finish blooming just cut off the tops and leave them 'til next spring.

If you're planning to raise bluebonnets, plant seed right away, as they take quite a long time to germinate. They are a species of lupine. If you have the patience to pierce each seed with a sharp needle and soak them overnight you'll get faster germination. Bluebonnets like a sweet soil so a little lime worked in the bed before seed planting time will help.

WATSONIA

Watsonia bears a flower that looks a lot like the glad, but it's smaller and the floral stems are branched, while the glad almost never branches. The foliage is much alike, too, but then the two are close relatives. The watsonia grows ten or eleven months out of the year like Easter lilies do. They bloom in early spring, but do most of their growing in the winter.

It is time to put out these watsonia bulbs. I don't know if the nurseries carry these. If your bulbs are too thick, now is the time to transplant. Please pass some on to your neighbor if you have an overflow. This is not the time to plant glads.

Mrs. Florence Filhoil gave me several bulbs of watsonia, of a very delicate shade of pink. They are so pretty, but like a lot of the pinks in any bulb, they don't multiply very fast.

NEW

There's a sink on exhibit in New York that's equipped with detergent, soap and hand lotion dispensers. Also there's a fold-away sewing center. It has a machine that swings out of the cabinet for use, then back out of the way in concealed storage position. Bernice Woods has such a built-in machine in her laundry room.

An automatic home laundry center is also being shown. It has touch-button dispensers for bleach and blueing.

JEWELRY

Brooches make news in jewelry this winter. They're varied, flowers being the favorite motif.

Probably the newest looking trend in jewelry is the long necklace. Inspired by real jewel fashions, chains of lustrous fake pearls, brilliantly colored beads, iridescent stones or jet are steadily gaining in popularity. The long line of these new necklaces helps to lengthen and slim the silhouette.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The ginkgo tree in the Layton garden is just beginning to turn. After another frost or two it should be a ball of gold.

Your Open House TV programs for next week are: Monday, Mrs. Bonnie McDaniel will demonstrate "Better Clothing through Research." Tuesday, A. M. Raley, Thanksgiving decorations; Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulke; Thursday, no show; Friday, Lola Caldwell will help you buy towels and bath cloths.

Happy Thanksgiving!

See you next Sunday.

Girl Scout News

Ever hear of a Mississippi Mermaid? Well, the muddy Mississippi may be a far cry from the fabled Rhine maidens, but next June will see some 500 mermaids on its waters. They'll be the girls in green, modern maidens we all know, Senior Scouts from home towns all over the Dixie Region, taking part in a cruise from Memphis to New Orleans. They are to spend a week on the steamer Avalon, making excursions on shore at interesting stops.

On board the girls will avail themselves of the sessions of singing, games, crafts, seamanship for Mariner Scouts, forums and discussion groups. They will be divided into 16 troops, with an adult leader for each. The last day of the trip they will spend sightseeing in New Orleans. Ten girls of our council have sent in registrations for the trip and two adults have applied for staff jobs. Others are expected to join the excursion with names of all attending to be announced later.

Troop 35, Jefferson Junior High, held a Scout's Own in observance of Founder's Day and invited Brownie Scout troop 103, Mrs. Quitman Hudnall, leader, to be their guest. Mrs. Harold Fike, leader of Troop 35, and the girls planned the joint meeting as part of the requirements for Homemaking on Second Class Rank. The troop has just re-registered for another year of Scouting, with the following enrolled, some of them for their fourth year: Wanda Blankenship, Brenda Carter, Francis Gossett, Valeria Fike, Lynn Hays, Sandra Henry, Wilma Thomas and JoAnn Wesson. Mrs. Dora Hays is the assistant Leader of Troop 35.

A new troop at Plum Street School is 106, with Mrs. W. A. Agin and Mrs. J. C. Coon as leaders. Serving on the troop committee are: Mrs. Clayton Gibson, Mrs. Jimmy Dye, and Mrs. W. P. Stewart, Jr. Invested last week are the following new Brownie Scouts who will fly-up into Intermediate Scouting in the spring: Patricia Ann Agin, Sherry Kay Brooks, Robbie Sue Bullock, Janice Coon, Durice Davis, Nancy Dye, Debbie Evans, Connie Gibson, Donna Hargiss, Barbara Horne, Judy Ann Jones, Judy Maddox, Jeanie Marie Monk, Karla Kay Price, Mickey Sedberry, Kathy Smith, Carol Steward and Jancie Willhite.

This troop will probably have a good crafts program, as their leaders have attended all the training offered along that line.

Troop camping continues popular. Girls of Troop 2 say that they have never spent a warm night at camp. It is always cold and usually rains. Last week they had a cold, clear, starry night, so they could enjoy an outdoor campfire and games around the fireplace, marshmallows and popcorn later. Each girl had been assigned to plan a game the troop hadn't played before.

Conservation On Range Is Stamp Topic

Range conservation, a topic of major concern to many in the stern sector of the U. S., is now a topic for stamp collectors.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield announced that the Post Office Department would issue a 4 cent Range Conservation stamp on Feb. 2, 1961 at Salt Lake City in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Society of Range Management.

Also cooperating in plans for the first day ceremony are the Forestry Service and the Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture, and the Bureau of Land Management and Indian Service of the Department of the Interior.

The new stamp will depict the importance of grassland and livestock to the nation's agriculture. It will dramatize the development of range conservation from the pioneer days of the open range to today's scientific range management techniques.

The design is divided into two parts. The left half features a reproduction of "The Trail Boss," a line drawing by western artist Charles M. Russell. The right half shows a contemporary range scene.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the 4-cent Range Conservation stamp may send their self-addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Salt Lake City 1, Utah. Each envelope must be marked in pencil in the upper right corner the number of stamps to be affixed.

Again a reminder that requests for first day covers must be postmarked five days in advance of the issuance date — or prior to Jan. 28, 1961.

The John Foster Dulles Memorial stamp will be first placed on sale at Washington, D. C. on Dec. 6, 1960. Collectors who have not already done so may send addressed covers, with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C. The outside envelope must be marked "First Day Covers Dulles Memorial Stamp." The design and information on this 4-cent stamp in this column.

Pakistan has issued two new stamps to mark the second anniversary and progress made by the country under the regime of F. M. Mohammad Ayub Khan. The 2 annas brown, pink and green, and the 14 annas blue, yellow and green bear the same design.

Early in 1960 this column reported that a stamp contest was being held to determine the "world's prettiest stamp." Beauty was the sole basis of judging—with no concern for age, rarity or value.

The winner was the United States issue of 1959 which shows the American flag. This is the 49-star flag printed in blue and carmine on white to commemorate the admission of Alaska into the Union as the 49th state.

Second place went to Greece—the 5 drachmas issued in 1958 which depicted a Greek ship, the Argo and paid tribute to the Greek merchant marine.

Third place was assigned to a stamp issued to Colombia in 1959. The 10 centavo displayed a portrait of Luz Marina Suluaga, "Miss Universe of 1959."

Japan has issued a new 10 yen stamp to mark the establishment of the Okayama Astrophysical Observatory. Also issued by Japan were two new 5 yen stamps honoring the 15th National Athletic Meeting.

Former Navy Ensign Returns To Enact Scenes

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jack Lemmon reports the Navy hasn't changed since the days when he was a World War II ensign.

He recently was in Honolulu filming "The Wackiest Ship in the Army."

"We hired a group of high-ranking naval officers — admirals among them—to play themselves in one scene," says Lemmon. "They had watched me and Ricky Nelson in one scene and then observed when our stand-ins came in under the hot lights to set up the next one.

"Director Dick Murphy asked the brass to take their places with the stand-ins so the lights could be adjusted. One admiral asked if the order could be delayed 60 seconds. It was.

"Soon a bunch of ensigns and chief petty officers trooped in. They announced they were the admirals' stand-ins. The grinning admirals they pardoned themselves and went out on the deck for a smoke."

MOTHER LOVE, cat fashion, is the result of studying his pets' habits, says Walter Chandoha, Annadale, N.J., photographer. This mother cat always cleaned her kitten's face after a meal. He set up his camera and lights, then fed them. He was ready when the action took place.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Iris Family Extensive

By MARY M. JARDINE

There are more than thirteen hundred species of flowers in the iris family. One of these is the saffron crocus from which comes the most expensive spice. It takes the orange stigmas of 75,000 blooms to make on pound of saffron condiment. In ages past saffron was so valued as a drug and yellow dye that men were burned at the stake for adulterating it. Today we have better dyes and drugs, but still we raise the flowers for their spicy stigmas and autumn color.

Better known in our southern gardens is the spring crocus. It can bloom early because it manufactured flowers and leaves the year before and stored them underground. With a little water these parts are ready to push out of the corm and flourish even in cold February.

In 1571 the King of Spain sent his physician to Mexico in search of new medicinal plants. He brought back drawings of an Aztec favorite, the spotted Tiger-Flower (or shell flower). It was so odd one authority dismissed it as "mere fiction." Today it brightens our summer gardens, and the corms are still an important Mexican food.

BLUE FLAG

The blue flag is even more attractive to bees than to man. Its three petals stand erect signaling for attention with the bee's favorite color. Its large sepasl or "falls" offer landing strips streaked yellow toward the nectaries. Its broad styles arch above the sepals forming three bee-sized tunnels (no butterflies allowed) with nectar at their bases and pollen in their ceilings. The bee - flower partnership works so well that blue flags grow by the acre in eastern U.S. marshes.

FLAMBOYANT

Louisiana Irises outshine their conservative Yankee relatives. With a flamboyant display of color they parade the marshes and bayou banks of the Mississippi delta. Civilization with its building and drainage programs has destroyed many native iris fields, but at the same time Southerners have taken the bayou beauties into their gardens and hybridized them, and nurseries now offer them in other sections.

BLACKBERRY LILY

The Blackberry Lily acts like an eastern American wildflower, but its native home is China. Americans imported it for their gardens, and from these plantings it has run wild. Properly, we should call the plant Belamcanda, since it is neither blackberry (though it has black seeds) nor a lily (though it has six petal parts). Its three stamens make it a part of the iris family rather than the similar amaryllids.

BAYOU VISTA

COLORFUL

Mrs. Ben Winegart created a colorful arrangement using dried and treated materials. A gray-green boat shaped compote held the open crescent design of naturally dried aspidistra leaves followed by seed pods of the milkweed. Curved okra pods were placed on the left. The open crescent held a massed line of straw flowers shading from yellow into bronze, into deep red. This arrangement was planned for a living room with green walls, white drapes and green carpet and will be staged on a side table against white drapes.

Garden grown chrysanthemums were featured in Mrs. C. S. McIntosh's colorful arrangement. The container selected was a deep green compote set on a deep maroon carrara base, rectangular in shape. The arrangement was placed at one end of the base achieving balance by placement. The design was asymetrical in pattern and composed of graceful lines of eucalyptus filled in with red-violet chrysanthemums. A cluster of dark purple-red plums was placed over the rim of the container. The color harmony was most appealing.

Mrs. Frank Francis designed a lovely composition in colors of yellow, orange, bronze and brown. The materials were both dried and treated. A leaf-shaped tray carved of wood served as a container for the mass design. Pencil cat-tails were used in the background, followed by glycerinized fern of dark brown. Magnolia leaves in natural brown formed the background for the straw flowers shading from yellow into orange and bronze. Lower placements of bright bittersweet berries were effectively massed at the rim of the container. A most effective use of fall colors.

TV Star Was Chaplain In World War

HOLLYWOOD—The old adage of helping yourself by helping others has proved effective in the case of Donald May. The actor figures he wouldn't now be starring as the newspaper columnist in Warner Bros.' new "The Roaring 20's" series for ABC-TV if he hadn't served for 18 months as a lay chaplain aboard a destroyer during the Korean war.

"Actually I was a gunnery officer aboard the destroyer, but since no chaplain was attached the ship, I was nominated," he explained. "I gave a sermon every Sunday in the mess hall for 18 months and I consider myself fortunate to have had the experience. How many young men have the opportunity of expressing their thoughts from a pulpit!

OWN THOUGHTS

"By presenting my own thoughts in a sermon and counseling others, I was able to give myself a sense of discipline and responsibility. Applying religion to practical every day living has helped me tremendously in overcoming disappointments."

May was born in Chicago, later moved to Houston, Cleveland, and Oklahoma City as occasioned by his father's business ventures. He launched his acting career with summer stock companies in Maine and Connecticut immediately upon receiving an A.B. degree from the University of Oklahoma.

He was studying drama at the Yale University Graduate School at the time he joined the Navy. When May returned to civilian life, he appearel on practically all the leading TV shows in New York and toured the country with Julie Harris in "The Warm Peninsula" before coming to Hollywood.

Cats Grace The Pages Of '61 Calendar

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

My annual notice that a new year is just around the corner is signalled by cats. There are wide-eyed and sleepy cats, old and young cats, Siamese and alley cats, playful and wary cats.

They were all photographed by Walter Chandoha for the "1961 Cat Calendar" (Berkshire Publishing Co., Cambridge, Mass.), a weekly engagement book. The large variety was needed since a new cat character is featured for each week in the year.

REPUTATION

Chandoha's repuration as a top cat photographer is well deserved but he's doggone smart, too. And so, not to lose favor with the dog lovers of the nation there's a "1961 dog Calendar" with equally fascinating photos of man's best friend.

Having watched him photographing cats and dogs in the past, here are some of his maneuvers, tricks and advice that might help camera fans who wish to take pictures of their own pets.

"One of the secrets of good animal photography," Chandoha says, "is observation.

"Study your pet for days — or weeks — observe its habits in different situations. Note its reactions before and after meals and when it gets playful and sleepy. How does it react to different sounds, new toys, strange people, food odors?

"When you're familiar with your pet's habits, you can plan your picture taking to capture the playful activities or interesting reactions that you've seen before."

Select a small area as the shooting stage so that you don't have to shift focus constantly. In winter, cats prefer a warm spot near a radiator or in a sunny area on the rug or a window sill. Or you put a favorite cushion or blanket on a small table and place it several feet away from a plain wall. An armchair or couch can also be used provided it's covered by a plain cloth or blanket to hide any distracting patterns.

Food, or the smell of food, can be used to keep a pet on the stage set. Strange sounds can arouse their curiosity or startle them at attention at the moment of shooting.

"I crumple some cigarete celophane in my hands," Chardoha says, "snap my fingers or tap a tattoo on the camera. Sometimes I moo like a cow, cluck like a hen or gobble like a turkey. The point is to interest them but not to scare them with a loud or explosive noise."

An assistant, out of camera range, can prove helpful in holding the pet's attention while the photographer shoots away. He or she can dangle a lure on a string from a stick like a fishing pole. A paper butterfly, some colored yarn or a little toy at the end of the string might prove even more interesting if smeared with some tantalizing food odor first.

Since pets are small, shooting should be done at the closest distance possible but not closer than the minimum distance recommended for each camera. For real close-ups, a portrait attachment is an essential accessory but accurate measurement between lens and subject is also essential.

Mastery of lighting is in the final element that distinguishes Chandoha's pictures and which can enhance or spoil an amateur's pet pictures.

Indoor lighting offers a choice between available light, and flood, flash or strobe lighting. High-speed black-and-white film and a camera with an f-3.5 or faster lens are minimum requirements for available light shooting. Even then, reflectors, light walls and anything else to boost the light level will undoubtedly be needed to give good quality pictures.

Two photofloods, placed at either side of the camera, and another one or two to provide sidelight or backlight, can produce the sparkling highlights that give punch to a pet picture. For color pictures, best results will be had with two or three flash or strobe lights on extension wires or slave units.

EXTENSION NOTES

Transplant Trees, Shrubs

By AUDREY DAWSON

November is the time to start planting and transplanting trees and shrubs. Early planting will give the plant material ample time to become well established before spring growth begins. Plant shade trees on the south, east and west. You may choose from the deciduous trees as the pecan, cypress, red maple, tulip or the mimosa. If you want trees on the north to serve as windbreak, select either the magnolia grandiflora, live oak or spruce pines. Select trees that are in scale with your house. A large tree on a small lot tends to make your lot look smaller. Small growing trees on a large property tend to give a spotty appearance unless used in large numbers.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are trying to decide on the tree or trees you want for your landscape, I suggest you drive out in the country. The only trouble will be that the trees are all so beautiful that it will be hard to decide on just which one is the prettiest. If you need a beautiful drive this Sunday, I can recommend a gorgeous one right here in our own parish. Yours truly has never seen the trees more beautiful than on the drive to Cypress community down in Ward 9 of the parish this past week. Each tree seemed to be trying to outdo the one next to it in an array of autumn colors of which I have never witnessed before. The people in the community remarked that they thought the trees were more beautiful in color than in many years.

Remember you new home owners it's important to get those shade trees planted before you realize the season for planting will be over and you will have wasted a year of growth. Trees enhance your property and surely add comfort during the summer months.

FASHIONS

Fashions and color is good news for our youth because they are just right for them this season. Styles are easy fluid, casual, the silhouette is loose, the waistline lightly dropped, the shoulder line low and the skirt short. Pleats have never been more popular - often cut on the bias, and often unpressed. Youth will carry off beautifully the latest fads in pants; Bermuda length culottes, and of all things, knickers are very fashionable this season.

As to color, purple is very strong from lilac through amethyst to deep plum. A brassy gold is seen in plaids. The intense new kelly blue is used in sports clothes and shocking pink is ever popular and so are reds from true to purplish. Beige stands high for evening wear and black is good any place, any time.

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations are in order to the members of three of the Home Demonstration Clubs of the parish for an outstanding job during the past year. The Woodlawn Club, Mrs. Truman Wright, president, placed first in the Best Club Contest for the year. The award was a silver coffee service from one of our local feed and seed stores. The Colony Club, Mrs. E. O. Welch, president, was awarded $10 from the Ouachita Valley Fair for having the greatest number of attendance at the parish Council meeting during this past year. The Better Homemakers Club, Mrs. Frank Buce President, placed first in the scrapbook division and was awarded $5.

READY-TO-SERVE

Mrs. Homemaker, you are paying food handlers and manufacturers 46 cents an hour for the ready-to-serve foods you buy according to a recent study done by the Michigan State University economists. This is based on the amount of time it would take to prepare an equivalent meal from raw foods. The United States Department of Agriculture reports show that package mixes are more expensive than individual ingredients for these baked products. The homemaker pays 20 per cent more for cake, 50 per cent more for biscuit and 75 per cent more for pie crust.

A THOUGHT

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Magic Week In Southland

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

This is the magic week: leaves will come down, and winter will begin in the South! The Southern winter is an evergreen winter, full of sunshiny days, late autumn flowers and early spring flowers. Just lately, we have begun to discover real winter flowers, too, that do not bloom in any other season.

PRUNING

The disappearance of the leaves from the trees uncovers many things to be done. If no pruning or shaping has been done on everygreens during the growing season, their ragged condition will surely show up now. The objective is to keep them as near to their natural shape as possible. "Once over lightly" is a good policy for the first round of pruning. It really takes a light pruning to see what you can do with a shrub. If you go at it too drastically, you may cut too deeply into your plant - beyond the place where new buds can arise. Too drastic pruning may also cause your shrubs to come out so thickly that they will assume a tight, hedge-like appearance that makes them all look alike. It takes most kinds several years to get over this mistake and usually results in digging out whole foundation planting and throwing them away. So beware!

HONEYSUCKLE

Most of us find that honeysuckle has invaded our gardens and shrubs during the growing season. This beautiful and romantic pest from China is choking our woods and thickets to death with sweetness and love! It is competing with the yellow jessamine in the woods — even with the cat-briars (Smilax species) and with blackberries and other smaller shrubs. The cross vine seems to be able to outclimb Chinese honeysuckle, but our native woodbine or coral honeysuckle succumbs to it. Honeysuckle, as we have said in the column before, can be successfully destroyed by using weed killers at extra strength during the Winter when the leaves are off the other plants. Choose a time just as a cold spell begins to give way to warm weather. The honeysuckle foliage is everygreen and active enough on warm days to absorb the weed killer. It will take a few weeks to see the destruction of honeysuckle, but weed killers will get it.

BULB PLANTING

If you have not yet received bulbs that have been ordered, go ahead and prepare the soil for them. Our soil never freezes deeply enough in the South to prevent us from planting bulbs in winter. As every gardenr who transplants a lot of bulbs each year knows, we always find ourselves planting them in January. Late planted bulbs should be soaked in a bucket of water overnight. Some gardeners deliberately leave out a number of big bulbs and plant them late in order to have blossoms a week later than the normal season.

Lawn Beauty Is Seen Here

By MILDRED SWIFT

Just passed the Tom Davis home, 106 Glenmar, and admired their perfectly sod zoysia matrella lawn. This is a beautiful sight. The grass is slow getting a start and is more expensive than most others, but my, it's gorgeous. Take a look and see for yourself.

ALL-AMERICA ROSES

The most important honor a rose can win in the United States has been accorded a hybrid tea named Duet, and a grandiflora known as Pink Parfait.

The Duet is a blend of two warm, rich colors, the inner surface of its petals is a soft salmon pink, the outer a rosey crimson. The blooms are medium in size, beautifully formed and composed of 30 petals borne on strong stems of medium length. They are idea for cutting and arranging. Duet holds its petals well and retains its rich colors through wide variations in weather.

DELICATE

Pink Parfait produces blossoms that are a delicate mixture of pink pastel shades, the bud stage ranging from down pink to apple-blossom pink. The flowers are of medium size and are produced in heavy quantity. It is not unusual for a mature plant to bear 100 or more buds at the same time. As befits a glandiflora, the plant is large and vigorous and has neat, compact foliage that forms a perfect background for its heavy clusters of blooms.

Both 1961 winners can be grown anywhere in the United States.

This is not the time to put out roses, but the beds can be prepared and the list made. Call our office for a rose bulletin that gives you full instructions on planting, culture, varieties, etc.

Violets are beginning to bloom. Before tying these in bunches for your arrangements and corsages, submerge them in water but, upside down. I'm told the blooms will stay fresh a week after this conditioning. It seems that violets take in water through their blossoms — or some such funny habit.

If you have a fig tree, a good mulch of leaves or grass clippings is excellent for protecting the shallow roots. Pile the mulch about six inches high beginning six inches from the trunk and extend the mulch slightly beyond the ends of the branches of the tree.

Many young homemakers yearn for their first home. In their dreams they see flowers blooming and nine times out of ten among those flowers are tulips. Then when this dream does come true, they're quite disappointed when the tulips fail to come up and bloom the second year. But-tulips just don't do that for us in this warm climate. You'll have to buy and plant the bulbs every year.

Time to snip some coleus or wondering jew and either plant in pots or put in water for the house this winter. I find both grow well in water.

As the perennial seed you planted early begin to grow, pinch out the tops. This pinching makes the plant husky rather than tall and skinny. If these perennials grow too tall, next spring they'll fall over in the beds. This includes larkspur, cornflower, poppy and others.

This is not the time to move chrysanthemum plants. After they finish blooming just cut off the tops and leave them 'til next spring.

If you're planning to raise bluebonnets, plant seed right away, as they take quite a long time to germinate. They are a species of lupine. If you have the patience to pierce each seed with a sharp needle and soak them overnight you'll get faster germination. Bluebonnets like a sweet soil so a little lime worked in the bed before seed planting time will help.

WATSONIA

Watsonia bears a flower that looks a lot like the glad, but it's smaller and the floral stems are branched, while the glad almost never branches. The foliage is much alike, too, but then the two are close relatives. The watsonia grows ten or eleven months out of the year like Easter lilies do. They bloom in early spring, but do most of their growing in the winter.

It is time to put out these watsonia bulbs. I don't know if the nurseries carry these. If your bulbs are too thick, now is the time to transplant. Please pass some on to your neighbor if you have an overflow. This is not the time to plant glads.

Mrs. Florence Filhoil gave me several bulbs of watsonia, of a very delicate shade of pink. They are so pretty, but like a lot of the pinks in any bulb, they don't multiply very fast.

NEW

There's a sink on exhibit in New York that's equipped with detergent, soap and hand lotion dispensers. Also there's a fold-away sewing center. It has a machine that swings out of the cabinet for use, then back out of the way in concealed storage position. Bernice Woods has such a built-in machine in her laundry room.

An automatic home laundry center is also being shown. It has touch-button dispensers for bleach and blueing.

JEWELRY

Brooches make news in jewelry this winter. They're varied, flowers being the favorite motif.

Probably the newest looking trend in jewelry is the long necklace. Inspired by real jewel fashions, chains of lustrous fake pearls, brilliantly colored beads, iridescent stones or jet are steadily gaining in popularity. The long line of these new necklaces helps to lengthen and slim the silhouette.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The ginkgo tree in the Layton garden is just beginning to turn. After another frost or two it should be a ball of gold.

Your Open House TV programs for next week are: Monday, Mrs. Bonnie McDaniel will demonstrate "Better Clothing through Research." Tuesday, A. M. Raley, Thanksgiving decorations: Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulke; Thursday, no show; Friday, Lola Caldwell will help you buy towels and bath cloths.

Happy Thanksgiving!

See you next Sunday.

Girl Scout News

Ever hear of a Mississippi Mermaid? Well, the muddy Mississippi may be a far cry from the fabled Rhine maidens, but next June will see some 500 mermaids on its waters. They'll be the girls in green, modern maidens we all know, Senior Scouts from home towns all over the Dixie Region, taking part in a cruise from Memphis to New Orleans. They are to spend a week on the steamer Avalon, making excursions on shore at interesting stops.

On board the girls will avail themselves of the sessions of singing, games, crafts, seamanship for Mariner Scouts, forums and discussion groups. They will be divided into 16 troops, with an adult leader for each. The last day of the trip they will spend sightseeing in New Orleans. Ten girls of our council have sent in registrations for the trip and two adults have applied for staff jobs. Others are expected to join the excursion with names of all attending to be announced later.

Troop 35, Jefferson Junior High, held a Scout's Own in observance of Founder's Day and invited Brownie Scout troop 103, Mrs. Quitman Hudnall, leader, to be their guest. Mrs. Harold Fike, leader of Troop 35, and the girls planned the joint meeting as part of the requirements for Homemaking on Second Class Rank. The troop has just re-registered for another year of Scouting, with the following enrolled, some of them for their fourth year: Wanda Blankenship, Brenda Carter, Francis Gossett, Valeria Fike, Lynn Hays, Sandra Henry, Wilma Thomas and JoAnn Wesson. Mrs. Dora Hays is the assistant Leader of Troop 35.

A new troop at Plum Street School is 106, with Mrs. W. A. Agin and Mrs. J. C. Coon as leaders. Serving on the troop committee are: Mrs. Clayton Gibson, Mrs. Jimmy Dye, and Mrs. W. P. Stewart, Jr. Invested last week are the following new Brownie Scouts who will fly-up into Intermediate Scouting in the spring: Patricia Ann Agin, Sherry Kay Brooks, Robbie Sue Bullock, Janice Coon, Durice Davis, Nancy Dye, Debbie Evans, Connie Gibson, Donna Hargiss, Barbara Horne, Judy Ann Jones, Judy Maddox, Jeanie Marie Monk, Karla Kay Price, Mickey Sedberry, Kathy Smith, Carol Steward and Jancie Willhite.

This troop will probably have a good crafts program, as their leaders have attended all the training offered along that line.

Troop camping continues popular. Girls of Troop 2 say that they have never spent a warm night at camp. It is always cold and usually rains. Last week they had a cold, clear, starry night, so they could enjoy an outdoor campfire and games around the fireplace, marshmallows and popcorn later. Each girl had been assigned to plan a game the troop hadn't played before.

Conservation On Range Is Stamp Topic

Range conservation, a topic of major concern to many in the stern sector of the U. S., is now a topic for stamp collectors.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield announced that the Post Office Department would issue a 4 cent Range Conservation stamp on Feb. 2, 1961 at Salt Lake City in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Society of Range Management.

Also cooperating in plans for the first day ceremony are the Forestry Service and the Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture, and the Bureau of Land Management and Indian Service of the Department of the Interior.

The new stamp will depict the importance of grassland and livestock to the nation's agriculture. It will dramatize the development of range conservation from the pioneer days of the open range to today's scientific range management techniques.

The design is divided into two parts. The left half features a reproduction of "The Trail Boss," a line drawing by western artist Charles M. Russell. The right half shows a contemporary range scene.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the 4-cent Range Conservation stamp may send their self-addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Salt Lake City 1, Utah. Each envelope must be marked in pencil in the upper right corner the number of stamps to be affixed.

Again a reminder that requests for first day covers must be postmarked five days in advance of the issuance date — or prior to Jan. 28, 1961.

The John Foster Dulles Memorial stamp will be first placed on sale at Washington, D. C. on Dec. 6, 1960. Collectors who have not already done so may send addressed covers, with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C. The outside envelope must be marked "First Day Covers Dulles Memorial Stamp." The design and information on this 4-cent stamp in this column.

Pakistan has issued two new stamps to mark the second anniversary and progress made by the country under the regime of F. M. Mohammad Ayub Khan. The 2 annas brown, pink and green, and the 14 annas blue, yellow and green bear the same design.

Early in 1960 this column reported that a stamp contest was being held to determine the "world's prettiest stamp." Beauty was the sole basis of judging—with no concern for age, rarity or value.

The winner was the United States issue of 1959 which shows the American flag. This is the 49-star flag printed in blue and carmine on white to commemorate the admission of Alaska into the Union as the 49th state.

Second place went to Greece—the 5 drachmas issued in 1958 which depicted a Greek ship, the Argo and paid tribute to the Greek merchant marine.

Third place was assigned to a stamp issued to Colombia in 1959. The 10 centavo displayed a portrait of Luz Marina Suluaga, "Miss Universe of 1959."

Japan has issued a new 10 yen stamp to mark the establishment of the Okayama Astrophysical Observatory. Also issued by Japan were two new 5 yen stamps honoring the 15th National Athletic Meeting.

Former Navy Ensign Returns To Enact Scenes

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jack Lemmon reports the Navy hasn't changed since the days when he was a World War II ensign.

He recently was in Honolulu filming "The Wackiest Ship in the Army."

"We hired a group of high-ranking naval officers — admirals among them—to play themselves in one scene," says Lemmon. "They had watched me and Ricky Nelson in one scene and then observed when our stand-ins came in under the hot lights to set up the next one.

"Director Dick Murphy asked the brass to take their places with the stand-ins so the lights could be adjusted. One admiral asked if the order could be delayed 60 seconds. It was.

"Soon a bunch of ensigns and chief petty officers trooped in. They announced they were the admirals' stand-ins. The grinning admirals they pardoned themselves and went out on the deck for a smoke."

MOTHER LOVE, cat fashion, is the result of studying his pets' habits, says Walter Chandoha, Annadale, N.J., photographer. This mother cat always cleaned her kitten's face after a meal. He set up his camera and lights, then fed them. He was ready when the action took place.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

By MARY M. JARDINE

There are more than thirteen hundred species of flowers in the iris family. One of these is the saffron crocus from which comes the most expensive spice. It takes the orange stigmas of 75,000 blooms to make on pound of saffron condiment. In ages past saffron was so valued as a drug and yellow dye that men were burned at the stake for adulterating it. Today we have better dyes and drugs, but still we raise the flowers for their spicy stigmas and autumn color.

Better known in our southern gardens is the spring crocus. It can bloom early because it manufactured flowers and leaves the year before and stored them underground. With a little water these parts are ready to push out of the corm and flourish even in cold February.

In 1571 the King of Spain sent his physician to Mexico in search of new medicinal plants. He brought back drawings of an Aztec favorite, the spotted Tiger-Flower (or shell flower). It was so odd one authority dismissed it as "mere fiction." Today it brightens our summer gardens, and the corms are still an important Mexican food.

BLUE FLAG

The blue flag is even more attractive to bees than to man. Its three petals stand erect signaling for attention with the bee's favorite color. Its large sepasl or "falls" offer landing strips streaked yellow toward the nectaries. Its broad styles arch above the sepals forming three bee-sized tunnels (no butterflies allowed) with nectar at their bases and pollen in their ceilings. The bee - flower partnership works so well that blue flags grow by the acre in eastern U.S. marshes.

FLAMBOYANT

Louisiana Irises outshine their conservative Yankee relatives. With a flamboyant display of color they parade the marshes and bayou banks of the Mississippi delta. Civilization with its building and drainage programs has destroyed many native iris fields, but at the same time Southerners have taken the bayou beauties into their gardens and hybridized them, and nurseries now offer them in other sections.

BLACKBERRY LILY

The Blackberry Lily acts like an eastern American wildflower, but its native home is China. Americans imported it for their gardens, and from these plantings it has run wild. Properly, we should call the plant Belamcanda, since it is neither blackberry (though it has black seeds) nor a lily (though it has six petal parts). Its three stamens make it a part of the iris family rather than the similar amaryllids.

BAYOU VISTA

COLORFUL

Mrs. Ben Winegart created a colorful arrangement using dried and treated materials. A gray-green boat shaped compote held the open crescent design of naturally dried aspidistra leaves followed by seed pods of the milkweed. Curved okra pods were placed on the left. The open crescent held a massed line of straw flowers shading from yellow into bronze, into deep red. This arrangement was planned for a living room with green walls, white drapes and green carpet and will be staged on a side table against white drapes.

Garden grown chrysanthemums were featured in Mrs. C. S. McIntosh's colorful arrangement. The container selected was a deep green compote set on a deep maroon carrara base, rectangular in shape. The arrangement was placed at one end of the base achieving balance by placement. The design was asymetrical in pattern and composed of graceful lines of eucalyptus filled in with red-violet chrysanthemums. A cluster of dark purple-red plums was placed over the rim of the container. The color harmony was most appealing.

Mrs. Frank Francis designed a lovely composition in colors of yellow, orange, bronze and brown. The materials were both dried and treated. A leaf-shaped tray carved of wood served as a container for the mass design. Pencil cat-tails were used in the background, followed by glycerinized fern of dark brown. Magnolia leaves in natural brown formed the background for the straw flowers shading from yellow into orange and bronze. Lower placements of bright bittersweet berries were effectively massed at the rim of the container. A most effective use of fall colors.

TV Star Was Chaplain In World War

HOLLYWOOD—The old adage of helping yourself by helping others has proved effective in the case of Donald May. The actor figures he wouldn't now be starring as the newspaper columnist in Warner Bros.' new "The Roaring 20's" series for ABC-TV if he hadn't served for 18 months as a lay chaplain aboard a destroyer during the Korean war.

"Actually I was a gunnery officer aboard the destroyer, but since no chaplain was attached the ship, I was nominated," he explained. "I gave a sermon every Sunday in the mess hall for 18 months and I consider myself fortunate to have had the experience. How many young men have the opportunity of expressing their thoughts from a pulpit!

OWN THOUGHTS

"By presenting my own thoughts in a sermon and counseling others, I was able to give myself a sense of discipline and responsibility. Applying religion to practical every day living has helped me tremendously in overcoming disappointments."

May was born in Chicago, later moved to Houston, Cleveland, and Oklahoma City as occasioned by his father's business ventures. He launched his acting career with summer stock companies in Maine and Connecticut immediately upon receiving an A.B. degree from the University of Oklahoma.

He was studying drama at the Yale University Graduate School at the time he joined the Navy. When May returned to civilian life, he appearel on practically all the leading TV shows in New York and toured the country with Julie Harris in "The Warm Peninsula" before coming to Hollywood.

Cats Grace The Pages Of '61 Calendar

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

My annual notice that a new year is just around the corner is signalled by cats. There are wide-eyed and sleepy cats, old and young cats, Siamese and alley cats, playful and wary cats.

They were all photographed by Walter Chandoha for the "1961 Cat Calendar" (Berkshire Publishing Co., Cambridge, Mass.), a weekly engagement book. The large variety was needed since a new cat character is featured for each week in the year.

REPUTATION

Chandoha's repuration as a top cat photographer is well deserved but he's doggone smart, too. And so, not to lose favor with the dog lovers of the nation there's a "1961 dog Calendar" with equally fascinating photos of man's best friend.

Having watched him photographing cats and dogs in the past, here are some of his maneuvers, tricks and advice that might help camera fans who wish to take pictures of their own pets.

"One of the secrets of good animal photography," Chandoha says, "is observation.

"Study your pet for days — or weeks — observe its habits in different situations. Note its reactions before and after meals and when it gets playful and sleepy. How does it react to different sounds, new toys, strange people, food odors?

"When you're familiar with your pet's habits, you can plan your picture taking to capture the playful activities or interesting reactions that you've seen before."

Select a small area as the shooting stage so that you don't have to shift focus constantly. In winter, cats prefer a warm spot near a radiator or in a sunny area on the rug or a window sill. Or you put a favorite cushion or blanket on a small table and place it several feet away from a plain wall. An armchair or couch can also be used provided it's covered by a plain cloth or blanket to hide any distracting patterns.

Food, or the smell of food, can be used to keep a pet on the stage set. Strange sounds can arouse their curiosity or startle them at attention at the moment of shooting.

"I crumple some cigarete celophane in my hands," Chardoha says, "snap my fingers or tap a tattoo on the camera. Sometimes I moo like a cow, cluck like a hen or gobble like a turkey. The point is to interest them but not to scare them with a loud or explosive noise."

An assistant, out of camera range, can prove helpful in holding the pet's attention while the photographer shoots away. He or she can dangle a lure on a string from a stick like a fishing pole. A paper butterfly, some colored yarn or a little toy at the end of the string might prove even more interesting if smeared with some tantalizing food odor first.

Since pets are small, shooting should be done at the closest distance possible but not closer than the minimum distance recommended for each camera. For real close-ups, a portrait attachment is an essential accessory but accurate measurement between lens and subject is also essential.

Mastery of lighting is in the final element that distinguishes Chandoha's pictures and which can enhance or spoil an amateur's pet pictures.

Indoor lighting offers a choice between available light, and flood, flash or strobe lighting. High-speed black-and-white film and a camera with an f-3.5 or faster lens are minimum requirements for available light shooting. Even then, reflectors, light walls and anything else to boost the light level will undoubtedly be needed to give good quality pictures.

Two photofloods, placed at either side of the camera, and another one or two to provide side-light or backlight, can produce the sparkling highlights that give punch to a pet picture. For color pictures, best results will be had with two or three flash or strobe lights on extension wires or slave units.

EXTENSION NOTES

Transplant Trees, Shrubs

By AUDREY DAWSON

November is the time to start planting and transplanting trees and shrubs. Early planting will give the plant material ample time to become well established before spring growth begins. Plant shade trees on the south, east and west. You may choose from the deciduous trees as the pecan, cypress, red maple, tulip or the mimosa. If you want trees on the north to serve as windbreak, select either the magnolia grandiflora, live oak or spruce pines. Select trees that are in scale with your house. A large tree on a small lot tends to make your lot look smaller. Small growing trees on a large property tend to give a spotty appearance unless used in large numbers.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are trying to decide on the tree or trees you want for your landscape, I suggest you drive out in the country. The only trouble will be that the trees are all so beautiful that it will be hard to decide on just which one is the prettiest. If you need a beautiful drive this Sunday, I can recommend a gorgeous one right here in our own parish. Yours truly has never seen the trees more beautiful than on the drive to Cypress community down in Ward 9 of the parish this past week. Each tree seemed to be trying to outdo the one next to it in an array of autumn colors of which I have never witnessed before. The people in the community remarked that they thought the trees were more beautiful in color than in many years.

Remember you new home owners it's important to get those shade trees planted before you realize the season for planting will be over and you will have wasted a year of growth. Trees enhance your property and surely add comfort during the summer months.

FASHIONS

Fashions and color is good news for our youth because they are just right for them this season. Styles are easy fluid, casual, the silhouette is loose, the waistline lightly dropped, the shoulder line low and the skirt short. Pleats have never been more popular - often cut on the bias, and often unpressed. Youth will carry off beautifully the latest fads in pants; Bermuda length culottes, and of all things, knickers are very fashionable this season.

As to color, purple is very strong from lilac through amethyst to deep plum. A brassy gold is seen in plaids. The intense new kelly blue is used in sports clothes and shocking pink is ever popular and so are reds from true to purplish. Beige stands high for evening wear and black is good any place, any time.

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations are in order to the members of three of the Home Demonstration Clubs of the parish for an outstanding job during the past year. The Woodlawn Club, Mrs. Truman Wright, president, placed first in the Best Club Contest for the year. The award was a silver coffee service from one of our local feed and seed stores. The Colony Club, Mrs. E. O. Welch, president, was awarded $10 from the Ouachita Valley Fair for having the greatest number of attendance at the parish Council meeting during this past year. The Better Homemakers Club, Mrs. Frank Buce President, placed first in the scrapbook division and was awarded $5.

READY-TO-SERVE

Mrs. Homemaker, you are paying food handlers and manufacturers 46 cents an hour for the ready-to-serve foods you buy according to a recent study done by the Michigan State University economists. This is based on the amount of time it would take to prepare an equivalent meal from raw foods. The United States Department of Agriculture reports show that package mixes are more expensive than individual ingredients for these baked products. The homemaker pays 20 per cent more for cake, 50 per cent more for biscuit and 75 per cent more for pie crust.

A THOUGHT

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Magic Week In Southland

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

This is the magic week: leaves will come down, and winter will begin in the South! The Southern winter is an evergreen winter, full of sunshiny days, late autumn flowers and early spring flowers. Just lately, we have begun to discover real winter flowers, too, that do not bloom in any other season.

PRUNING

The disappearance of the leaves from the trees uncovers many things to be done. If no pruning or shaping has been done on everygreens during the growing season, their ragged condition will surely show up now. The objective is to keep them as near to their natural shape as possible. "Once over lightly" is a good policy for the first round of pruning. It really takes a light pruning to see what you can do with a shrub. If you go at it too drastically, you may cut too deeply into your plant - beyond the place where new buds can arise. Too drastic pruning may also cause your shrubs to come out so thickly that they will assume a tight, hedge-like appearance that makes them all look alike. It takes most kinds several years to get over this mistake and usually results in digging out whole foundation planting and throwing them away. So beware!

HONEYSUCKLE

Most of us find that honeysuckle has invaded our gardens and shrubs during the growing season. This beautiful and romantic pest from China is choking our woods and thickets to death with sweetness and love! It is competing with the yellow jessamine in the woods — even with the cat-briars (Smilax species) and with blackberries and other smaller shrubs. The cross vine seems to be able to outclimb Chinese honeysuckle, but our native woodbine or coral honeysuckle succumbs to it. Honeysuckle, as we have said in the column before, can be successfully destroyed by using weed killers at extra strength during the Winter when the leaves are off the other plants. Choose a time just as a cold spell begins to give way to warm weather. The honeysuckle foliage is everygreen and active enough on warm days to absorb the weed killer. It will take a few weeks to see the destruction of honeysuckle, but weed killers will get it.

BULB PLANTING

If you have not yet received bulbs that have been ordered, go ahead and prepare the soil for them. Our soil never freezes deeply enough in the South to prevent us from planting bulbs in winter. As every gardenr who transplants a lot of bulbs each year knows, we always find ourselves planting them in January. Late planted bulbs should be soaked in a bucket of water overnight. Some gardeners deliberately leave out a number of big bulbs and plant them late in order to have blossoms a week later than the normal season.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"All the pretty materials seem to be plaid, yet wild horses couldn't scare me more than sewing with plaids. I am so careful when I cut them, but somehow they never seem to match up the way they are supposed to. Are there any hints that would make it easier for me to get the plaids to come out matched?

Mrs. R. E. C.

Dear Mrs. R.E.C.: There are some pointers that will make it a little easier for you. Actually, if you will concentrate when laying the pattern on the fabric and visualize your completed garment, you almost will know what has to be matched. Most important: Choose a pattern with very few seams and detailed lines or your plaids will be too broken up and you will lose the effect of the plaid.

Match your side seams BELOW the underarm dart.

3. Match the underarm seam of long sleeves below the elbow fullness, not above.

4. The notch at the armhole in the front of your garment should be placed on the same line of your plaid that the corresponding notch of the front of the sleeve is placed. This will give an attractive unbroken line acorss the front of your garment.

5. The two side seams will not form a perfect block or square of plaid because it is shaped; therefore, match the horizontal lines only.

COAT ADVISE

"Dear Mrs. Farmer: "Do you have to be tall to wear a ¾ length coat? I would like to make a new winter coat that is a little different than the ones I have been wearing." Mrs. R.S.

Dear Mrs. R.S.: A ¾ length coat can be worn by most women. If you are short, make your coat about 3 inches shorter than your skirt and choose a pattern with slim lines instead of fullness at the hemline.

A word of advice: If you are making this coat for an all-purpose coat and want to wear it with everything, I would suggest a full length coat instead. A ¾ length coat should be coordinated with a skirt or dress that combines nicely with the fabric of the coat; but don't try to wear this coat with everything. It probably would be unattractive with many of your dresses. A ¾ length coat with a matching skirt also would be considered a "walking suit." These are especially popular in tweeds or plaids and can be combined with solid colored skirts and dresses that blend with the coat fabric. This is a very practical type ensemble for a working girl.

"Dear Eunice: Imagine my surprise when I picked up my paper and found your column in it. My mother, who lives 1500 miles away from me has been sending me your column occasionally and I have learned so much from it. Now I feel I have the privilege of sending you a question, too. Why do some patterns have a two - piece sleeve and others not?"

Mrs. M.T.Mc.

SET IN SLEEVE

Dear Mrs. M.T.Mc.: From the letters I receive, this column has been sent to other women from coast to coast. It made me feel that I knew you personally when you wrote to me.

A two-piece sleeve is very important in a true set-in-sleeve for a suit. The two pieces are curved to fit the contour of your arm and naturally will hang much better. If the sleeve has a drop shoulder line, or a seam line from the shoulder line down through the sleeve, it is a "fashion" type sleeve and in this case it isn't as important.

You always can buy a pattern that does have a two-piece sleeve and combine it with your suit pattern. Remember, also cut the Front and Back armhole from the same pattern that you are using for the sleeve; the sleeve will not fit the armhole unless you do this.

Dear Fans of "Sew Simple: I am wonderfully gratified at the response to this new column! I would very much like to answer many of your letters individually, since you tell me you are now working on a garment and don't want to hold up completion for an answer that might be slow in coming.

Unfortunately, it is not possible to answer your letters personally and difficult to respond to all the letters promptly, even if space in the column would allow. So, if an answer does not appear in time for your current garment, save the column for future use. Send all questions to Eunice Farmer in care of Monroe Morning World.

Delta Rho Delta Hears Lecture

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale was guest speaker for the Delta Rho Delta sorority for its monthly lecture meeting Monday night, November 14 at the Virginia Hotel.

For her topic, "Europe 1960," Mrs. Tisdale discussed her travels through England, France and Italy, which she illustrated with colored slides.

Members and guests present were Mrs. Jean Boyace, Mrs. Stella Sterling, Miss Barbara Rhone, Mrs. F. L. Elmendorf, Miss Bernice McCrary, Mrs. Marguerite Malone, Mrs. R. W. McPherson, Mrs. John R. White, Mrs. R. J. Evans, Mrs. Violet Cotton, Mrs. Mary Ann Holloway

Club Installs New Officers

Officers for the coming year were installed at the Okaloosa Home Demonstration club meeting November 11 in the home of Mrs. Thomas A. Fuller.

They include Mrs. Fred Miller, president; Mrs. Johnnie Bonnettee, vice - president; Mrs. C. P. Holloway, secretary; Mrs. Thomas A. Fuller, reporter and Mrs. C. K. Brooks, general director.

During the business session leaders reports were given and included garden and landscape by Mrs. S. G. Crowell and Civil Defense, by Mrs. Gretchen Lewis.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on Food for Health, in which she stressed the importance of milk in the daily diet.

Those present in addition to guests, Mrs. James P. Mobley and Mrs. Dawson, were Mrs. C. P. Holloway, Mrs. Fred Miller, Mrs. M. O. Bush, Mrs. Gloria Williamson, Mrs. C. K. Brooks, Mrs. H. J. Fuller, Mrs. S. G. Crowell, Mrs. W. L. Bonnettee, Mrs. Gretchen Lewis and the hostess.

The Christmas party will be held at the next meeting on December 13 at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. C. K. Brooks.

Musical Coterie Maps Plans For Youth Concerts

Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale Jr. entertained members of the Musical Coterie Friday afternoon, November 11 in her home, 1405 Fairview Avenue.

Mrs. James Caldwell, president, conducted the business session during which Miss Johnnie Bankhead announced the new Concert Series for Children to be performed by the Monroe Youth Orchestra, conducted by Eloy Fominaya, assistant professor at Northeast Louisiana State college. The Monroe Youth Orchestra is under co-sponsorship of the Musical Coterie and the Junior League.

"Young Concert-Goers" of Monroe, with Miss Bankhead, chairman, will present three concerts, featuring music, ballet, drama and art, especially created for young people.

George Brian, assistant professor of speech, Northeast State college, will be "Mr. Music," narrator for the programs. Ballet scenes will be directed by Patricia Wattley and Peggy Caskey will have charge of the choral music.

The first concert is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Saturday, December 10 at Neville high school. It will include general information pertaining to the orchestra and choir, how to act at a concert, what to listen for, a symphony for young people, a violin concerto, musical quiz and the "Y-C" theme song by the audience, chorus and orchestra.

The second presentation will feature ballet and the third concert, "Young Artists on Parade," will be highlighted by an exhibit of musically inspired drawings and paintings by the Monroe city schools elementary students.

Badges inscribed "Young Concert Goer," will be included with the purchase of each family season ticket for $1.25. Single season tickets will be $1 and will include one badge.

Additional ticket and concert information may be obtained from Mrs. Kedwick Martin, ticket chairman.

Program for the afternoon on "The Well - Tempered Clavier," was given by Miss Emy-Lou Biedenharn, whose topic was illustrated by piano selections of Bach played by Mrs. Eloise Stanhope, Mrs. Edward Hayward and Mrs. B. D. Albritton.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. B. D. Albritton, Mrs. F. V. Allison, Miss Johnnie Bankhead, Miss Emy-Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. James G. Caldwell, Mrs. Joseph Caskey, Mrs. Grayson Guthrie Jr., Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Edward Hayward Jr., Mrs. Elmer Marshall, Mrs. Kedwick Martin, Mrs. Hugh Gibson McDonald, Mrs. James Murphy, Mrs. Kedwick Martin, Mrs. Hugh Gibson McDonald, Mrs. James Murphy, Mrs. Phanor Perot, Mrs. Estelle Sanders, Miss Gertrude Sandrock, Mrs. Eloise Stanhope, Mrs. Henry Whitfield, Mrs. Felix Willey and Mrs. Everett Zeagler.

Art Festival Staged At Plum Street School

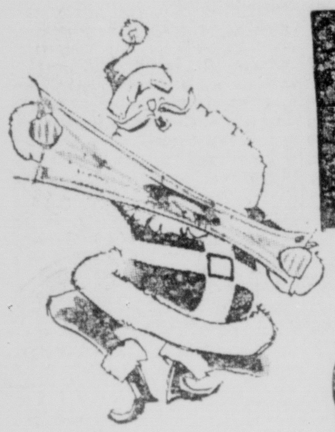

"Art Around the World," was the theme for the third annual art festival staged by the Plum Street Parent-Teacher Association Thursday evening, November 10 in the school auditorium. Mrs. Joe Tippett, president, introduced the event.

A play entitled, "The Parade," presented by pupils of Mrs. Madell Doughty's first grade, opened the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. Ted Brode, program chairman, introduced the exhibit guides, portrayed by pupils representing each room. Dressed in native attire of children around the world, the guides ushered an appreciative audience of parents, teachers and students in attendance at the festival.

Depicting art around the world, the festival was exhibited in cooperation with the International Art Exhibit sponsored by the Red Cross. The program combined the talents of age groups ranging from first grade students through high school, whose creative imagination was displayed in ceramics, crayon, oils, mosaic, finger paints, tempera, sand casting, spatter paints and others.

An exhibit in Japanese scrolls was displayed by Mrs. Montez Smith, exhibit chairman, along with landscape and ballerina designs, compliments of Gayle Tippett, fifth grade student.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"All the pretty materials seem to be plaid, yet wild horses couldn't scare me more than sewing with plaids. I am so careful when I cut them, but somehow they never seem to match up the way they are supposed to. Are there any hints that would make it easier for me to get the plaids to come out matched?

Dear Mrs. R.E.C.: There are some pointers that will make it a little easier for you. Actually, if you will concentrate when laying the pattern on the fabric and visualize your completed garment, you almost will know what has to be matched. Most important: Choose a pattern with very few seams and detailed lines or your plaids will be too broken up and you will lose the effect of the plaid.

Match your side seams BELOW the underarm dart.

3. Match the underarm seam of long sleeves below the elbow fullness, not above.

4. The notch at the armhole in the front of your garment should be placed on the same line of your plaid that the corresponding notch of the front of the sleeve is placed. This will give an attractive unbroken line acorss the front of your garment.

5. The two side seams will not form a perfect block or square of plaid because it is shaped; therefore, match the horizontal lines only.

COAT ADVISE

"Dear Mrs. Farmer: "Do you have to be tall to wear a ¾ length coat? I would like to make a new winter coat that is a little different than the ones I have been wearing." Mrs. R.S.

Dear Mrs. R.S.: A ¾ length coat can be worn by most women. If you are short, make your coat about 3 inches shorter than your skirt and choose a pattern with slim lines instead of fullness at the hemline.

A word of advice: If you are making this coat for an all-purpose coat and want to wear it with everything, I would suggest a full length coat instead. A ¾ length coat should be coordinated with a skirt or dress that combines nicely with the fabric of the coat; but don't try to wear this coat with everything. It probably would be unattractive with many of your dresses. A ¾ length coat with a matching skirt also would be considered a "walking suit." These are especially popular in tweeds or plaids and can be combined with solid colored skirts and dresses that blend with the coat fabric. This is a very practical type ensemble for a working girl.

"Dear Eunice: Imagine my surprise when I picked up my paper and found your column in it. My mother, who lives 1500 miles away from me has been sending me your column occasionally and I have learned so much from it. Now I feel I have the privilege of sending you a question, too. Why do some patterns have a two - piece sleeve and others not?"

Mrs. M.T.Mc.

SET IN SLEEVE

Dear Mrs. M.T.Mc.: From the letters I receive, this column has been sent to other women from coast to coast. It made me feel that I knew you personally when you wrote to me.

A two-piece sleeve is very important in a true set-in-sleeve for a suit. The two pieces are curved to fit the contour of your arm and naturally will hang much better. If the sleeve has a drop shoulder line, or a seam line from the shoulder line down through the sleeve, it is a "fashion" type sleeve and in this case it isn't as important.

You always can buy a pattern that does have a two-piece sleeve and combine it with your suit pattern. Remember, also cut the Front and Back armhole from the same pattern that you are using for the sleeve; the sleeve will not fit the armhole unless you do this.

Dear Fans of "Sew Simple: I am wonderfully gratified at the response to this new column! I would very much like to answer many of your letters individually, since you tell me you are now working on a garment and don't want to hold up completion for an answer that might be slow in coming.

Unfortunately, it is not possible to answer your letters personally and difficult to respond to all the letters promptly, even if space in the column would allow. So, if an answer does not appear in time for your current garment, save the column for future use. Send all questions to Eunice Farmer in care of Monroe Morning World.

Gay Blade

Pilgrims' Blight

EDITOR'S NOTE—One of the sidelights of the Pilgrim story that few schoolbooks go into concerns the activities of a gay blade named Thomas Morton. It's probably just as well. While the Pilgrims were busily planting corn in the new world, Morton was gaily raising cain.

By TOM HENSHAW
Associated Press Writer

Every Eden has its serpent.

It was that way with the Pilgrim Fathers, the founders of Thanksgiving Day, whose Eden was a little island of stern morality isolated (they thought) from the world of sensual pleasure.

The serpent in the Pilgrims' garden was a swashbuckling, high-living man who signed himself Thomas Morton of Clifford's Inn, Gent., and who, from all accounts, was a very gay dog indeed.

Morton of Merrymount, as he has come down to us, dropped unannounced and debonair in the Pilgrims' midst with such regularity that they could not be blamed for thinking him an emissary from the devil himself.

A Pilgrim chronicler, William Bradford, no mean man with an epithet, reserved some of his choicest invective for Thomas Morton, Gent., and Morton replied in a manner scarcely fitting a gent.

"A kind of pettifogger," Bradford called him "The lord of misrule . . . tending to lasciviousness . . . instrument of mischief . . . (and, worst of all to the Pilgrims, he maintained) a school of atheism."

Morton struck back in print. "Captaine Shrimpe," he called Capt. Myles Standish. "Rhadamant," he called Bradford, alluding to a mythological judge of the underworld, an allusion which probably escaped Bradford.

The "Lord of Misrule" landed on the fringe of the Pilgrims' little Eden in 1625 as a member of a company led by one Capt. Wollaston, who settled in what is now Quincy, Mass., 20-odd miles north of Plymouth.

He had been a lawyer in England. He was well educated. He liked wine, women and song and wrote lurid poetry, the meaning of which has never really been figured out.

Small wonder the Pilgrims hated him from the start.

Just why a man of Morton's station came to the raw new world has never been determined. The Pilgrim Fathers hinted at all sorts of dark misdeeds that drove him out of Merrie England.

One version was that he married one of his clients, a wealthy widow, and found it expedient to exhibit curiosity over the disposition of his mother's fortune.

Less than a year after their arrival, Wollaston's enthusiasm for the settlement waned and the fun-loving Morton was left in charge of w[illegible]d out to be a very fur[illegible]ng co[illegible]munity indeed.

He rechristened the settlement "Ma-re Mount"—Mountain by the Sea, which the Pilgrims logically mistook for Merry Mount — and then the fun began.

"After this," clucked Bradford, "they fell to great licentiousness and led to dissolute life, pouring out themselves into all profaneness.

"They also set up a Maypole, drinking and dancing about it many days together, inviting the Indian women for their consorts, dancing and frisking together like so many fairies, or furies, rather; and worst practices."

Morton's verses outraged Bradford, too. He was quite sure they would scarcely quality for inclusion in the Pilgrims' hymn books. One went like this:

"Give to the nymph that's free from scorn
"No Irish stuff nor Scotch overworn.
"Lasses in beaver coats, come away,
"Ye shall be welcome to us night and day.
"Then drink and be merry,
merry, merry boys,
"Let all your delight be in Hymen's joys;
"Io! to Hymen, now the day is come,
"About the merry Maypole take a room."

Merrymount on Plymouth's very doorstep was a bit like a dry town with a riotous roadhouse on its outskirts. It's entirely possible that a few of the Pilgrim sons liked to sneak off for an occasional evening of high living with "mine host," as Morton had taken to calling himself.

Worse than that, "mine host" also had an uncanny knack of getting along with the Indians—whom the Pilgrims never quite trusted—with the result that the lucrative beaver trade began to bypass Plymouth in favor of Merrymount.

The secret of Morton's success was simple: he had no qualms about trading guns and firewater to the redmen in return for beaver, something the Pilgrims never could bring themselves to do.

"And first he taught them how to use them (the guns)" moaned Bradford, "to charge and discharge, and what proportion of powder to give the piece, according to the size or bigness of the same; and what shot to use for bowl and what for deer.

"O, the horribleness of this villainy! How many both Dutch and English have been lately slain by those Indians thus furnished, and no remedy provided. . . ."

It was obvious that the Pilgrims had to do something about Morton and it was equally obvious that the man to do it was Capt. Myles Standish, the dour, hot-tempered commander of the little Pilgrim army.

What followed is known jocularly as the "Battle of Merrymount," which when judged in the light of rival communiques, ranks as something less than one of the world's most decisive engagements.

As Bradford tells it, "mine host" and his merry men locked themselves in their house and then proceeded to get so royally soused that they couldn't even defend themselves.

"Himself (Morton) with a carbine, overcharged and almost half filled with powder and shot, as was after found, had thought to have shot Capt. Standish; but he (Standish) stepped to him and put by his piece and took him."

Morton tells it differently.

Standish and his men laid siege to Morton's house and, as time wore on, it was the Pilgrims who hit the bottle so hard that "mine host" and his jolly boys had to tip toe their way out of the house among sodden, snoring bodies.

Standish, wrote Morton, "took on most furiously and tore his clothes for anger to see the nest empty and their bird gone." Later, Morton claimed, he surrendered to avoid bloodshed.

The Pilgrims deported Morton to England and perhaps they held another Thanksgiving dinner, for they were certain that they had seen the last of the serpent in their Eden. They hadn't.

A few years later, when Isaac Allerton, the Pilgrims' representative in London, paid a visit to Plymouth he brought along a secretary—none other than Thomas Morton, Gent., fat and sassy as ever.

"He not only brought him over," wrote the outraged Bradford, "but to the town (Plymouth) and lodged him at his own house . . . till he was caused to pack him away."

Morton returned to his old stamping grounds at Merrymount but his days there were numbered. This time he ran afoul of the stern old Puritans of Massachusetts Bay, who packed him up and shipped him home without delay.

He used this period of exile to write an account of his adventures with the Pilgrim Fathers, called "New English Canaan," certainly the funniest contemporary book on colonial America.

That might have been Morton's parting shot at the Pilgrims had not civil war broken out in England. Morton chose the wrong side. In 1643, he was back in Plymouth.

It gave the Pilgrims great satisfaction to see the low estate to which their old foe had fallen. He was, wrote Pilgrim Edward Winslow with obvious relish, "content to drink water."

The Pilgrim Fathers graciously allowed the aging roue to spend the winter with them—under close supervision—and then he was off to Maine, still seeking communion with "Hymen's joys."

And it was not until 1646, when Morton died in York, Maine, that the Pilgrims could greet an incoming ship with any degree of confidence.

Two Barges Loading Oil At Columbia

Columbia

Shipping Is Boon To Town

By JIMMIE KENTON

Around the clock the big trucks roll. Tank trucks, loaded with crude oil fresh from the Congrade Oil Field in Winn Parish. As they come down the long hill in Columbia, they slow for the left turn at the bulk plant. From there they follow a winding road of white gravel to their destination.

Situated high above the Ouachita river, just outside the city limits, is a battery of tanks used to store the crude oil. There it will be picked up by barges and taken down the river on its way to the Humble Oil Refining Company in Baytown Texas.

OPENED VALVE

On July 27, 1960, Columbia Mayor O. H. Watson opened the valve of the loading line on the new shipping facilities to allow the first shipment of 20,000 barrels of oil to be on its way.

This is said to be one of the mayor's pet civic projects. . . . the initial movement to bring new industry to Columbia.

Columbia, on the Ouachita, was once a busy river port. From the time when Indians occupied the land, the Ouachita River was its main source of transportation. The river meanders through the center of the parish, with alluvial lands on its east bank and hill lands on the west. It is heavily populated with timber, in an area which abounds in beautiful scenery, fish-filled lakes and streams; productive farms and friendly people.

HISTORY

The history of the parish dates back to 1823. An almost square territory, with 24 mile dimensions, it lies directly south of Ouachita Parish. The name, Caldwell, is said to have been taken from a prominent Ouachita family who owned property in the new land. A trading post was established at Columbia, where the Ouachita River could be easily approached by land and could be forded when the river was low. It's location made it ideal for both river and land routes.

Then the settlement came into being. Daniel Humphries is credited with building the first home in Columbia in 1827.

Because of its location, Columbia grew as a trading center. Cotton was hauled by ox wagon from Jackson, Winn, Grant, LaSalle and Catahoula parishes and exchanged for supplies brought in by the boats which took the cotton on their return trip to New Orleans.

PROSPERED

The river packet lines prospered until about 1918, when the railroad and the gravel roads took the bulk of the hauling. As the parish progressed to concrete and blacktop thoroughfares, river traffic diminished until it was down to an occasional pickup or shipment. Even the excursion boats, which used to dock at the foot of Main Street and take on passengers, eventually discontinued their trips.

When the wildcat oil field in Winn Parish began to show signs of becoming a producing field, Pinkie Jacobs of Winnfield had a vision. Why not revive river traffic for oil transportation?

Exploring around he came upon Mayor Watson who saw the beginning of a dream come true. . . new industry for Caldwell Parish.

W. F. Newton of Conroe, Texas; Tremont Lumber Co. of Joyce and Jacobs decided to build. The site was selected. Watson secured a lease from Olin Matheson for three acres of ground. Another acre was needed for the project. The land belonged to the heirs of Cicero Barnes, Negros living in Detroit, Mich. The needed acre was purchased for $1,500.

LEVELED

Dozers moved in and cut off the top of one hill, and filled in a valley. The level area is at least 75 feet above the water at its highest point.

Two months after construction began, the new port was ready for operation. The facilities are something new for this part of the country.

They consist of a battery of steel storage tanks situated on the man-made bluff. Even when the river is at its crest, the tanks are high enough above the water to facilitate the loading of barges by gravity without the use of pumps. The tanks are surrounded by a dirt dam high enough to contain the oil in the event that a tank springs a leak.

On the river side of the battery a steel cat walk extends out over the river. Along the walk lies the fill pipe, which connects the storage tanks to a loading barge lying at anchor. Flexible nylon hose are ready to hook to the barges when they arrive.

LOADED

The barges move in and six hours later they are loaded with the black gold from the red earth of Winn Parish. As they move down stream, they follow the trail which was blazed by Winn Parish cotton, more than a century ago. The oil is on its way to market.

The facilities are leased by McWood Corporation of Abilene, Texas. At the present time four trucks are hauling from the Colgrade Field which is located about 15 miles from Olla on the Olla-Winnfield highway. Some hauling is being done from the Salt Field which is situated about 5 miles from Tullos on the Tullos-Winnfield highway. Both fields are in Winn Parish.

LeRoy Smith; Bobbie Joe Bookout; J. L. Easterling and L. D. Mayers work the shifts around the clock. Earl Stevens is the Truck Terminal Manager. Each driver makes an average of about three loads a day.

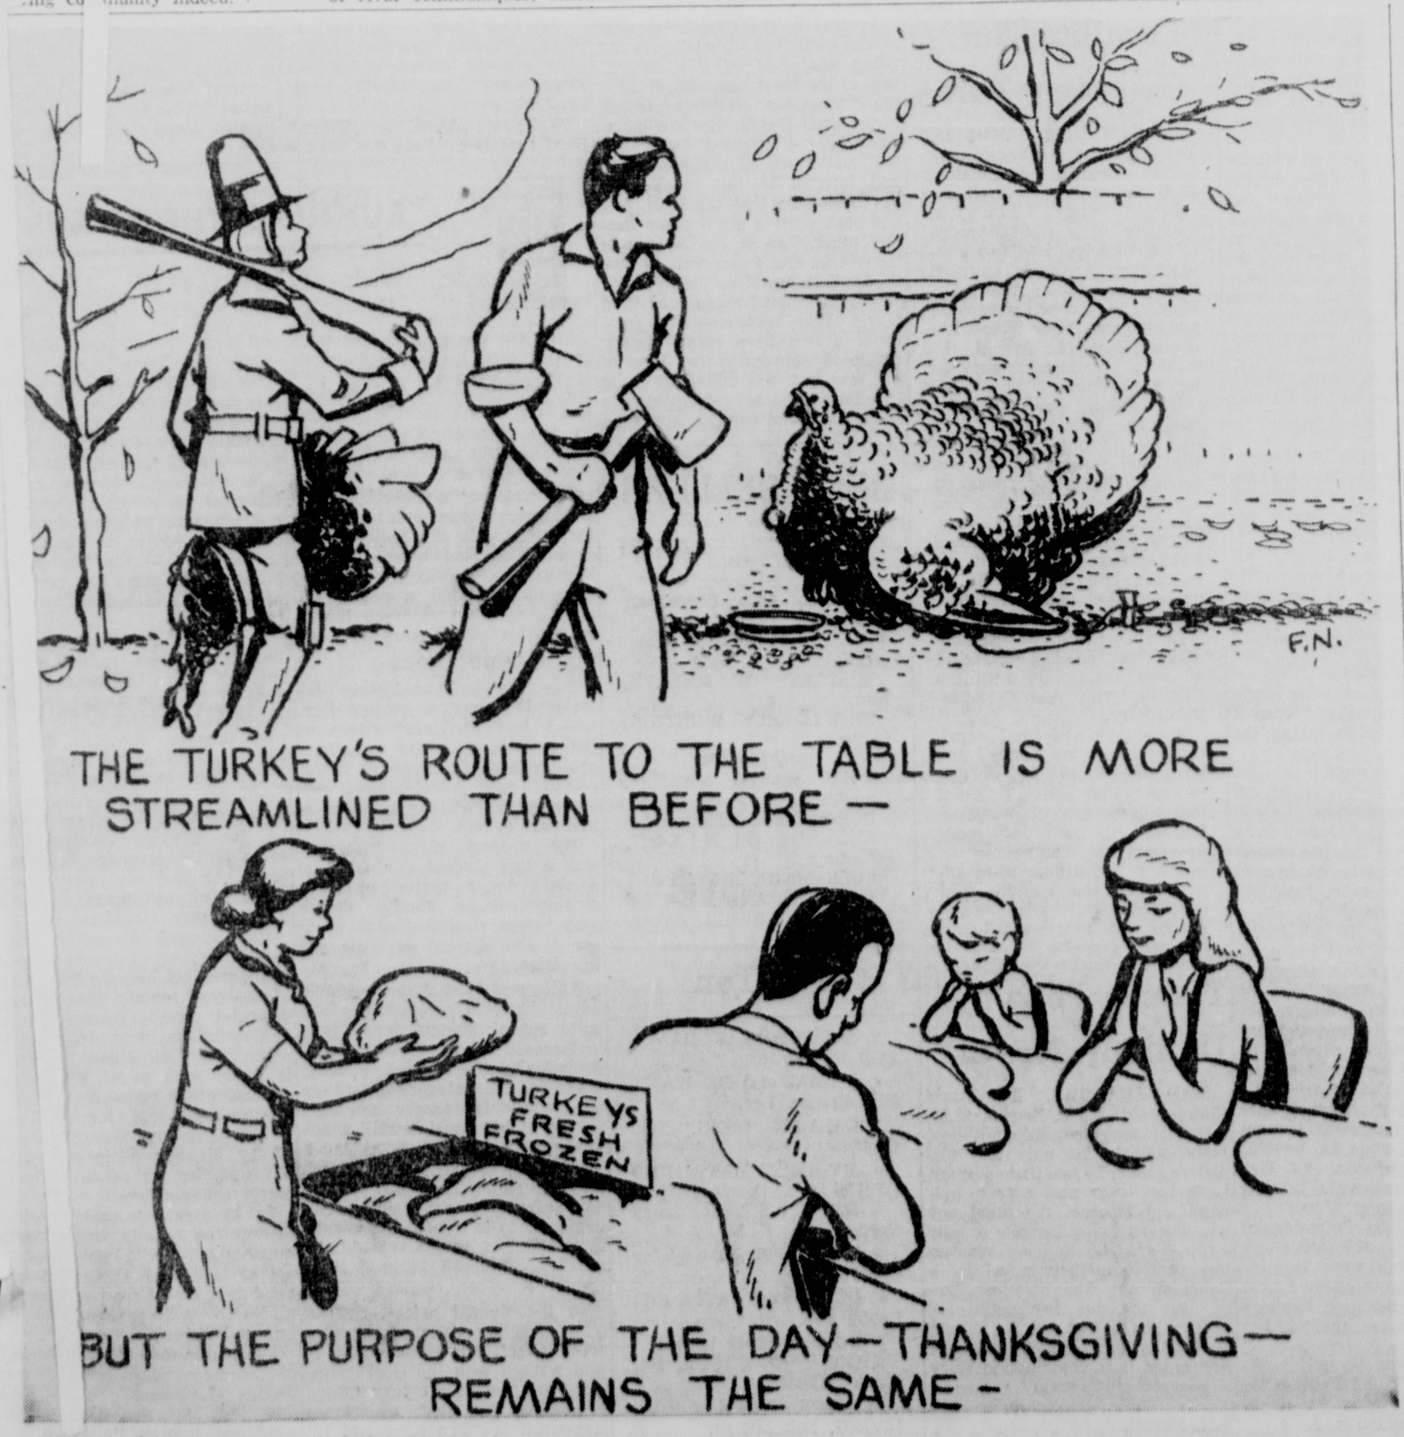

Loading a truck at the field takes from 45 minutes to an hour. When the truck reaches the dock, it is driven upon the dam where it is connected to a pump which empties the 130 barrel load in 30 to 45 minutes.

Mayor Watson keeps his eyes on the project. If anything goes wrong at the docks, the mayor is called first. He modestly admits that he does check on things and calls the Winnfield office if there is a need. . .but he hastily assures one that this is only the beginning.

By the end of the year another battery of tanks will be in operation at the same spot. He has also had contacts from two other firms which are interested in securing similar facilities on the river.

"We have unlimited opportunity and facilities for industry here in Caldwell Parish," he said. "All we need to do, is bring it in."

So, the Ouachita River, once the lifeline of Caldwell, is coming into it's own again. Just as the river keeps on rolling along, so does Caldwell Parish move on. . .preserving the old and keeping step with the new.

MIXED BLOOD, FUTURE

Luckless Products Of Japan Occupation Are Left Behind

EDITOR'S NOTE — Gradually the American armed forces are coming home from Japan. Left behind are the luckless products of occupation romances, mixed children. A mingling of two races, spurned through prejudice by both, the youngsters face a mixed future.

By DAY INOSHITA

Lovely Yoko, intelligent and poised for her 12 years, commutes from her modest Japanese home to school in an orphanage and looks forward to studying under a scholarship at a university in the United States.

Taro (that isn't his name), tall and gangling for his 13 years, drifts from flophouse to flophouse in Yokohama's "Hell's Kitchen" with his ex-prostitute mother and leads a small group of young hoodlums. He seemed headed for reformatory and prison.

It would be difficult to find three children more different. But they have one thing in common.

They are "mixed blood" children, born of American GI's and their Japanese girl friends.

It is a legacy that Japan finds bitter. And rancor still exists here over former American servicemen now in the United States who the Japanese claim refuse to honor pledges they made to support their illegitimate children, or who abandoned legal wives and children.

But the warm generosity with which Americans have adopted the "occupation babies" into their homes has removed some of the ill feeling.

Now the Japanese are grappling with the problem of integrating the remainder into Japanese society.

It is 15 years since the first American occupation troops landed in Japan.

The oldest of their "occupation babies" is now 14, about the same age as Taro. They are adolescents preparing to step into adult life.

The Japanese government says there are several hundred children of known American-Japanese parentage in welfare homes throughout the country. No one knows exactly how many others live with their mothers or relatives outside.

What are their chances for happiness, economic security, and a higher education in Japan?

The truth is that despite its bitter protests against discrimination in other countries, Japan has a very strong discrimination problem of its own.

The Japanese measure a myth of racial purity. The narrow-mindedness of an island people has been intensified by three centuries of almost complete exclusion from the outside world and a system, still largely feudal, which emphasizes family background and keeps a permanent record of it in the family register — the birth certificate, the marriage record and genealogical chronicle of all Japanese.

Gay Blade

Pilgrims' Blight

EDITOR'S NOTE—One of the sidelights of the Pilgrim story that few schoolbooks go into concerns the activities of a gay blade named Thomas Morton. It's probably just as well. While the Pilgrims were busily planting corn in the new world, Morton was gaily raising cain.

By TOM HENSHAW
Associated Press Writer

Every Eden has its serpent.

It was that way with the Pilgrim Fathers, the founders of Thanksgiving Day, whose Eden was a little island of stern morality isolated (they thought) from the world of sensual pleasure.

The serpent in the Pilgrims' garden was a swashbuckling, high-living man who signed himself Thomas Morton of Clifford's Inn, Gent., and who, from all accounts, was a very gay dog indeed.

Morton of Merrymount, as he has come down to us, dropped unannounced and debonair in the Pilgrims' midst with such regularity that they could not be blamed for thinking him an emissary from the devil himself.

A Pilgrim chronicler, William Bradford, no mean man with an epithet, reserved some of his choicest invective for Thomas Morton, Gent., and Morton replied in a manner scarcely fitting a gent.

"A kind of pettifogger," Bradford called him "The lord of misrule . . . tending to lasciviousness . . . instrument of mischief . . . (and, worst of all to the Pilgrims, he maintained) a school of atheism."

Morton struck back in print. "Captaine Shrimpe," he called Capt. Myles Standish. "Rhadamant," he called Bradford, alluding to a mythological judge of the underworld, an allusion which probably escaped Bradford.

The "Lord of Misrule" landed on the fringe of the Pilgrims' little Eden in 1625 as a member of a company led by one Capt. Wollaston, who settled in what is now Quincy, Mass., 20-odd miles north of Plymouth.

He had been a lawyer in England. He was well educated. He liked wine, women and song and wrote lurid poetry, the meaning of which has never really been figured out.

Small wonder the Pilgrims hated him from the start.

Just why a man of Morton's station came to the raw new world has never been determined. The Pilgrim Fathers hinted at all sorts of dark misdeeds that drove him out of Merrie England.

One version was that he married one of his clients, a wealthy widow, and found it expedient to exhibit curiosity over the disposition of his mother's fortune.

Less than a year after their arrival, Wollaston's enthusiasm for the settlement waned and the fun-loving Morton was left in charge of we[illegible]d out to be a very fur[illegible]ing co[illegible]munity indeed.

He rechristened the settlement "Ma-re Mount"—Mountain by the Sea, which the Pilgrims logically mistook for Merry Mount — and then the fun began.

"After this," clucked Bradford, "they fell to great licentiousness and led to dissolute life, pouring out themselves into all profaneness.

"They also set up a Maypole, drinking and dancing about it many days together, inviting the Indian women for their consorts, dancing and frisking together like so many fairies, or furies, rather; and worst practices."

Morton's verses outraged Bradford, too. He was quite sure they would scarcely quality for inclusion in the Pilgrims' hymn books. One went like this:

"Give to the nymph that's free from scorn
"No Irish stuff nor Scotch overworn.
"Lasses in beaver coats, come away,
"Ye shall be welcome to us night and day.
"Then drink and be merry, merry, merry boys,
"Let all your delight be in Hymen's joys;
"Io! to Hymen, now the day is come.
"About the merry Maypole take a room."

Merrymount on Plymouth's very doorstep was a bit like a dry town with a riotous roadhouse on its outskirts. It's entirely possible that a few of the Pilgrim sons liked to sneak off for an occasional evening of high living with "mine host," as Morton had taken to calling himself.

Worse than that, "mine host" also had an uncanny knack of getting along with the Indians—whom the Pilgrims never quite trusted—with the result that the lucrative beaver trade began to bypass Plymouth in favor of Merrymount.

The secret of Morton's success was simple: he had no qualms about trading guns and firewater to the redmen in return for beaver, something the Pilgrims never could bring themselves to do.

"And first he taught them how to use them (the guns)" moaned Bradford, "to charge and discharge, and what proportion of powder to give the piece, according to the size or bigness of the same; and what shot to use for bowl and what for deer.

"O, the horribleness of this villainy! How many both Dutch and English have been lately slain by those Indians thus furnished, and no remedy provided. . . ."

It was obvious that the Pilgrims had to do something about Morton and it was equally obvious that the man to do it was Capt. Myles Standish, the dour, hot-tempered commander of the little Pilgrim army.

What followed is known jocularly as the "Battle of Merrymount," which when judged in the light of rival communiques, ranks as something less than one of the world's most decisive engagements.

As Bradford tells it, "mine host" and his merry men locked themselves in their house and then proceeded to get so royally soused that they couldn't even defend themselves.

"Himself (Morton) with a carbine, overcharged and almost half filled with powder and shot, as was after found, had thought to have shot Capt. Standish; but he (Standish) stepped to him and put by his piece and took him."

Morton tells it differently.

Standish and his men laid siege to Morton's house and, as time wore on, it was the Pilgrims who hit the bottle so hard that "mine host" and his jolly boys had to tip toe their way out of the house among sodden, snoring bodies.

Standish, wrote Morton, "took on most furiously and tore his clothes for anger to see the nest empty and their bird gone." Later, Morton claimed, he surrendered to avoid bloodshed.

The Pilgrims deported Morton to England and perhaps they held another Thanksgiving dinner, for they were certain that they had seen the last of the serpent in their Eden. They hadn't.

A few years later, when Isaac Allerton, the Pilgrims' representative in London, paid a visit to Plymouth he brought along a secretary—none other than Thomas Morton, Gent., fat and sassy as ever.

"He not only brought him over," wrote the outraged Bradford, "but to the town (Plymouth) and lodged him at his own house . . . till he was caused to pack him away."

Morton returned to his old stamping grounds at Merrymount but his days there were numbered. This time he ran afoul of the stern, old Puritans of Massachusetts Bay, who packed him up and shipped him home without delay.

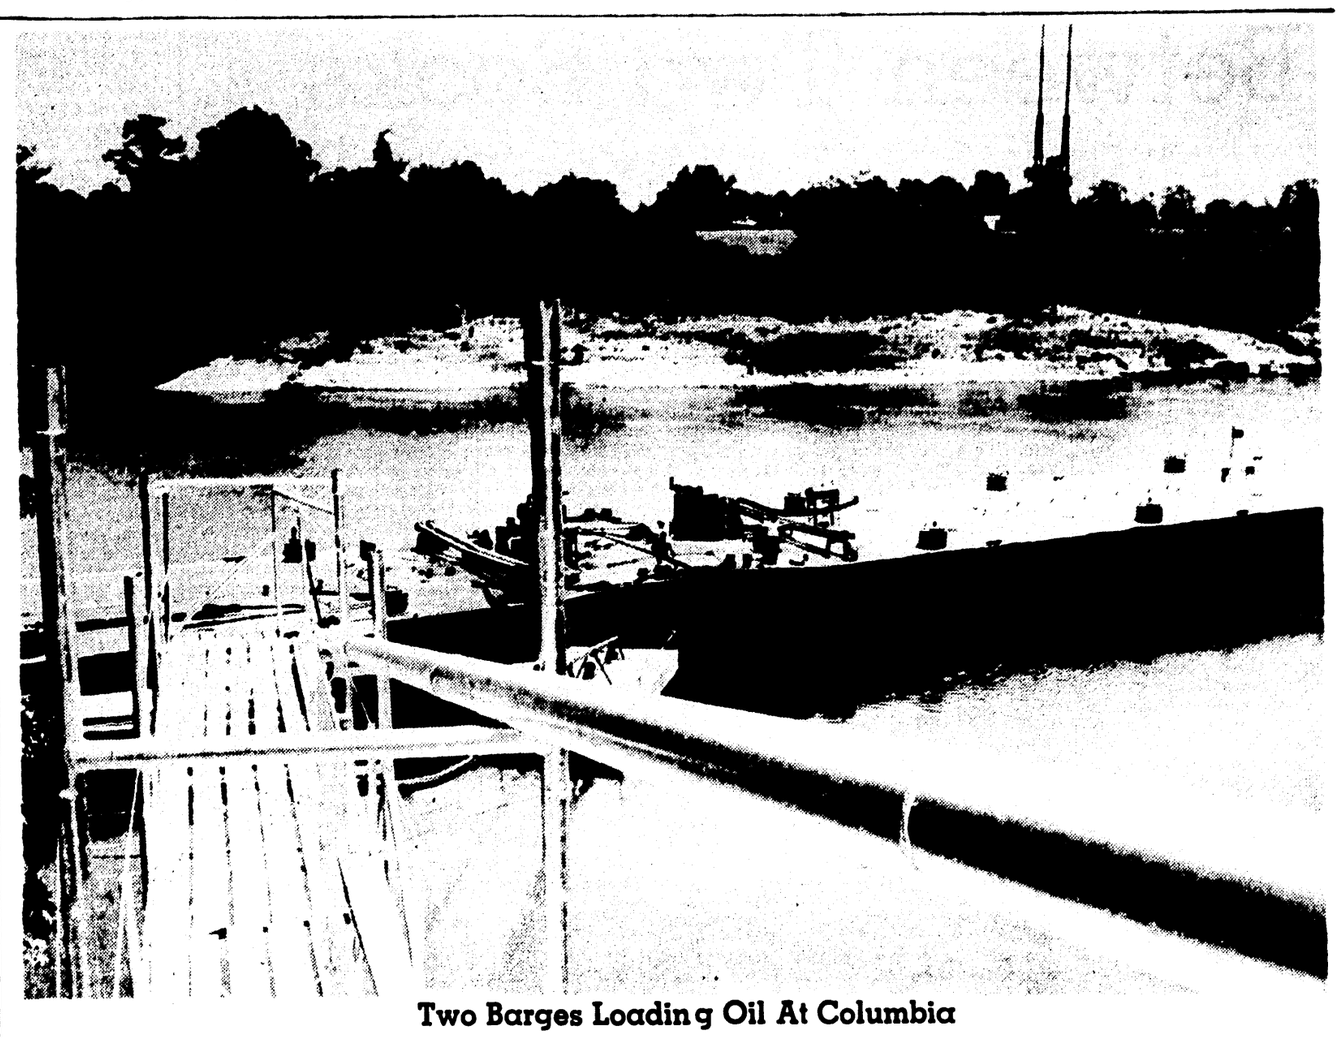

He used this period of exile to write an account of his adventures with the Pilgrim Fathers, called "New English Canaan," certainly the funniest contemporary book on colonial America.

That might have been Morton's parting shot at the Pilgrims had not civil war broken out in England. Morton chose the wrong side. In 1643, he was back in Plymouth.

It gave the Pilgrims great satisfaction to see the low estate to which their old foe had fallen. He was, wrote Pilgrim Edward Winslow with obvious relish, "content to drink water."

The Pilgrim Fathers graciously allowed the aging roue to spend the winter with them—under close supervision—and then he was off to Maine, still seeking communion with "Hymen's joys."

And it was not until 1646, when Morton died in York, Maine, that the Pilgrims could greet an incoming ship with any degree of confidence.

Two Barges Loading Oil At Columbia

Columbia

Shipping Is Boon To Town

By JIMMIE KENTON

Around the clock the big trucks roll. Tank trucks, loaded with crude oil fresh from the Congrade Oil Field in Winn Parish. As they come down the long hill in Columbia, they slow for the left turn at the bulk plant. From there they follow a winding road of white gravel to their destination.

Situated high above the Ouachita river, just outside the city limits, is a battery of tanks used to store the crude oil. There it will be picked up by barges and taken down the river on its way to the Humble Oil Refining Company in Baytown Texas.

OPENED VALVE

On July 27, 1930, Columbia Mayor O. H. Watson opened the valve of the loading line on the new shipping facilities to allow the first shipment of 20,000 barrels of oil to be on its way.

This is said to be one of the mayor's pet civic projects. . . . the initial movement to bring new industry to Columbia.

Columbia, on the Ouachita, was once a busy river port. From the time when Indians occupied the land, the Ouachita River was its main source of transportation. The river meanders through the center of the parish, with alluvial lands on its east bank and hill lands on the west. It is heavily populated with timber, in an area which abounds in beautiful scenery, fish-filled lakes and streams; productive farms and friendly people.

HISTORY

The history of the parish dates back to 1823. An almost square territory, with 24 mile dimensions, it lies directly south of Ouachita Parish. The name, Caldwell, is said to have been taken from a prominent Ouachita family who owned property in the new land. A trading post was established at Columbia, where the Ouachita River could be easily approached by land and could be forded when the river was low. It's location made it ideal for both river and land routes.

Then the settlement came into being. Daniel Humphries is credited with building the first home in Columbia in 1827.

Because of its location, Columbia grew as a trading center. Cotton was hauled by ox wagon from Jackson, Winn, Grant, LaSalle and Catahoula parishes and exchanged for supplies brought in by the boats which took the cotton on their return trip to New Orleans.

PROSPERED

The river packet lines prospered until about 1918, when the railroad and the gravel roads took the bulk of the hauling. As the parish progressed to concrete and blacktop thoroughfares, river traffic diminished until it was down to an occasional pickup or shipment. Even the excursion boats, which used to dock at the foot of Main Street and take on passengers, eventually discontinued their trips.

When the wildcat oil field in Winn Parish began to show signs of becoming a producing field, Pinkie Jacobs of Winnfield had a vision. Why not revive river traffic for oil transportation?

Exploring around he came upon Mayor Watson who saw the beginning of a dream come true. . . new industry for Caldwell Parish.

W. F. Newton of Conroe, Texas; Tremont Lumber Co. of Joyce and Jacobs decided to build. The site was selected. Watson secured a lease from Olin Matheson for three acres of ground. Another acre was needed for the project. The land belonged to the heirs of Cicero Barnes, Negros living in Detroit, Mich. The needed acre was purchased for $1,500.

LEVELED

Dozers moved in and cut off the top of one hill, and filled in a valley. The level area is at least 75 feet above the water at its highest point.

Two months after construction began, the new port was ready for operation. The facilities are something new for this part of the country.

They consist of a battery of steel storage tanks situated on the man-made bluff. Even when the river is at its crest, the tanks are high enough above the water to facilitate the loading of barges by gravity without the use of pumps. The tanks are surrounded by a dirt dam high enough to contain the oil in the event that a tank springs a leak.

On the river side of the battery a steel cat walk extends out over the river. Along the walk lies the fill pipe, which connects the storage tanks to a loading barge lying at anchor. Flexible nylon hose are ready to hook to the barges when they arrive.

LOADED

The barges move in and six hours later they are loaded with the black gold from the red earth of Winn Parish. As they move down stream, they follow the trail which was blazed by Winn Parish cotton, more than a century ago. The oil is on its way to market.

The facilities are leased by McWood Corporation of Abilene, Texas. At the present time four trucks are hauling from the Colgrade Field which is located about 15 miles from Olla on the Olla-Winnfield highway. Some hauling is being done from the Salt Field which is situated about 5 miles from Tullos on the Tullos-Winnfield highway. Both fields are in Winn Parish.

LeRoy Smith; Bobbie Joe Bookout; J. L. Easterling and L. D. Mayers work the shifts around the clock. Earl Stevens is the Truck Terminal Manager. Each driver makes an average of about three loads a day.

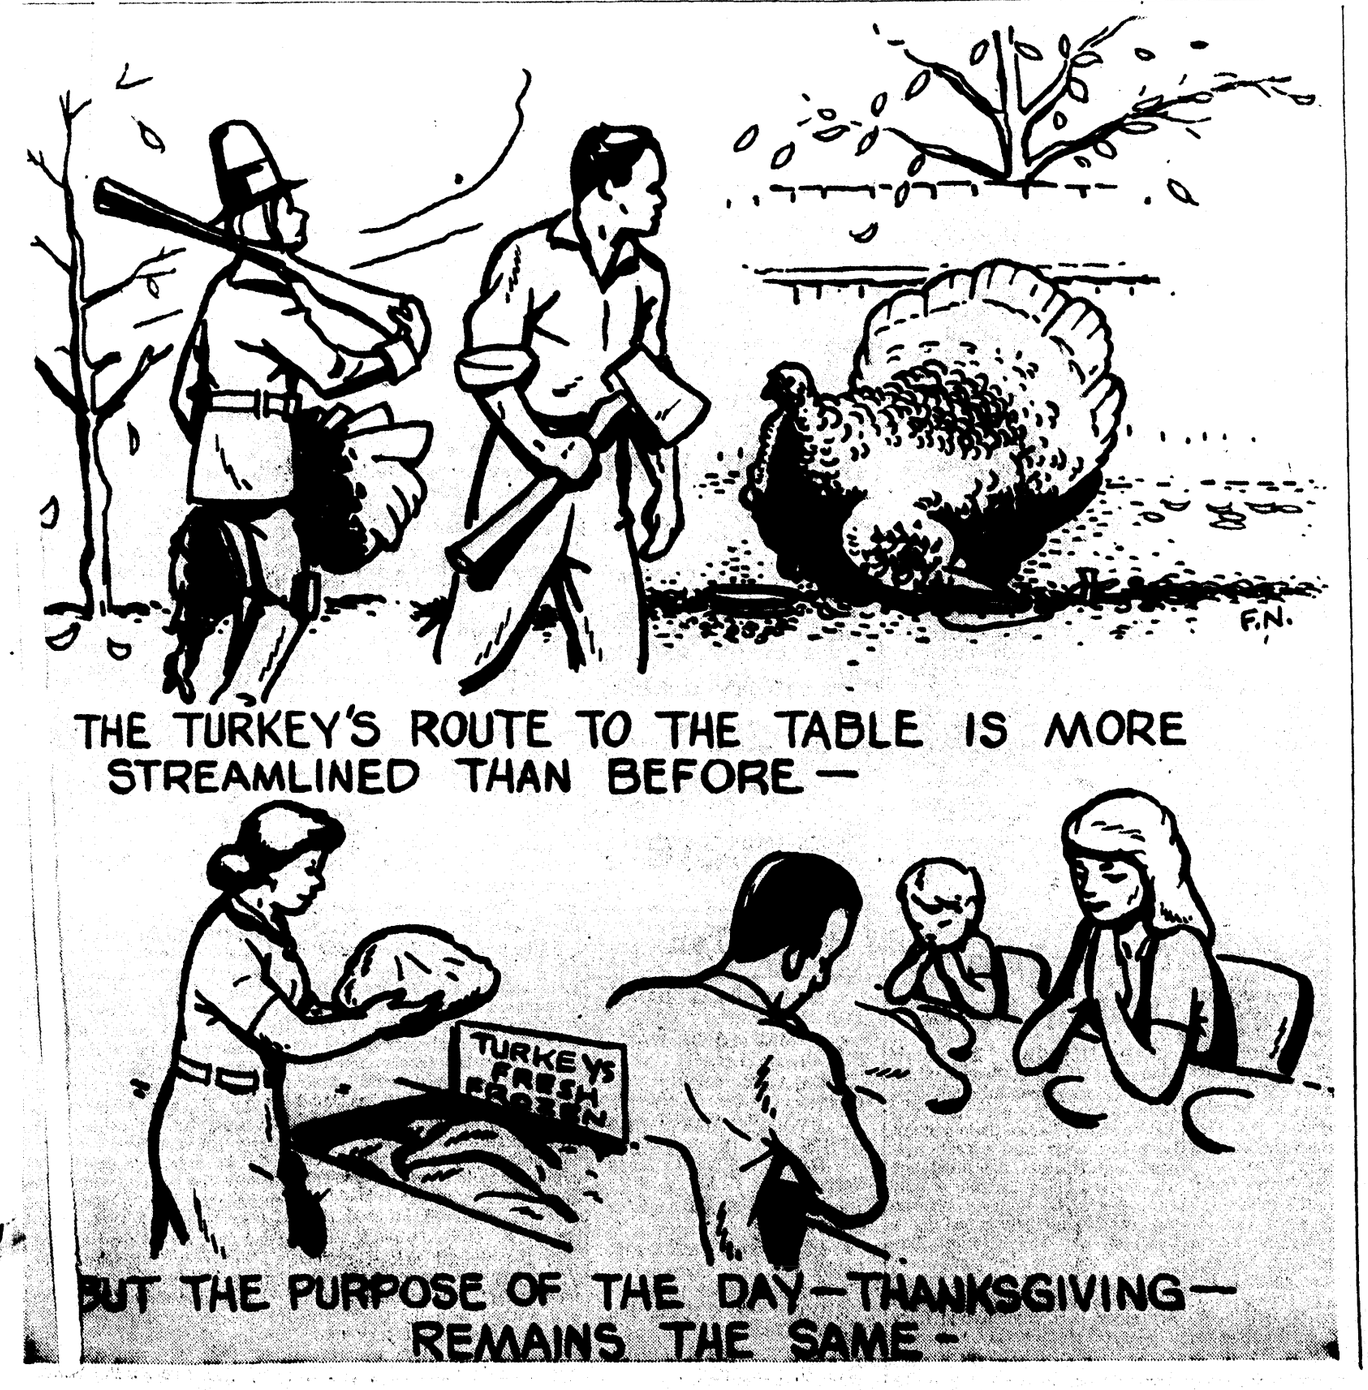

Loading a truck at the field takes from 45 minutes to an hour. When the truck reaches the dock, it is driven upon the dam where it is connected to a pump which empties the 130 barrel load in 30 to 45 minutes.

Mayor Watson keeps his eyes on the project. If anything goes wrong at the docks, the mayor is called first. He modestly admits that he does check on things and calls the Winnfield office if there is a need. . .but he hastily assures one that this is only the beginning.

By the end of the year another battery of tanks will be in operation at the same spot. He has also had contacts from two other firms which are interested in securing similar facilities on the river.

"We have unlimited opportunity and facilities for industry here in Caldwell Parish," he said. "All we need to do, is bring it in."

So, the Ouachita River, once the lifeline of Caldwell, is coming into it's own again. Just as the river keeps on rolling along, so does Caldwell Parish move on. . .preserving the old and keeping step with the new.

MIXED BLOOD, FUTURE

Luckless Products Of Japan Occupation Are Left Behind

EDITOR'S NOTE — Gradually the American armed forces are coming home from Japan. Left behind are the luckless products of occupation romances, mixed children. A mingling of two races, spurned through prejudice by both, the youngsters face a mixed future.

By DAY INOSHITA

Lovely Yoko, intelligent and poised for her 12 years, commutes from her modest Japanese home to school in an orphanage and looks forward to studying under a scholarship at a university in the United States.

Taro (that isn't his name), tall and gangling for his 13 years, drifts from flophouse to flophouse in Yokohama's "Hell's Kitchen" with his ex-prostitute mother and leads a small group of young hoodlums. He seemed headed for reformatory and prison.

It would be difficult to find three children more different. But they have one thing in common.

They are "mixed blood" children, born of American GI's and their Japanese girl friends.

It is a legacy that Japan finds bitter. And rancor still exists here over former American servicemen now in the United States who the Japanese claim refuse to honor pledges they made to support their illegitimate children, or who abandoned legal wives and children.

But the warm generosity with which Americans have adopted the "occupation babies" into their homes has removed some of the ill feeling.

Now the Japanese are grappling with the problem of integrating the remainder into Japanese society.

It is 15 years since the first American occupation troops landed in Japan.

The oldest of their "occupation babies" is now 14, about the same age as Taro. They are adolescents preparing to step into adult life.

The Japanese government says there are several hundred children of known American-Japanese parentage in welfare homes throughout the country. No one knows exactly how many others live with their mothers or relatives outside.

What are their chances for happiness, economic security, and a higher education in Japan?

The truth is that despite its bitter protests against discrimination in other countries, Japan has a very strong discrimination problem of its own.

The Japanese measure a myth of racial purity. The narrow-mindedness of an island people has been intensified by three centuries of almost complete exclusion from the outside world and a system, still largely feudal, which emphasizes family background and keeps a permanent record of it in the family register — the birth certificate, the marriage record and genealogical chronicle of all Japanese.

Battle Being Waged Between Two Books

EDITOR'S NOTE—The writings of Lenin, not the Bible, is the world's best seller and it's no accident. A professor at the University of California and co-author of the best-selling "The Ugly American" warns the struggle for mens' minds could be won by a vast and clever Communist book campaign, so subtle and so thorough it has even woven the Marxist line into "Little Red Riding Hood."

If the thermonuclear war never comes it is altogether probable that the contest between the Communist bloc and the Democratic bloc will be decided by a most pacific instrument: the book.

In scores of uncommitted countries there is an almost compulsive drive towards literacy. Untold millions of children are going to schools which range from barely adequate to clearly miserable. But they go and they learn.

What they learn, what they come to think of the Communists and Democratic alternatives, what takes place inside these young heads may, in the end, be more decisive than ICBMs and magnificently trained astronauts.

Russia and Communist China realize this very clearly. They anticipated this world-wide thirst for knowledge and with an almost military precision have set out to make sure it is slaked by books with a Communist point of view.

The book campaign of the Communists is every bit as massive, forced and urgent as their sputnik program. It happens, however, to be much less visible and less dramatic.

It has been so successful that today Lenin is the most widely translated author throughout the world. The Holy Bible is in second place, but America can take slight solace in that fact: the third most widely translated author is Stalin and he is followed in popularity by other Communist writers.

For some years the Communists centered their propaganda efforts on the oil-rich lands of the Middle East. Now they are giving a special emphasis to Southeast Asia and, increasingly, to Africa. The Communist regards books not as an entertainment or a mere educational tool: They are paper bullets in a weird, constantly shifting and fantastically complicated battle.

The Communist book distributing apparatus is so vast that it staggers the imagination. The world has never seen anything like it. Some figures indicate the Russians and Chinese produce 3.6 billion books a year. This is more than one book for every person on earth. When pamphlets, magazines, newspapers, comic books and leaflets are added the total is far greater.

The appetite for books among the emerging nations is insatiable. They will, quite literally, read anything available. Both the Communist bloc and we have recognized this. A substantial share of bloc books are designed for overseas consumption, written in the vernacular and aimed at specific audiences. The official number is around 42 million annually, but by a number of devices the bulk of Communist books in the free world is much higher.

Our United States Information Agency, working with a limited budget, has managed to put out an increasing number of books for foreign consumption, but their total last year was just short of 5 million.

The mountains of Communist books are distributed throughout the world by a barely visible, but highly efficient mechanism.

The heart of the system is the Mezhdunarodnaya Kniga in Moscow and the Guozi Shudian in Peking. Roughly translated these phrases mean "International Book Store" and they are precisely that. These quiet monoliths have thousands of contracts in scores of free world countries for the distribution of books.

In Russia and China literally hundreds of publishing houses work full time supplying books written in Urdu, Japanese, Kurdish, Hindi, Indonesian, Thai, Bengali, Chinese, French English, Cambodian. The list is as long and exotic as the spectrum of languages spoken in the modern world. No sizeable linguistic group is overlooked.

These books are not crude tracts on Marxist-Leninist politics. Many of them are beautifully produced. Some are non-political. In Burma, for example, one can buy Communist translations of Huckleberry Finn, an excellent technical book on "Regime and Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis Patients" or an exquisitely bound copy of a luxury art book.

For a book fair in Indonesia, the Chinese Communists featured a book entitled "Paintings from the Collection of Dr. Sukarno," Sukarno being the Indonesian president. The book was said to have cost the Communists $250,000 to produce.

In most of the books that flow overseas from Moscow and Peking, however, the Communist line is visible. Sometimes it is thin, but it is there. In "Little Red Riding Hood", a fabulously attractive story to Asians, the wolf has a face that looks vaguely like that of Chiang Kai-Shek and the heroic hunter, who saves Red Riding Hood, has a small red star on his hat . . . which everyone in Asia knows signifies Communism. Millions of paper-back thrillers depict the heroism of Soviet fighters during World War II . . . and one has the strange impression that the Soviet Union did it pretty much alone. The books designed for intellectuals are more direct, more polemical, more argumentative. There is also a whole range of books designed for primary-school children which provides a kind of infantile view of the world as seen through Marxist spectacles.

Not all of the Communist book apparatus is visible and official. Any bookseller in southeast Asia, for example, very quickly learns that the Communists' "International Book Stores" will not only send him well-made books at a very low price, but they are very lenient about collecting the bill. For example, a number of works of Mao-Tse-Tung can be ordered from Peking for two cents, a figure which barely covers the mailing cost. At these absurd costs a bookseller can accumulate a vast stock of books at very slight cost. If he fails to pay, even for a period of years, the books will continue to arrive. If he does pay he can pay in the local currency which goes directly to the local Russian or Chinese embassy.

The money collected by the Communist embassy is used to finance native Communist publishing firms which turn out an unending flow of books designed to advance the cause of the local Communist party. These publishers, who often do not identify themselves as Communists, can publish so cheaply that they often become the only outlet for native writers. Most young native writers are proud and consider themselves independent. But the young writer soon senses that if he is not hostile to "White Imperialism" and gentle with Russia and Communist China that his work is rejected . . but never on political grounds.

When he does come to conform he is not only published, but he is given a free trip to Moscow or Peking, awarded medals, presented with a Soviet typewriter. Over a period of years even the stoutest friends of the free world are transformed into party-line hacks, although they do not belong to the Communist party and are proud of their independence.

A number of Asian countries, appalled at the sheer bulk of Communist propaganda flowing across their borders, have banned such importations. However, the device of local publishing houses, using local currency, local workers and local presses is perfectly legal. The Asian governments are aware that, in effect, they have a foreign subsidized press in their country which competes on so ruthless a basis that no legitimate publisher can survive. But there is little they can do about it.

Who are the consumers of this flood of Communist propaganda? Why would a Buddhist or Moslem or Christian or Sikh buy such books? Not only their religion, but their nationalist pride wars with the notion of Communist imported propaganda. They yield for the rawest economic reasons. .

Take, as an example, the case of Chula Dai, who is a schoolteacher in one of the countries carved out of Indo-China after World War II. He is a small, lithe, well-muscled man and very intelligent. He is also intensely anti-Communist. The affectionate name for him in his village is something like Guru, a person who is learned and well-respected: somewhere between a little god and a big human.

Recently Chula came to the capital of his country to search for some additional books for his village school. The books that the central government supplied were excellent, but under the twin assault of humidity and childrens' eager fingers they quickly crumbled away.

One View Of Poetry Interesting

IN PURSUIT OF POETRY. By Robert Hillyer. McGraw-Hill. $4.75.

A conventional poet's conventional view of poetry, this book speaks out for poetic virtues not always held in repute today and indeed often ignored by writers trying to express in a new form an adequate vision of the new world in which we all — except perhaps Hillyer — live.

Robert Bridges, the proper and unventuresome poet laureate, is hailed as a giant. James Stephens' lyrics are better than Yeats'. Whitman's value is dubious. Pound and Eliot and their symbolism had a "crippling effect" on our poetry for 30 years — maybe Hillyer is softening a bit, for he has said worse things about these two before. Auden's work is "ignoble." On the positive side, Hillyer quote with the highest praise a children's poem by Tennyson about cute little Minnie and Winnie asleep in a pink shell, with two bright stars peeping in on the darling little dreamers and finally the sun waking them.

Extraordinary Journey To A 'Lost Time'

RUAN. By Bryher. Pantheon. $3.50.

King Arthur had been dead a generation when, a little after the middle of the 6th century, Ruan tells this vivid story of his young life in a wild and barren Cornwall where Christian begins to overshadow Druid.

Nephew of high priest Honorius, the boy has been surrendered by his dying mother to a career in the church. He had been out boldly in a coracle, he knew the woods, he longed to go to sea, but he must memorize ritual verses, speak in an archaic language that helped still more to form a barrier between him and the people at large, and pray for the life of his king. Honorius' ward Lydd had been dragooned into this priestly apprenticeship, but had run away; Ruan's own brother has married; only Ruan is left for the position, but he hates it even though the day could come when, as high priest himself, he would be the second personage in the kingdom.

So as the novel opens, still obedient to his uncle and overseers like Kynan and Kaden, he nevertheless is running away for an hour to visit the great fair at Lestowder. A ragged little girl wants to sell him a necklet of shells; a fisherman offers puffins to eat, and there are cakes, honey, ale and eggs; on sale also are swords, bowls and lamps. The harper sings of Gawain. At the end is a big dance and in comes the messenger to announce the death of the king — for whom the young revelling Ruan should have been praying.

Treason Story Familiar But Gripping Tale

Pretty Peggy Shippen, daughter of a Quaker judge in Philadelphia, had two suitors: John Andre, a cultured young Englishman among His Majesty's troops occupying her city and, after their withdrawal, Benedict Arnold, the military commander assigned by Washington.

Her father didn't like Arnold; the officer still had a bad leg wound acquired in the loyal service of his new country; he would rouse up enemies who brought disgrace on him. Just the same, Peggy was as ambitious and unscrupulous as he, and she married him. Even while he passionately fought off charges brought against his ability and his patriotism by Philadelphians he had offended, he was negotiating with the English, with Andre as intermediary.

Washington's formal reprimand tipped the scales, and he plotted in the fall of 1780 to surrender West Point and the person of Washington, too. His mercenary manuevering, his abominable deceit and callousness were climaxed in the capture and execution of Andre, while Arnold got away with only minutes to spare.

Teener Pens Unlikely Novel

MAD SHADOWS. By Marie Claire Blais. Little, Brown. $3.50.

Patrice the beautiful idiot boy, Isabelle-Marie his ugly and vindictive sister, Louise their mother, Lanz her lover and second husband and Michael the blind boy who doesn't know Isabelle is ugly —these are the unlikely characters in this unlikely novel by a Canadian girl who is, most likely, just the age her publishers claim: 19. In fact I'd be willing to believe she's much younger. Her story is a combination fairy tale-legend-sentimental romance, not a Gothic horror piece but just absurd.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
OUACHITA PARISH LIBRARIAN

During the past week a number of very lovely books of permanent interest have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. There are so many fine books being produced, that there is certain to be something to appeal to every reader. Those who are bird watchers and fanciers will welcome a perfectly beautiful book called "Bird Portraits in Color" and written by Thomas S. Roberts. This book should also be helpful to the many artists in this community. Books of flower arrangements are always in demand. The lastest title of this type is called "Japanese Flower arrangement, classical and Modern" and was written by Norman J. Sparnon. This is a very expensive book and the Ouachita Parish Public Library was able to purchase three copies, only because they were memorial books. Copies of this book may be found at the Main Library, at the West Monroe Library and at the Anna Meyer Branch. A book which will be used by the artists of the area is by Edmond James Fitzgerald and the title is "Painting and Drawing in Charcoal and Oil." The two copies of this book were also memorial books and are found in the main library and at the Anna Meyer Branch.

The arm chair travellers of the Parish eagerly await a book of travel experiences, which is as well done as Hamilton Basso's latest book. It's title is "A Quota of Seaweed". It is an account of his adventures in Brazil, Spain, Honduras, Jamaca, Tahiti and Samoa. This is quite an area to cover, but Mr. Basso does it with his usual charm and verve. Another interesting fact about Mr. Basso is that he is a native of Louisiana. Cookbooks are in great demand from the patrons of the Library. The latest one of this type is "The Art of Brazilian Cookery" by Dolores Botafogo. This book is a real culinary journey through Brazil and will provide much pleasure and information.

Archeology books are always popular and a new title in this group is "Digging up America" by Frank C. Jibben. It contains much interesting and pertinent information, which should interest many readers. Students of English literature will be happy to know that we have a new two volume set dealing with this subject called "A Critical History of English Literature," and the author is David Daiches. It covers the field of literature in great detail and is a book which will be of great value in our collections. We have two sets of this title, all given as memorial books. They are found in the main Library and in the Anna Meyer Collection.

The most unusual and timely book is a new title by Jim Bishop. It is called "The Day Christ Was Born." It is a reverential and moving reconstruction of the story of the first Christmas. Mr. Bishop brings to the familiar story a sensitive imagination, the insight of extensive research and first hand knowledge of the Holy Land. With a wealth of detail he recreates surroundings, events and personalities, evoking a picture of the nativity that is vivid and intimate.

As this is the Centennial year of the Civil War, many books are being published on this subject. One of the most beautiful of all is the "American Heritage History of the Civil War." This is a large, beautifully illustrated book and will add much to our knowledge and interest in this conflict. It has been said that the Civil War has been written about more than any other war in the history of the World and I can well believe it. Another new title on this subject is "Europe Looks at the Civil War." This book contains material drawn from contemporary European sources at the time of the War and was edited by Belle Friedman. It is interesting to know how our conflict appeared to a European who was living at that time. Still another book dealing with the Civil War is "A Civil War Treasury". This is a collection of tales, legends and folklore dealing with this conflict and edited by B. A. Botkin, who has done a number of other books of the treasury class.

Many of our patrons have commented on the large number of beautiful new books, which have recently been added to the collection of the library. We could not have purchased many of these books without memorial gifts. We ask you to remember this project of the library, when next you want to honor a departed friend. Books are living memorials and keep the memory of a departed person alive for many years after he is gone. A great many of the books in the Anna Meyer Branch Library are memorials and they add much to the effectiveness of the collection. The entire reference collection is a memorial to the memory of Mrs. Meyer, given by the Board of the Anna Meyer Charities. Added this week was a lovely group of books, given in memory of Mr. Julius B. Kugler, by his family. These books are: Audubon's "Birds of America." Douglas Southall Freeman's "Lee's Lieutenants" in three volumes and Will Durant's "The Story of Civilization" in 6 volumes.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With the presentation last week of the "Las Vegas Follies" by the Monroe Junior Charity League and Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" by the Northeast division of speech, amateur and student stagework had a field day.

As Professor of Speech George Brian once pointed out, truly amateur theatre in the United States is hard to find nowadays. For this reason, it was a refreshing departure to find a double bill of this rare art form on the local boards within a single week.

TWO TYPES

The "Follies" production followed the musical review form which laid particular stress on lights, costumes, song and dance routines and solo numbers. It was colorful, good entertainment whether you knew the members of the cast or not.

The student play, "Ghosts," was a fine student production of a work by a writer who was writing serious family drama long before steel and soap made use of that format on radio and television.

While professional theatre must adjust itself to public tastes and sales appeal, student drama may and should work towards the presentation of the classics. Usually, plays in this category afford an opportunity for proper emphasis on the spoken word, a skill which has suffered as much as handwriting in recent years. In addition, a well-worked play —while not necessarily entertaining—can demonstrate to a critical audience those factors which should be carefully observed in good theatre.

To the student actors, such a plays has an enormous "carry over" effect. For example, many who worked with the Greek classic, "Antigone," last year turned in better for that experience stagework in "The King and I," and even the radically different "Guys and Dolls."

Classic plays are also a must for playwrights and critics. Nowhere else is there afforded such an opportunity to look at the reverse side of the dramatic fabric.

Henrik Ibsen, known as the father of the modern drama, was a Norwegian and introduced the family tragedy to the stage. Prior to his time — the late 1800's—'most family plays had made use of fictional and historicaly nobility.

This gave the theatre an unreal atmosphere rather akin to that of opera. Pioneers in the field of "middle class" dramatic works were writers in the French and German schools: Molliere, Schiller, Goethe and Lessing.

The last named of these, a minister's son, took criticism so seriously until he wrote a book on the subject. Judging from some of the language in today's plays, he and his father should come back and wage a theatrical language cleanup.

Ibsen moved the middle class family tragedy into its present form, possibly because by the end of the last century that element of society had to assume heavier responsibilities than ever before.

In "The Doll House," a wife is faced with a set of circumstances which cause her to leave her husband and family. Playwright Ibsen was thoroughly roasted by his late Victorian critics for such an act even with its tragic consequences.

So he wrote "Ghosts," which depicts the equally tragic consequences of a wife who resolved not to leave her home and husband in spite of motives ranging all the way from Freud to the family budget.

Included in the cast of "Ghosts," at Northeast last week were: Phyllis Gardsbane, W. J. Haddad, Pat Medaries, Chuck Morgan, and George Patterson.

Holiday Time Of Special Pain To Many Families

Editor's note—Thanksgiving 1960 will be a time of special pain, for the families of 16 California State Polytechnic College students. Casting a shadow on this holiday and others in the future is a tragic flight that started in bright hope and ended in black despair.

By HAROLD V. STREETER

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) —Low, brown coastal hills cradle the little town of San Miguel.

An old Spanish mission, built in 1797, meditates in the sun at one end.

At the other, a corrugated metal grain mill stands like a drab sentinel. It is the last sight a passing motorist catches before he leaves enchanting solitude and whirls out on the busy highway toward San Francisco, 210 miles north.

In between the mission and the mill, little San Miguel remains locked between past and present, between bright dream and black fact.

CRASHED

On the night of Saturday, Oct. 29, a chartered plane crashed in the fog at Toledo, Ohio, killing 22 people. Sixteen of them were football players from California State Polytechnic College. The only survivors had ridden in the tail section of the plane.

Gary Van Horn, whose home was in San Miguel, rode over the wing, where flights are supposedly smoother. He had always had a problem of getting air sick.

Gary Van Horn had a wife. Her name is Karen. She is 20 years old. He had a son, 16 months old. Another child was three months on the way.

For him, San Miguel was the beginning, midway between the mission and the mill. He hunted in the hills with his father, co-owner of the mill. He worked at the mill under the admiring eyes of his grandfather, Ed Wickstrom.

By high school age, Gary had grown into a six-footer of more than 200 pounds. His speed and power made him one of the most exciting track and football stars in the history of the high school at Paso Robles.

But just what sort of a boy was he?

ANSWERS

Among the 700 townsfolk at San Miguel, the thousands who cheered him on at high school, his classmates, teammates and professors at California State Polytechnic College 35 miles away in San Luis Obispo, the answers began the same way:

"Gary was a quiet boy."

After that, they groped for words.

Jeanie Bayer, Gary's next door neighbor at San Miguel tried hard to describe him.

"Yes, he was quiet. Just a wonderful boy. As far back as I can remember him, when he was just 7, the other boys of San Miguel idolized him. When my Jimmie was 5, I asked him what he wanted to be when he grew up. 'Just like Gary,' he said.

Terry Black, president of Gary's 1956 graduating class, dug a pencil into his chin and looked blankly out of his gasoline service station, trying to find the right words.

"It's so hard to say. Such a friendly guy, tall, big-shouldered, easy going. Never got mad at anybody. Since I got married, I've moved the family a few times, and when the moving van arrived, so did Gary. You never asked him to do something for you. He just did it."

The answer came easier to Gary's father-in-law, William H. Taylor, leaning on the counter of his Paso Robles shoe store.

"Such a fine boy. Began dating Karen when she was a freshman and Gary was a sophomore. They dated all through high school. She was only 17 when she graduated and that seemed to me a little too young for marriage. But they persisted. So I said, 'You kids have been going together long enough to know.' And I gave Karen the money I was going to spend on her beauty operator training."

Gary had a Cal Poly scholarship and a resolve to become a grain mill operator.

IN BASIN

Palm trees with low, long fronds line the campus streets. The 4,500 students, mostly from nearby, study agriculture, engineering, arts and sciences.

High on the hillslope behind the campus is a big white concrete "P." Agleam in the sun, it stands for Porras, Big, husky Ray Porras. They called the fullback "Chico" because he was Mexican. He was proud of it.

Porras rode the death section of the twin-engined C46 that crashed at Toledo. He also had had misgivings.

Last year on a chartered flight to Montana, the Cal Poly plane had to land at Bakersfield. That disturbed Gary. If it bothered Porras, he concealed it.

The pilot for that flight was Mexican. Chico wouldn't let anyone forget it.

"I told you," he chortled after the plane arrived in Montana.

"The 'wetback' would get us through," jokingly referring to the slang name applied to Mexican immigrant laborers.

COUNSELOR

A father-confessor, counselor and trouble-solver to younger students, Chico would say proudly: "Let the old wetback help you."

At 27, Chico had to be a man in a hurry. Navy duty had delayed his college carrer. Now he had a wife and four girls, 7 years down to 3 months.

He crowded all the hours he could spare into work at El Corral, the student lunch room, while he studied to be a physical education leader of minority group boys. He was at El Corral every morning at 5:30 a.m. to open up and brew the coffee in steaming urns.

"Before the new baby came," said Everett Dorrough, the El Corral's manager, "he would say, 'If it's a boy this time, there's going to be champagne for everybody.' Well, it was another girl. But you would have thought she was his first."

To Curtis Hill, 21, of Bakersfield, the concrete "P" high on the hill meant just one thing—"Pro." Hill's ambition was to be a pass-catching end in professional football.

"Last year in one game Curt broke his wrist. Either he didnt know it or didn't want it known. He played two games with it broken" said Lynn Dyche, a dormitory manager.

"This year Curt had to get his strength back in it, so he squeezed a tennis ball while he worked cleaning out the halls.

"He squeezed it walking to classes. He squeezed it running all the way up the hill to the 'P' and back down again, getting his legs into condition."

Of Curt's host of friends, none admired him more than Bill Stewart, 19. Bill was Curt's understudy, destined to ride the bench whenever Hill was in action —but they always were close off the field. Close enough to ride together, talk together—and die together in Toledo.

RECALLS

Said Bob Spink, Cal Poly graduate manager, who works in the Associated Student Body office with Bill's mother, Phyllis, a bookkeeper:

"There was a time last summer when Bill was a lifeguard at Cayucos Beach. A fishing boat brought in a man who had suffered a heart attack Bill, at the far end of the pier, away from the boat, ran as fast as he could. Another man had started artificial respiration by the time Bill got there. They worked a long time, but the man died anyhow.

"Bill went home, disconsolate. He just kept saying, 'If I'd only gotten there a little faster.' "

The goodbyes began on Wednesday, Oct. 26. The chartered planes takeoff was set for Thursday morning, from Santa Maria for Toledo.

"Gary didn't want to go," his father-in-law recalled. "He thought about such things as a small plane crash in this area a short time ago. All four aboard were killed."

CLOSEST

Chico Porras talked to his lunchroom boss, Dorrough: "When I get back Sunday, I'm taking the family to church."

He was not a regular church goer. It was Chico's closest admission to a premonition.

The football boys trooped down to get their travel expense checks from Phyllis Stewart. She handed them out with a smile, including one to her own son, Bill.

Rodney Baughn, 21, tall, tackle from San Gabriel, said his goodbye to Sandra Jackson. Queen of last year's "Poly Royal," the big social event of the college, she was engaged to Rodney and had bought her wedding gown.

Rodney was killed at Toledo.

ON CAMPUS

It was Saturday afternoon back on the sunny Cal Poly campus when the score came in. Bowling Green College had won, 50-6. Well it was not unexpected. Bowling Green was unbeaten.

Two hundred Cal Poly couples went up the hill to the men's new gym for the Halloween Hayride Hop. Other students planned float decorations for the next Friday's homecoming game against Los Angeles State.

Best Selling Book

Battle Being Waged Between Two Books

EDITOR'S NOTE—The writings of Lenin, not the Bible, is the world's best seller and it's no accident. A professor at the University of California and co-author of the best-selling "The Ugly American" warns the struggle for mens' minds could be won by a vast and clever Communist book campaign, so subtle and so thorough it has even woven the Marxist line into "Little Red Riding Hood."

If the thermonuclear war never comes it is altogether probable that the contest between the Communist bloc and the Democratic bloc will be decided by a most pacific instrument: the book.

In scores of uncommitted countries there is an almost compulsive drive towards literacy. Untold millions of children are going to schools which range from barely adequate to clearly miserable. But they go and they learn.

What they learn, what they come to think of the Communists and Democratic alternatives, what takes place inside those young heads may, in the end, be more decisive than ICBMs and magnificently trained astronauts.

Russia and Communist China realize this very clearly. They anticipated this world-wide thirst for knowledge and with an almost military precision have set out to make sure it is slaked by books with a Communist point of view.

The book campaign of the Communists is every bit as massive, forced and urgent as their sputnik program. It happens, however, to be much less visible and less dramatic.

It has been so successful that today Lenin is the most widely translated author throughout the world. The Holy Bible is in second place, but America can take slight solace in that fact: the third most widely translated author is Stalin and he is followed in popularity by other Communist writers.

For some years the Communists centered their propaganda efforts on the oil-rich lands of the Middle East. Now they are giving a special emphasis to Southeast Asia and, increasingly, to Africa. The Communist regards books not as an entertainment or a mere educational tool: They are paper bullets in a weird, constantly shifting and fantastically complicated battle.

The Communist book distributing apparatus is so vast that it staggers the imagination. The world has never seen anything like it. Some figures indicate the Russians and Chinese produce 3.6 billion books a year. This is more than one book for every person on earth. When pamphlets, magazines, newspapers, comic books and leaflets are added the total is far greater.

The appetite for books among the emerging nations is insatiable. They will, quite literally, read anything available. Both the Communist bloc and we have recognized this. A substantial share of bloc books are designed for overseas consumption, written in the vernacular and aimed at specific audiences. The official number is around 42 million annually, but by a number of devices the bulk of Communist books in the free world is much higher.

Our United States Information Agency, working with a limited budget, has managed to put out an increasing number of books for foreign consumption, but their total last year was just short of 5 million.

The mountains of Communist books are distributed throughout the world by a barely visible, but highly efficient mechanism.

The heart of the system is the Mezhdunarodnaya Kniga in Moscow and the Guozi Shudian in Peking. Roughly translated these phrases mean "International Book Store" and they are precisely that. These quiet monoliths have thousands of contracts in scores of free world countries for the distribution of books.

In Russia and China literally hundreds of publishing houses work full time supplying books written in Urdu, Japanese, Kurdish, Hindi, Indonesian, Thai, Bengali, Chinese, French English, Cambodian. The list is as long and exotic as the spectrum of languages spoken in the modern world. No sizeable linguistic group is overlooked.

These books are not crude tracts on Marxist-Leninist politics. Many of them are beautifully produced. Some are non-political. In Burma, for example, one can buy Communist translations of Huckleberry Finn, an excellent technical book on "Regime and Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis Patients" or an exquisitely bound copy of a luxury art book.

For a book fair in Indonesia, the Chinese Communists featured a book entitled "Paintings from the Collection of Dr. Sukarno," Sukarno being the Indonesian president. The book was said to have cost the Communists $250,000 to produce.

In most of the books that flow overseas from Moscow and Peking, however, the Communist line is visible. Sometimes it is thin, but it is there. In "Little Red Riding Hood", a fabulously attractive story to Asians, the wolf has a face that looks vaguely like that of Chiang Kai-Shek and the heroic hunter, who saves Red Riding Hood, has a small red star on his hat . . . which everyone in Asia knows signifies Communism. Millions of paper-back thrillers depict the heroism of Soviet fighters during World War II . . . and one has the strange impression that the Soviet Union did it pretty much alone. The books designed for intellectuals are more direct, more polemical, more argumentative. There is also a whole range of books designed for primary-school children which provides a kind of infantile view of the world as seen through Marxist spectacles.

Not all of the Communist book apparatus is visible and official. Any bookseller in southeast Asia, for example, very quickly learns that the Communists' "International Book Stores" will not only send him well-made books at a very low price, but they are very lenient about collecting the bill. For example, a number of works of Mao-Tse-Tung can be ordered from Peking for two cents, a figure which barely covers the mailing cost. At these absurd costs a bookseller can accumulate a vast stock of books at very slight cost. If he fails to pay, even for a period of years, the books will continue to arrive. If he does pay he can pay in the local currency which goes directly to the local Russian or Chinese embassy.

The money collected by the Communist embassy is used to finance native Communist publishing firms which turn out an unending flow of books designed to advance the cause of the local Communist party. These publishers, who often do not identify themselves as Communists, can publish so cheaply that they often become the only outlet for native writers. Most young native writers are proud and consider themselves independent. But the young writer soon senses that if he is not hostile to "White Imperialism" and gentle with Russia and Communist China that his work is rejected . . but never on political grounds.

When he does come to conform he is not only published, but he is given a free trip to Moscow or Peking, awarded medals, presented with a Soviet typewriter. Over a period of years even the stoutest friends of the free world are transformed into party-line hacks, although they do not belong to the Communist party and are proud of their independence.

A number of Asian countries, appalled at the sheer bulk of Communist propaganda flowing across their borders, have banned such importations. However, the device of local publishing houses, using local currency, local workers and local presses is perfectly legal. The Asian governments are aware that, in effect, they have a foreign subsidized press in their country which competes on so ruthless a basis that no legitimate publisher can survive. But there is little they can do about it.

Who are the consumers of this flood of Communist propaganda? Why would a Buddhist or Moslem or Christian or Sikh buy such books? Not only their religion, but their nationalist pride wars with the notion of Communist imported propaganda. They yield for the rawest economic reasons.

Take, as an example, the case of Chula Dai, who is a schoolteacher in one of the countries carved out of Indo-China after World War II. He is a small, lithe, well-muscled man and very intelligent. He is also intensely anti-Communist. The affectionate name for him in his village is something like Garu, a person who is learned and well-respected; somewhere between a little god and a big human.

Recently Chula came to the capital of his country to search for some additional books for his village school. The books that the central government supplied were excellent, but under the twin assault of humidity and childrens' eager fingers they quickly crumbled away.

One View Of Poetry Interesting

IN PURSUIT OF POETRY. By Robert Hillyer. McGraw-Hill. $4.75.

A conventional poet's conventional view of poetry, this book speaks out for poetic virtues not always held in repute today and indeed often ignored by writers trying to express in a new form an adequate vision of the new world in which we all — except perhaps Hillyer — live.

Robert Bridges, the proper and unventuresome poet laureate, is hailed as a giant. James Stephens' lyrics are better than Yeats'. Whitman's value is dubious. Pound and Eliot and their symbolism had a "crippling effect" on our poetry for 30 years — maybe Hillyer is softening a bit, for he has said worse things about these two before. Auden's work is "ignoble." On the positive side, Hillyer quote with the highest praise a children's poem by Tennyson about cute little Minnie and Winnie asleep in a pink shell, with two bright stars peeping in on the darling little dreamers and finally the sun waking them.

Extraordinary Journey To A 'Lost Time'

RUAN. By Bryher. Pantheon. $3.50.

King Arthur had been dead a generation when, a little after the middle of the 6th century, Ruan tells this vivid story of his young life in a wild and barren Cornwall where Christian begins to overshadow Druid.

Nephew of high priest Honorius, the boy has been surrendered by his dying mother to a career in the church. He had been out boldly in a coracle, he knew the woods, he longed to go to sea, but he must memorize ritual verses, speak in an archaic language that helped still more to form a barrier between him and the people at large, and pray for the life of his king. Honorius' ward Lydd had been dragooned into this priestly apprenticeship, but had run away; Ruan's own brother has married; only Ruan is left for the position, but he hates it even though the day could come when, as high priest himself, he would be the second personage in the kingdom.

So as the novel opens, still obedient to his uncle and overseers like Kynan and Kaden, he nevertheless is running away for an hour to visit the great fair at Lestowder. A ragged little girl wants to sell him a necklet of shells; a fisherman offers puffins to eat, and there are cakes, honey, ale and eggs; on sale also are swords, bowls and lamps. The harper sings of Gawain. At the end is a big dance and in comes the messenger to announce the death of the king — for whom the young revelling Ruan should have been praying.

Treason Story Familiar But Gripping Tale

I, BENEDICT ARNOLD: The Anatomy of Treason. By Cornel Lengyel. Doubleday. $3.95.

Pretty Peggy Shippen, daughter of a Quaker judge in Philadelphia, had two suitors: John Andre, a cultured young Englishman among His Majesty's troops occupying her city and, after their withdrawal, Benedict Arnold, the military commander assigned by Washington.

Her father didn't like Arnold; the officer still had a bad leg wound acquired in the loyal service of his new country; he would rouse up enemies who brought disgrace on him. Just the same, Peggy was as ambitious and unscrupulous as he, and she married him. Even while he passionately fought off charges brought against his ability and his patriotism by Philadelphians he had offended, he was negotiating with the English, with Andre as intermediary.

Washington's formal reprimand tipped the scales, and he plotted in the fall of 1780 to surrender West Point and the person of Washington, too. His mercenary manuevering, his abominable deceit and callousness were climaxed in the capture and execution of Andre, while Arnold got away with only minutes to spare.

Teener Pens Unlikely Novel

MAD SHADOWS. By Marie Claire Blais. Little, Brown. $3.50.

Patrice the beautiful idiot boy, Isabelle-Marie his ugly and vindictive sister, Louise their mother, Lanz her lover and second husband and Michael the blind boy who doesn't know Isabelle is ugly —these are the unlikely characters in this unlikely novel by a Canadian girl who is, most likely, just the age her publishers claim: 19. In fact I'd be willing to believe she's much younger. Her story is a combination fairy tale-legend-sentimental romance, not a Gothic horror piece but just absurd.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
OUACHITA PARISH LIBRARIAN

During the past week a number of very lovely books of permanent interest have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. There are so many fine books being produced, that there is certain to be something to appeal to every reader. Those who are bird watchers and fanciers will welcome a perfectly beautiful book called "Bird Portraits in Color" and written by Thomas S. Roberts. This book should also be helpful to the many artists in this community. Books of flower arrangements are always in demand. The lastest title of this type is called "Japanese Flower arrangement, classical and Modern" and was written by Norman J. Sparnon. This is a very expensive book and the Ouachita Parish Public Library was able to purchase three copies, only because they were memorial books. Copies of this book may be found at the Main Library, at the West Monroe Library and at the Anna Meyer Branch. A book which will be used by the artists of the area is by Edmond James Fitzgerald and the title is "Painting and Drawing in Charcoal and Oil." The two copies of this book were also memorial books and are found in the main library and at the Anna Meyer Branch.

The arm chair travellers of the Parish eagerly await a book of travel experiences, which is as well done as Hamilton Basso's latest book. It's title is "A Quota of Seaweed". It is an account of his adventures in Brazil, Spain, Honduras, Jamaca, Tahiti and Samoa. This is quite an area to cover, but Mr. Basso does it with his usual charm and verve. Another interesting fact about Mr. Basso is that he is a native of Louisiana. Cookbooks are in great demand from the patrons of the Library. The latest one of this type is "The Art of Brazilian Cookery" by Dolores Botafogo. This book is a real culinary journey through Brazil and will provide much pleasure and information.

Archeology books are always popular and a new title in this group is "Digging up America" by Frank C. Jibben. It contains much interesting and pertinent information, which should interest many readers. Students of English literature will be happy to know that we have a new two volume set dealing with this subject called "A Critical History of English Literature," and the author is David Daiches. It covers the field of literature in great detail and is a book which will be of great value in our collections. We have two sets of this title, all given as memorial books. They are found in the main Library and in the Anna Meyer Collection.

The most unusual and timely book is a new title by Jim Bishop. It is called "The Day Christ Was Born." It is a reverential and moving reconstruction of the story of the first Christmas. Mr. Bishop brings to the familiar story a sensitive imagination, the insight of extensive research and first hand knowledge of the Holy Land. With a wealth of detail he recreates surroundings, events and personalities, evoking a picture of the nativity that is vivid and intimate.

As this is the Centennial year of the Civil War, many books are being published on this subject. One of the most beautiful of all is the "American Heritage History of the Civil War." This is a large, beautifully illustrated book and will add much to our knowledge and interest in this conflict. It has been said that the Civil War has been written about more than any other war in the history of the World and I can well believe it. Another new title on this subject is "Europe Looks at the Civil War." This book contains material drawn from contemporary European sources at the time of the War and was edited by Belle Friedman. It is interesting to know how our conflict appeared to a European who was living at that time. Still another book dealing with the Civil War is "A Civil War Treasury". This is a collection of tales, legends and folklore dealing with this conflict and edited by B. A. Botkin, who has done a number of other books of the treasury class.

Many of our patrons have commented on the large number of beautiful new books, which have recently been added to the collection of the library. We could not have purchased many of these books without memorial gifts. We ask you to remember this project of the library, when next you want to honor a departed friend. Books are living memorials and keep the memory of a departed person alive for many years after he is gone. A great many of the books in the Anna Meyer Branch Library are memorials and they add much to the effectiveness of the collection. The entire reference collection is a memorial to the memory of Mrs. Meyer, given by the Board of the Anna Meyer Charities. Added this week was a lovely group of books, given in memory of Mr. Julius B. Kugler, by his family. These books are: Audubon's "Birds of America." Douglas Southall Freeman's "Lee's Lieutenants" in three volumes and Will Durant's "The Story of Civilization" in 6 volumes.

Holiday Time Of Special Pain To Many Families

Editor's note—Thanksgiving Day will be a time of special pain, for the families of 16 California State Polytechnic College students. Casting a shadow on this holiday and others in the future is a tragic flight that started in bright hope and ended in black despair.

By HAROLD V. STREETER

An old Spanish mission, built in 1797, meditates in the sun at one end.

At the other, a corrugated metal grain mill stands like a drab sentinel. It is the last sight a passing motorist catches before he leaves enchanting solitude and whirls out on the busy highway toward San Francisco, 210 miles north.

In between the mission and the mill, little San Miguel remains locked between past and present between bright dream and black fact.

CRASHED

On the night of Saturday, Oct. 29, a chartered plane crashed in the fog at Toledo, Ohio, killing 22 people. Sixteen of them were football players from California State Polytechnic College. The only survivors had ridden in the tail section of the plane.

Gary Van Horn, whose home was in San Miguel, rode over the wing, where flights are supposedly smoother. He had always had a problem of getting air sick.

Gary Van Horn had a wife. Her name is Karen. She is 20 years old. He had a son, 16 months old. Another child was three months on the way.

For him, San Miguel was the beginning, midway between the mission and the mill. He hunted in the hills with his father, co-owner of the mill. He worked at the mill under the admiring eyes of his grandfather, Ed Wickstrom.

By high school age, Gary had grown into a six-footer of more than 200 pounds. His speed and power made him one of the most exciting track and football stars in the history of the high school at Paso Robles.

But just what sort of a boy was he?

ANSWERS

Among the 700 townsfolk at San Miguel, the thousands who cheered him on at high school, his classmates, teammates and professors at California State Polytechnic College 35 miles away in San Luis Obispo, the answers began the same way:

"Gary was a quiet boy."

After that, they groped for words.

Jeanie Bayer, Gary's next door neighbor at San Miguel tried hard to describe him.

"Yes, he was quiet. Just a wonderful boy. As far back as I can remember him, when he was just 7, the other boys of San Miguel idolized him. When my Jimmie was 5, I asked him what he wanted to be when he grew up. 'Just like Gary,' he said.

Terry Black, president of Gary's 1959 graduating class, dug a pencil into his chin and looked blankly out of his gasoline service station, trying to find the right words.

"It's so hard to say. Such a friendly guy, tall, big-shouldered, easy going. Never got mad at anybody. Since I got married, I've moved the family a few times, and when the moving van arrived, so did Gary. You never asked him to do something for you. He just did it."

The answer came easier to Gary's father-in-law, William H. Taylor, leaning on the counter of his Paso Robles shoe store.

"Such a fine boy. Began dating Karen when she was a freshman and Gary was a sophomore. They dated all through high school. She was only 17 when she graduated and that seemed to me a little too young for marriage. But they persisted. So I said, 'You kids have been going together long enough to know.' And I gave Karen the money I was going to spend on her beauty operator training."

Gary had a Cal Poly scholarship and a resolve to become a grain mill operator.

IN BASIN

Palm trees with low, long fronds line the campus streets. The 4,500 students, mostly from nearby, study agriculture, engineering, arts and sciences.

High on the hillslope behind the campus is a big white concrete "P." Agleam in the sun, it stands for Porras, Big, husky Ray Porras. They called the fullback "Chico" because he was Mexican. He was proud of it.

Porras rode the death section of the twin-engined C46 that crashed at Toledo. He also had misgivings.

Last year on a chartered flight to Montana, the Cal Poly plane had to land at Bakersfield. That disturbed Gary. If it bothered Porras, he concealed it.

The pilot for that flight was Mexican. Chico wouldn't let anyone forget it.

"I told you," he chortled after the plane arrived in Montana.

"The 'wetback' would get us through," jokingly referring to the slang name applied to Mexican immigrant laborers.

COUNSELOR

A father-confessor, counselor and trouble-solver to younger students, Chico would say proudly: "Let the old wetback help you."

At 27, Chico had to be a man in a hurry. Navy duty had delayed his college carrer. Now he had a wife and four girls, 7 years down to 3 months.

He crowded all the hours he could spare into work at El Corral, the student lunch room, while he studied to be a physical education leader of minority group boys. He was at El Corral every morning at 5:30 a.m. to open up and brew the coffee in steaming urns.

"Before the new baby came," said Everett Dorrough, the El Corral's manager, "he would say, 'If it's a boy this time, there's going to be champagne for everybody.' Well, it was another girl. But you would have thought she was his first."

To Curtis Hill, 21, of Bakersfield, the concrete "P" high on the hill meant just one thing—"Pro." Hill's ambition was to be a pass-catching end in professional football.

"Last year in one game Curt broke his wrist. Either he didnt know it or didn't want it known. He played two games with it broken" said Lynn Dyche, a dormitory manager.

"This year Curt had to get his strength back in it, so he squeezed a tennis ball while he worked cleaning out the halls.

"He squeezed it walking to classes. He squeezed it running all the way up the hill to the 'P' and back down again, getting his legs into condition."

Of Curt's host of friends, none admired him more than Bill Stewart, 19. Bill was Curt's understudy, destined to ride the bench whenever Hill was in action —but they always were close off the field. Close enough to ride together, talk together—and die together in Toledo.

RECALLS

Said Bob Spink, Cal Poly graduate manager, who works in the Associated Student Body office with Bill's mother, Phyllis, a bookkeeper:

"There was a time last summer when Bill was a lifeguard at Cayucos Beach. A fishing boat brought in a man who had suffered a heart attack Bill, at the far end of the pier, away from the boat, ran as fast as he could. Another man had started artificial respiration by the time Bill got there. They worked a long time, but the man died anyhow.

"Bill went home, disconsolate. He just kept saying, 'If I'd only gotten there a little faster.'"

The goodbyes began on Wednesday, Oct. 26. The chartered planes takeoff was set for Thursday morning, from Santa Maria for Toledo.

"Gary didn't want to go," his father-in-law recalled. "He thought about such things as a small plane crash in this area a short time ago. All four aboard were killed."

CLOSEST

Chico Porras talked to his lunchroom boss, Dorrough: "When I get back Sunday, I'm taking the family to church."

He was not a regular church goer. It was Chico's closest admission to a premonition.

The football boys trooped down to get their travel expense checks from Phyllis Stewart. She handed them out with a smile, including one to her own son, Bill.

Rodney Baughn, 21, tall, tackle from San Gabriel, said his goodbye to Sandra Jackson, Queen of last year's "Poly Royal," the big social event of the college, she was engaged to Rodney and had bought her wedding gown.

Rodney was killed at Toledo.

ON CAMPUS

It was Saturday afternoon back on the sunny Cal Poly campus when the score came in. Bowling Green College had won, 50-6. Well it was not unexpected. Bowling Green was unbeaten.

Two hundred Cal Poly couples went up the hill to the men's new gym for the Halloween Hayride Hop. Other students planned float decorations for the next Friday's homecoming game against Los Angeles State.

Over in little San Miguel, laughing townpeople donned grotesque masks and went to a pre-Halloween party in Legion Hall.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With the presentation last week of the "Las Vegas Follies" by the Monroe Junior Charity League and Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" by the Northeast division of speech, amateur and student stagework had a field day.

As Professor of Speech George Brian once pointed out, truly amateur theatre in the United States is hard to find nowadays. For this reason, it was a refreshing departure to find a double bill of this rare art form on the local boards within a single week.

TWO TYPES

The "Follies" production followed the musical review form which laid particular stress on lights, costumes, song and dance routines and solo numbers. It was colorful, good entertainment whether you knew the members of the cast or not.

The student play, "Ghosts," was a fine student production of a work by a writer who was writing serious family drama long before steel and soap made use of that format on radio and television.

While professional theatre must adjust itself to public tastes and sales appeal, student drama may and should work towards the presentation of the classics. Usually, plays in this category afford an opportunity for proper emphasis on the spoken word, a skill which has suffered as much as handwriting in recent years. In addition, a well-worked play —while not necessarily entertaining—can demonstrate to a critical audience those factors which should be carefully observed in good theatre.

To the student actors, such a plays has an enormous "carry over" effect. For example, many who worked with the Greek classic, "Antigone," last year turned in better for that experience stagework in "The King and I," and even the radically different "Guys and Dolls."

Classic plays are also a must for playwrights and critics. Nowhere else is there afforded such an opportunity to look at the reverse side of the dramatic fabric.

Henrik Ibsen, known as the father of the modern drama, was a Norwegian and introduced the family tragedy to the stage. Prior to his time — the late 1800's—'most family plays had made use of fictional and historicaly nobility.

This gave the theatre an unreal atmosphere rather akin to that of opera. Pioneers in the field of "middle class" dramatic works were writers in the French and German schools: Molliere, Schiller, Goethe and Lessing.

The last named of these, a minister's son, took criticism so seriously until he wrote a book on the subject. Judging from some of the language in today's plays, he and his father should come back and wage a theatrical language cleanup.

Ibsen moved the middle class family tragedy into its present form, possibly because by the end of the last century that element of society had to assume heavier responsibilities than ever before.

In "The Doll House," a wife is faced with a set of circumstances which cause her to leave her husband and family. Playwright Ibsen was thoroughly roasted by his late Victorian critics for such an act even with its tragic consequences.

So he wrote "Ghosts," which depicts the equally tragic consequences of a wife who resolved not to leave her home and husband in spite of motives ranging all the way from Freud to the family budget.

Included in the cast of "Ghosts," at Northeast last week were: Phyllis Gardsbane, W. J. Haddad, Pat Medaries, Chuck Morgan, and George Patterson.

Contract Pay Raise Given Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Basic steelworkers get a contract pay raise Dec. 1, heightening speculation whether the industry will boost steel prices to cover increased payroll costs.

Top management executives who must make the final decision aren't discussing their plans in public. But so far there has been no indication of any impending price changes.

A. B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel Corp., said recently his company would make a careful study of the price situation after the steelworkers' wage increase goes into effect.

That's about as far as any high management official has gone in talking about possible price revisions.

MEMBERS

Some 464,000 members of the United Steelworkers Union will receive pay hikes ranging from 7 to 13 cents an hour, depending on job classification. Next Oct. 1 hourly wages will go up 7 to 10 cents.

The pay raises, plus various fringe benefits, were provided in last January's contract settlement that followed a 116-day strike. The current average hourly rate is $3.11.

For the past five months the basic steel industry has been operating generally between 50 and 55 per cent of capacity. Prospects are dim for any significant production upturn in the next few months.

Because of this slowdown and the poor outlook, most sources close to the industry expect no immediate price hikes.

The Iron Age, national weekly trade magazine, sums up the situation this way:

"If and when steel demand reaches a level that will sustain a price increase, steel companies will increase their prices in line with increased costs.

"This will probably occur when steel operations approach 70 per cent of capacity. However, the uptrend is not likely to come until well into 1961."

Steel is basic to the nation's economy, being used in a host of manufactured items ranging from automobiles to electric toasters.

Any increase in steel prices, unless absorbed by the manufacturer, could mean higher price tags on hundreds of consumer products and a rise in the cost-of-living.

Steel companies last raised prices an average of $4.50 a ton in August 1958. The present composite base price for finished steel, according to Iron Age, is about $124 a ton.

Cotton Futures Show Decline In Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures declined this week, closing 15 cents to $1.55 a bale lower.

Nearer positions registered most of the sharpest losses. Softness was attributed to profit-taking attracted by gains in the two previous weeks. Some increases in the amount of hedge selling, plus trade and local liquidation stimulated by lack of new incentives, also contributed.

Demand during the week was confined largely to light commission house buying.

October consumption figures were discouraging, indicating that the gain from September was less than the average such gain during the past five years. Domestic mills used 667,000 bales during October compared with 733,000 a year earlier and the daily rate was 33,300 bales against 32,100 in September and 36,300 in October 1959.

Consumption for the season through October totaled 2,153,000 bales compared with 2,307,000 in the similar 1959 period.

8 New Wells Are Finaled In Local Oil, Gas District

By RICHARD GREENE
Oil Editor

Eight new oil and gas wells were brought in as new producers and 25 new permits were approved last week in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation.

The total of new completions is down from last week's count of 12, but there were nine more new locations staked in the area than in the previous week.

Also listed in the report, that is compiled by the local conservation office, were one re-completion, eight holes declared dry and abandoned and 25 active rigs in the fields.

Following are the new completions:

CONCORDIA

Roseland Field — Germany - Gulmon's Sharp No. 5 in sec. 22-4-9E, completed to flow 83 barrels through a 7-64 in. choke from perforations at 7079:87 ft., gas oil ratio 700:1, tubing pressure 715 lbs., gravity 43.6.

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Ark Fuel Oil Corp.'s Trem. Lbr. Co.'s A-37 in sec. 28-10-2E, completed to flow 84 barrels through a 18-64 in. choke from perforations at 208-12 ft., gravity 29.4

Tullos Urania Field — Ark Fuel Corp.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. "C" no. 39 in sec. 35-10-1E, completed to pump 17 barrels from 1514-22 ft., gravity 21.

Reeves and Darroh's Trem. Lbr. Co. no. 5 in sec. 30-10-2E, completed to pump 3 barrels from perforations at 1527-30 ft.

TENSAS

Buckhorn Field — Est of William G. Helis' Boyle et al A-4 in sec. 35-12-11E, completed to flow 87 barrels through a 5-64 in. choke from perforations 8753-70 ft., tubing pressure 1600 lbs., gas oil ratio 750:1, gravity 39.

UNION

Monroe Field — La Gas Prod Co.'s Olin Gas Trans Co. no. 25 in sec. 25-21-2E, completed to flow 845 MCF, rock pressure 990 lbs.

Olin Gas Trans Corp.'s Fee All no. 467 in sec. 18-21-3E, completed to flow 1050 MCF, rock pressure 790 lbs.

C. K. Primos and H. J. Nicholas Assoc's Hailey, Meeks, Brown A-1 in sec. 5-21-4E, completed to flow 198 MCF, rock pressure 180 lbs.

These are the new locations:

WEST CARROLL

Wildcat Field — Bodcaw Oil and Gas Corp.'s Alice Gowan et al No. 1, located 304 ft. south and 2557 ft. west of the NE corner of sec. 8-19-10E.

CATAHOULA

Wallace Lake Field — R. A. Campbell's Collins Ellard No. 1, located as follows: from the SE corner of sec. 15, go north for 887 ft. thence west for 564 ft. to location in sec. 15-8-6E.

R. A. Campbell's Magurder A-1, located as follows: from the SW corner of 14-8-6E go north for 1332 ft. thence east for 1350 ft. to surface hole location, thence north 69 degrees east for 320 ft. to bottom hole location in sec. 14-8-6E.

R. A. Campbell's Magruder A-2 in sec. 14-8-6E, located os follows: from the SW corner of sec. 1-8-6E, go easterly along the southerly line of sec. 14 from 1668 ft., thence north for 560 ft. to location in sec. 14-8-6E.

CONCORDIA

Wildcat Field — Coulston Drilling Co. et al's A. B. Learned et al No. 1, located as follows: from the NE corner of sec. 1, go south along corner of sec. 1, go south along the east line for 5696 ft. thence west for 4667 ft. to location in sec. 6-4-8E.

Crow Drilling and Producing Co.'s Faye M. Thomas no. 1, located 580 ft. west and 660 ft. south of the NE corner of the SW¼-NW ¼ of sec. 4-6-6E.

Omega Field — John Franks et al's R. S. Wilds est A-1, located 330 ft. from the south line and 330 ft. from the east line of the NE¼-SE¼ of sec. 13-7-6E.

Est. of William G. Helis' Gerbish no. 2-A in sec. 35-12-11E, drilling.

UNION

Wildcat Field — Austral Oil Co.'s Olin Oil and Gas Corp. in sec. 5-20-2E, drilling. This well was re-completed:

LaSALLE

Nebo Hemphill Field — Hunt Petroleum Corp.'s Goodpine F-80 in sec. 21-7-3E, re-completed to pump 39 barrels from perforations at 4052-57 ft.

ABANDONMENTS

Two holes were plugged and abandoned in the Wildcat and Omega fields of Concordia Parish, one was left in the Little Creek and two others in the Tullos Urania field of LaSalle, another was abandoned in the Olla field; one was left in the Wildcat field of Tensas and the final abandonment was in the Searcy field of LaSalle.

Car Buyers Get Guaranty

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Buyers of 1961 model cars probably can save themselves money if they read the exact terms of the new extended warranties which come with them.

For the first time every American manufacturer is giving the original purchaser written assurance that the major parts of his new car will give trouble-free service for the first 12 months, or the first 12,000 miles—whichever comes first. One make—Lincoln Continental—is covered for 24 months or 24,000 miles.

EXAMINATION

A close examination of these warranties, however, may show that items you hadn't considered also are covered. And you may save yourself some grief and heated arguments which could result from trying to apply the warranty to something specifically omitted.

As an example, consider the warranty which accompanies Ford cars, the first of the manufacturers to announce the shift from the old 90 days or 4,000 miles to 12 months of 12,000 miles:

If your new Ford needs an engine tuneup, you pay for it, just as you always have. If a headlight burns out, it costs you nothing. The sealed bulb, and the labor charge for replacing it, is paid by Ford.

SPARKPLUGS

When you need new sparkplugs, filters or ignition points, you pay. If the clock quits, the voltoge regulator goes haywire or a tube burns out in the radio, Ford pays.

You pay to have your brakes inspected. Ford pays if the serviceman finds some defect in them.

What Ford is saying is that every part that goes into your car is—under normal use and service—free from defects in material and workmanship for the period of the warranty.

Normal service means following the recommendations in the owner manual. For Ford these include a change of oil and the oil filter after the first 1,000 miles (owner expense), change of oil every 4,000 miles thereafter (also owner expense;, one engine tune-up and a brake inspection at or near the end of the first 12,000 miles or 12 months.

"This work doesn't have to be done by a Ford dealer to keep the warrant in effect," said Paul F. Lorenz, national parts and service manager of Ford Division "although of course we'd rather have it done by a dealer. If a man brings his car to the dealer it gives him the opportunity to check on other items such as door rattles, or burned-out bulbs."

Lorenz says Ford's decision to extend the warranty was no quick move. "We have been working up to it for some time," he said, "and new improvements made it possible, such as our 30,000-mile interval between grease jobs, our aluminized mufflers, new oil filter and our new system which eliminates entirely the need to change the fluid in automatic transmissions."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market is over its brief election fling and is back trying to guess what business will be like when spring comes.

What the new administration will want to do and what it actually will do will play a part.

But the market seems to be saying that a greater role will be taken by business and consumer forces. What the majority now think, right or wrong, is that the forces pulling the economy down in the last six months or so will have lost their strength in another six and that spring or maybe summer will find times generally on the upgrade.

OPTIMISM

What optimism this generates among stock traders is pretty well tempered just now by the prospect of continued dragging in many lines for the immediate future. And for the long run there is the growing tendency of consumers to spend more of their money for services of all kinds and less proportionately for the goods that factories turn out.

The stock market's post-election fling was relatively mild. For two weeks before stock prices had been rising most of the time.

On the day before the polling The Associated Press 60-stock price index stood at 211.8. The day after the election it rose to 212.4 and the next day, Nov. 10, to 215.5. Then it backed away and alternately rose and fell, until on Nov 18, after eight days of post-election trading, it closed at 214.3.

On a chart the whole process would even out pretty much along the rising line it had been taking before the voters acted.

DOW-JONES

The Dow-Jones industrial index of 30 stocks followed much the same course. On Nov. 7 it was 597.63; Nov. 9 it rose to 602.25; hit a high of 612.01 Nov. 10; fell back and closed last week at 603.5.

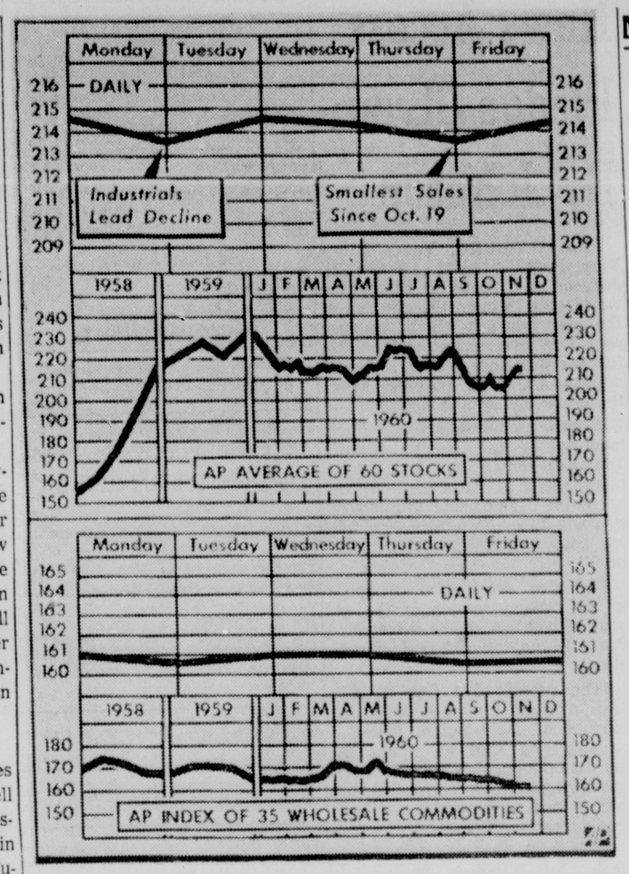

Some of the mildness of the reaction to Sen. Kennedy's election is likely due to uncertainty as to just what he will actually propose and, more important, just how he'll propose to go about it. And there's considerable doubt that the strong conservative bloc in Congress would let him take any really radical steps.

Today many stock analysts are taking this tack: Stock prices have been depressed because the economy slackened off: but since the decline of the last six months was relatively slight, prospects for a recovery fairly soon are that much brighter.

At home the economy still has to shake off these downward pressures: the hand-to-mouth inventory policy which holds new orders at a minimum; the over capacity built into many industries in the last few years: the consequent drop in plans for more plant and equipment spending; the still rising costs that crimp profits because competition is too keen for prices to rise at a like rate; and a tendency on the part of some consumers to wait and see before spending much beyond the outlays to which they're already committed.

Abroad the pressures are strong and often unchartable.

They are both political and financial. The stock market tends to react quickly to any marked change in the overseas news.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks registered its first decline in four weeks when it closed at 214.3. It was 214.6 a week ago. With grains and textiles showing the largest losses, the commodity index moved lower to 160.6 from 161.0 in preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

SOME GAINS SHOWN

Market Decline Is Relatively Small

NEW YORK (UPI)—The three-week advance in stock prices was halted this week, but the decline was relatively small.

There was a fair number of gains spread throughout the list but they were mainly in issues outside those used to compile the averages. The nearby market behavior continues to be sensitive to current business developments.

Many individual issues responded to dividend news. A number of dividen extras, expected and unexpected, have appeared along with corporate announcements of regular payments.

According to one market expert, rather important but possibly ill-informed support for the market has been coming from abroad, based on the yet unproven assumption that President-elect Kennedy will follow closely the spending schemes outlined in the Democratic platform.

Nevertheless, no one has been brash enough to expect any but perfunctory moves towards economy in government, and would not even if Vice President Nixon had been the winner. Consequently, protection against creeping inflation still is a major concern of investors.

PRODUCTION

Industrial production, after declining for two months, leveled off in October as stepped-up auto output offset declines elsewhere. Retail sales have perked up, and auto sales have been at a pretty good pace. A forecast of a 4 per cent rise in private home building next years, and a price increase by major glass makers, also helped improve trader sentiment.

A late buying spurt on Friday was attributed to trader anticipation of an increase in short interest figures. After the close the exchange reported that short interest on the "big board" rose 378,390 shares to 4,135,870 shares as of Nov. 15, the highest since Jan. 15, 1959.

Standard Oil of New Jersey, was the most active issue this week on sales of 161,300 shares. It closed at 40⅛ off ¾. The government settled the suits against Jersey Standard and Gulf Oil in its seven-year international oil cartel case.

Universal Match among the few vending stocks in demand this week, was the runner-up in volume, followel by Universal Oil Products, American Motors and Brunswick Corp.

All Averages Down

The Dow - Jones averages showed 30 industrials at 603.62 off 4.99 from the previous week's close; 20 Rails 128.98 off 0.48; 15 utilities 94.13 up 0.55; and 65 stocks 200.13 off 0.83.

Domestic Oil Men Urged To Be Patient

CHICAGO (AP) — Domestic oil operators have been asked to be patient—but persistent—while handling Washington problems in 1961.

The recommendation apparently is pegged on an objective of winning new friends in 1961 in order to be prepared for practically most any eventuality in 1962.

M. J. Rathbone, board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute (API), made the recommendation at this week's annual meeting of API.

The prevailing attitude among the 6,500 oilmen attending the three-day meeting seemed to anticipate no major action on oil problems by the new administration and Congress before 1962.

But Rathbone and other industry spokesmen called for alertness during the period of transition.

Rathbone made these specific recommendations:

RECOMMENDS

"We must energetically seek to develop understanding of the necessity for the depletion provision in our tax laws.

"We must continue to hammer at what someone has aptly called 'the highway robbery" of gasoline taxes.

"We must continue to press for natural gas legislation that takes account of the interest of all concerned."

Rathbone, president of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), made no reference to the imports controversy. API represents all segments of the industry and traditionally sidesteps such issues as imports, which, for the most part, finds major and independent operators with opposite views.

The new Congress will have to act next year on gasoline taxes. A 1-cent per gallon temporary tax is to expire in June. API has given vigorous support to a campaign opposing an extension.

Imports and natural gas also may be among the first oil problems affected by the change in administrations.

There has been indication President Eisenhower's administration will leave to the new secretary of interior any further action on several proposed adjustments in the mandatory imports control program.

Appointments to be made by President-elect John F. Kennedy also could cause early decisions affecting natural gas regulation and anti-trust enforcement. New majorities for both the Federal Power Commission (FPC) and Federal Trade Commission (FTC) can be formed next year by Kennedy appointments.

Rathbone said the recent FPC ruling that natural gas operators should not be subjected to utility-type controls does not minimize a need for legislation relieving wellhead prices from federal regulation.

Electric Co-ops'
BIG PAY OFF

It's Helping Everybody — Town and Country

Everybody knows what a great blessing rural electrification has been to the farmer, but what about its many invaluable by-products? Let's consider just a few of the immeasurable benefits to Town and Country:

- Increased Agricultural Productivity
- Better Citizen Health
- New Markets for Main Street
- Total Rural Development
- Rural Industry
- More Jobs
- Play Facilities
- Personal Pride

Yes, the pay-off has been staggering . . . more than HALF-BILLION DOLLARS for appliances alone. And, that's just the beginning. There's an even brighter future ahead . . . thanks to the vision and courage of the locally-owned and managed electric co-operatives. The big pay-off is helping the entire economy—Town and Country.

Contract Pay Raise Given Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Basic steelworkers get a contract pay raise Dec. 1, heightening speculation whether the industry will boost steel prices to cover increased payroll costs.

Top management executives who must make the final decision aren't discussing their plans in public. But so far there has been no indication of any impending price changes.

A. B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel Corp., said recently his company would make a careful study of the price situation after the steelworkers' wage increase goes into effect.

That's about as far as any high management official has gone in talking about possible price revisions.

MEMBERS

Some 464,000 members of the United Steelworkers Union will receive pay hikes ranging from 7 to 13 cents an hour, depending on job classification. Next Oct. 1 hourly wages will go up 7 to 10 cents.

The pay raises, plus various fringe benefits, were provided in last January's contract settlement that followed a 116-day strike. The current average hourly rate is $3.11.

For the past five months the basic steel industry has been operating generally between 50 and 55 per cent of capacity. Prospects are dim for any significant production upturn in the next few months.

Because of this slowdown and the poor outlook, most sources close to the industry expect no immediate price hikes.

The Iron Age, national weekly trade magazine, sums up the situation this way:

"If and when steel demand reaches a level that will sustain a price increase, steel companies will increase their prices in line with increased costs.

"This will probably occur when steel operations approach 70 per cent of capacity. However, the uptrend is not likely to come until we l into 1961."

Steel is basic to the nation's economy, being used in a host of manufactured items ranging from automobiles to electric toasters.

Any increase in steel prices, unless absorbed by the manufacturer, could mean higher price tags on hundreds of consumer products and a rise in the cost-of-living.

Steel companies last raised prices an average of $4.50 a ton in August 1958. The present composite base price for finished steel, according to Iron Age, is about $124 a ton.

Cotton Futures Show Decline In Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures declined this week, closing 15 cents to $1.55 a bale lower.

Nearer positions registered most of the sharpest losses. Softness was attributed to profit-taking attracted by gains in the two previous weeks. Some increases in the amount of hedge selling, plus trade and local liquidation stimulated by lack of new incentives, also contributed.

Demand during the week was confined largely to light commission house buying.

October consumption figures were discouraging, indicating that the gain from September was less than the average such gain during the past five years. Domestic mills used 667,000 bales during October compared with 733,000 a year earlier and the daily rate was 33,300 bales against 32,100 in September and 36,300 in October 1959.

Consumption for the season through October totaled 2,153,000 bales compared with 2,307,000 in the similar 1959 period.

DURING PAST WEEK

8 New Wells Are Finaled In Local Oil, Gas District

By RICHARD GREENE
Oil Editor

Eight new oil and gas wells were brought in as new producers and 25 new permits were approved last week in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation.

The total of new completions is down from last week's count of 12, but there were nine more new locations staked in the area than in the previous week.

Also listed in the report, that is compiled by the local conservation office, were one re - completion, eight holes declared dry and abandoned and 25 active rigs in the fields.

Following are the new completions:

CONCORDIA

Roseland Field — Germany - Gulmon's Sharp No. 5 in sec. 22-4-9E, completed to flow 83 barrels through a 7-64 in. choke from perforations at 7079;87 ft., gas oil ratio 700:1, tubing pressure 715 lbs., gravity 43.6.

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Ark Fuel Oil Corp.'s Trem. Lbr. Co.'s A-37 in sec. 28-10-2E, completed to flow 84 barrels through a 18-64 in. choke from perforations at 208-12 ft., gravity 29.4

Tullos Urania Field — Ark Fuel Corp.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. "C" no. 39 in sec. 35-10-1E, completed to pump 17 barrels from 1514-22 ft., gravity 21.

Reeves and Darroh's Trem. Lbr. Co. no. 5 in sec. 30-10-2E, completed to pump 3 barrels from perforations at 1527-30 ft.

Car Buyers Get Guaranty

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Buyers of 1961 model cars probably can save themselves money if they read the exact terms of the new extended warranties which come with them.

For the first time every American manufacturer is giving the original purchaser written assurance that the major parts of his new car will give trouble-free service for the first 12 months, or the first 12,000 miles—whichever comes first. One make—Lincoln Continental—is covered for 24 months or 24,000 miles.

EXAMINATION

A close examination of these warranties, however, may show that items you hadn't considered also are covered. And you may save yourself some grief and heated arguments which could result from trying to apply the warranty to something specifically omitted.

As an example, consider the warranty which accompanies Ford cars, the first of the manufacturers to announce the shift from the old 90 days or 4,000 miles to 12 months of 12,000 miles:

If your new Ford needs an engine tuneup, you pay for it, just as you always have. If a headlight burns out, it costs you nothing. The sealed bulb, and the labor charge for replacing it, is paid by Ford.

SPARKPLUGS

When you need new sparkplugs, filters or ignition points, you pay. If the clock quits, the voltage regulator goes haywire or a tube burns out in the radio, Ford pays.

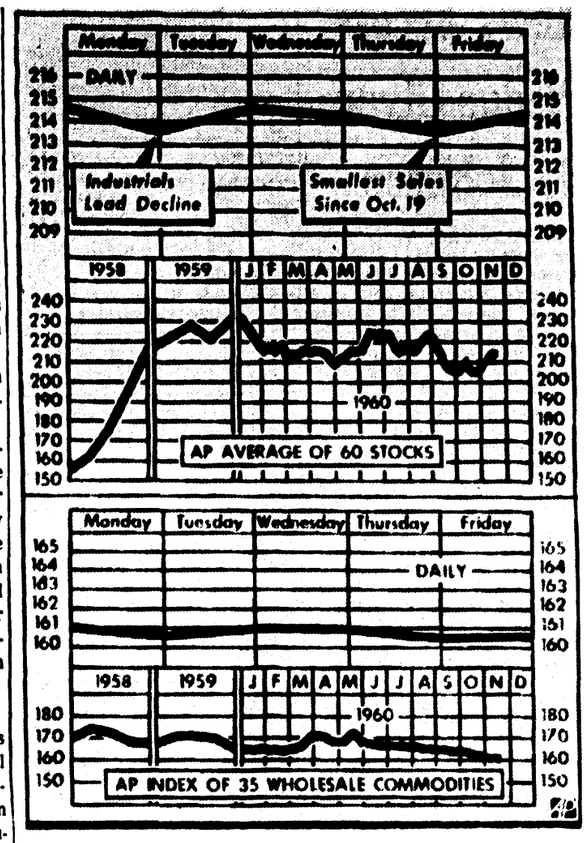

You pay to have your brakes inspected. Ford pays if the serviceman finds some defect in them.

What Ford is saying is that every part that goes into your car is—under normal use and service—free from defects in material and workmanship for the period of the warranty.

Normal service means following the recommendations in the owner manual. For Ford these - clude a change of oil and the oil filter after the first 1,000 miles (owner expense), change of oil every 4,000 miles thereafter (also owner expense;, one engine tune-up and a brake inspection at or near the end of the first 12,000 miles or 12 months.

"This work doesn't have to be done by a Ford dealer to keep the warrant in effect," said Paul F. Lorenz, national parts and service manager of Ford Division "although of course we'd rather have it done by a dealer. If a man brings his car to the dealer it gives him the opportunity to check on other items such as door rattles, or burned-out bulbs."

Lorenz says Ford's decision to extend the warranty was no quick move. "We have been working up to it for some time," he said, "and new improvements made it possible, such as our 30,000-mile interval between grease jobs, our aluminized mufflers, new oil filter and our new system which eliminates entirely the need to change the fluid in automatic transmissions."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks registered its first decline in four weeks when it closed at 214.3. It was 214.6 a week ago. With grains and textiles showing the largest losses, the commodity index moved lower to 160.6 from 161.0 in preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

SOME GAINS SHOWN

Market Decline Is Relatively Small

NEW YORK (UPI)—The three-week advance in stock prices was halted this week, but the decline was relatively small.

There was a fair number of gains spread throughout the list but they were mainly in issues outside those used to compile the averages. The nearby market behavior continues to be sensitive to current business developments.

Many individual issues responded to dividend news. A number of dividen extras, expected and unexpected, have appeared along with corporate announcements of regular payments.

According to one market expert, rather important but possibly ill-informed support for the market has been coming from abroad, based on the yet unproven assumption that President-elect Kennedy will follow closely the spending schemes outlined in the Democratic platform.

Nevertheless, no one has been brash enough to expect any but perfunctory moves towards economy in government, and would not even if Vice President Nixon had been the winner. Consequently, protection against creeping inflation still is a major concern of investors.

PRODUCTION

Industrial production, after declining for two months, leveled off in October as stepped-up auto output offset declines elsewhere. Retail sales have perked up, and auto sales have been at a pretty good pace. A forecast of a 4 per cent rise in private home building next years, and a price increase by major glass makers, also helped improve trader sentiment.

A late buying spurt on Friday was attributed to trader anticipation of an increase in short interest figures. After the close the exchange reported that short interest on the "big board" rose 378,390 shares to 4,135,870 shares as of Nov. 15, the highest since Jan. 15, 1959.

Standard Oil of New Jersey, was the most active issue this week on sales of 161,300 shares. It closed at 40⅛ off ¾. The government settled the suits against Jersey Standard and Gulf Oil in its seven-year international oil cartel case.

Universal Match among the few vending stocks in demand this week, was the runner-up in volume, followel by Universal Oil Products, American Motors and Brunswick Corp.

All Averages Down

The Dow - Jones averages showed 30 industrials at 603.62 off 4.99 from the previous week's close; 20 Rails 128.98 off 0.48; 15 utilities 94.13 up 0.55; and 65 stocks 200.13 off 0.83.

Domestic Oil Men Urged To Be Patient

CHICAGO (AP) — Domestic oil operators have been asked to be patient—but persistent—while handling Washington problems in 1961.

The recommendation apparently is pegged on an objective of winning new friends in 1961 in order to be prepared for practically most any eventuality in 1962.

M. J. Rathbone, board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute (API), made the recommendation at this week's annual meeting of API.

The prevailing attitude among the 6,500 oilmen attending the three-day meeting seemed to anticipate no major action on oil problems by the new administration and Congress before 1962.

But Rathbone and other industry spokesmen called for alertness during the period of transition.

Rathbone made these specific recommendations:

RECOMMENDS

"We must energetically seek to develop understanding of the necessity for the depletion provision in our tax laws.

"We must continue to hammer at what someone has aptly called 'the highway robbery" of gasoline taxes.

"We must continue to press for natural gas legislation that takes account of the interest of all concerned."

Rathbone, president of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), made no reference to the imports controversy. API represents all segments of the industry and traditionally sidesteps such issues as imports, which, for the most part, finds major and independent operators with opposite views.

The new Congress will have to act next year on gasoline taxes. A 1-cent per gallon temporary tax is to expire in June. API has given vigorous support to a campaign opposing an extension.

Imports and natural gas also may be among the first oil problems affected by the change in administrations.

There has been indication President Eisenhower's administration will leave to the new secretary of interior any further action on several proposed adjustments in the mandatory imports control program.

Appointments to be made by President-elect John F. Kennedy also could cause early decisions affecting natural gas regulation and anti-trust enforcement. New majorities for both the Federal Power Commission (FPC) and Federal Trade Commission (FTC) can be formed next year by Kennedy appointments.

Rathbone said the recent FPC ruling that natural gas operators should not be subjected to utility-type controls does not minimize a need for legislation relieving wellhead prices from federal regulation.

Electric Co-ops'
BIG PAY OFF

It's Helping Everybody — Town and Country

Everybody knows what a great blessing rural electrification has been to the farmer, but what about its many invaluable by-products? Let's consider just a few of the immeasurable benefits to Town and Country:

- Increased Agricultural Productivity
- Better Citizen Health
- New Markets for Main Street
- Total Rural Development
- Rural Industry
- More Jobs
- Play Facilities
- Personal Pride

Yes, the pay-off has been staggering . . . more than HALF-BILLION DOLLARS for appliances alone. And, that's just the beginning. There's an even brighter future ahead . . . thanks to the vision and courage of the locally-owned and managed electric co-operatives. The big pay-off is helping the entire economy—Town and Country.

U.S. MOBILE BASES

Terrific Nuclear Fire-Power Due

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. ballistic missile launching planes and submarines will be able to fire about a billion and a half tons of nuclear fury from world-roaming, mobile bases if present building and projected programs are carried out.

This fantastic tonnage would be aside from the massive destruction potential of intercontinental ballistic missiles fired from fixed bases in the United States, intermediate range missiles based abroad, and the tonnages of multimegation bombs dropped from planes.

The Navy now is well along in the first phase of its program for building an eventual fleet of about 45 Polaris submarines. The first such submarine, with 16 missiles ready, is at sea. Each missile has an energy yield equivalent to slightly over 600,000 tons of conventional TNT explosive; the yield is expected to be increased later to about a million tons—one megation—per missile. By comparison, the first atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima was of 20,000-ton size.

The Air Force is pushing its program for a mobile missile launching system called the Skybolt.

These rockets are resigned to have a range of about 1,100 miles when launched from B52 bombers, with each bomber carrying two missiles.

Air Force experts estimated Saturday that if only half of the B52 bomber force of 670 aircraft is equipped for Skybolt missiles, the volume of firepower will be about that of the 720-megaton total for the 45 Polaris submarines.

The Skybolt is being developed for the Air Force by the Douglas Aircraft Co. as prime contractor, with major subcontractors including Aerojet General Corp., General Electric Co., Boeing Airplane Co. and Northrop Corp.

Preliminary tests of experimental designs have shown that the rocket can be launched from planes flying at supersonic as well as subsonic speed. The B52 is subsonic. The rocket itself will fly at the hypersonic speed of a ballistic missile.

The missile will be dropped from a B52, then ignited as it clears the carrier plane. In its first phase it will tilt nose upward and climb to a trajectory peak of more than 200 miles, then arc in toward the target.

The argument advanced for the Skybolt system is the same as that for the Polaris: It gets missile launching away from known, fixed bases, using instead launching sites which are constantly on the move, hard to locate or destroy.

A B52 will be able to carry a combination of Skybolt missiles, mounted externally, and a bomb bay load of gravity-dropped nuclear bombs.

Some of the last B52s still being built can be changed to permit use of the Skybolt, while the changes needed in existing bombers can be made easily and at comparatively moderate cost, Air Force experts say. The missile itself will be propelled with a two-stage, solid fuel power plant.

The Air Force estimates the Skybolt system will begin to come into operation in 1964. This apparently would mean that the system would be completed about 1966, which coincides with the target date for completion of the last of the 45 Polaris submarines.

The trade magazine Aviation Week estimates that development cost of the Skybolt eventually will reach about $380 million instead of an originally estimated total of $138 million.

Hoffa Faces New Probes For Actions

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa, much-investigated head of the big Teamsters Union, is being investigated again by both Congress and the courts.

Sen. John L. McClellan, -Ark., announced Saturday he expects to show in a series of hearings opening Dec. 13 that "notorious underworld criminals and racketeers continue to control" Teamsters locals under Hoffa's rule.

Hoffa himself is expected to be called for testimony at the hearings, which will concentrate on New York City union operations, some of which were said to be still under the control of hoodlum Anthony (Tony Ducks) Corallo.

McClellan said the hearings will concern shakedowns, payroll padding and union welfare fund irregularities.

A federal grand jury at Orlando, Fla., ended a six-month recess and was suddenly reconvened several days ago in an inquiry into Hoffa's alleged misuse of $400,000 of Teamsters' funds in a Florida real estate project.

Hoffa actively opposed the election of John F. Kennedy to the presidency, attacking both the Massachusetts senator and his brother, Robert, who served as chief counsel for another McClellan Senate committee which investigated Hoffa vigorously.

There has been a Democratic charge that the grand jury inquiry in Florida was suspended by the Republicans so Hoffa would be free to campaign against Kennedy.

Jerome Adlerman, associated with Robert Kennedy in the earlier probe, is counsel for the Senate investigations subcommittee that will hold the new set of hearings.

The reopened court and congressional investigations come at a bad time for Hoffa. His attorneys have been on the brink of successfully negotiating a settlement to wipe out the court monitor system that has kept Hoffa under rein for several years.

A hitch developed in these secret settlement talks when a group of anti-Hoffa plaintiffs in the litigation, Teamsters members from New York, balked at accepting the settlement proposed by their attorney, Godfrey Schmidt. They got themselves a new lawyer, Joseph S. McCarthy, and he is insisting on stiffer settlement terms.

McClellan said one reason for resuming hearings is to determine whether the 1959 labor law enacted by Congress is tough enough to curb what he termed racket control of unions.

"It is expected James R. Hoffa will be called as a witness and asked to explain the continuance of racket control of Teamsters locals under his jurisdiction," McClellan said.

The senator said Teamsters Locals 239 and 75 and Local 238 of the International Union of Doll and Toy Workers will be specifically investigated in the coming hearings. Adlerman said hoodlum Corallo, supposedly ousted from influence in New York Teamsters affairs, actually still is in.

McClellan said he expects the new hearings to show racketeer shakedowns of employers to secure labor peace, misuse of union welfare funds, phony payroll payments to dummy union officials, and obvious false filing of union reports to the government.

Red Summit Meeting Is Near Close

MOSCOW (AP)—The Communist world's summit meeting was reported drawing to a close Saturday after an unusually long session. It opened 10 days ago. But not all sources were unanimous on progress. Some said talks still are under way on whether to take a tougher line in the cold war against the West.

The first indication that the marathon meeting may be ending was the departure Saturday of President Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia for Prague. Some sources, however, said Novotny went home for other reasons and that the Communist meeting continued without him.

(In Budapest, the Hungarian Radio announced the Hungarian Parliament will meet in special session Dec. 1. Although no announcement was made about the Moscow meeting, it seemed likely the Hungarian Parliament session was connected with the summit talks.)

The immediate issue is a dispute within the Communist world on how to come up with a formula satisfactory to both Moscow and Peiping on the theory that war with the capitalist world is not inevitable and communism will triumph without it.

A communique on that is expected this week, but some reports said there might be no communique at all.

From such a pronouncement on Communist ideology Westerners might read the outcome of a dispute on Communist strategy—whether to take a harder line against the West and force the issue on such problems as West Berlin.

Some leaders in Red China have been criticized here for insisting on a hard line. The opposing view, shared by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, is that peaceful coexistence with the capitalist states is essential to avoid nuclear war and permit what the exponents believe will be a slower, certain victory for communism.

Nothing whatever has been published in the Soviet Union about the meeting, but roundabout rumors drifting here from abroad say that sharp disputes have developed in writing the new program.

Kennedys Have Swim Mishaps

Acting Press Secretary Donald M. Wilson told newsmen the President-elect scratched his back on a rock several days ago while swimming in the Atlantic surf at the Kennedy family's Palm Beach estate.

Wilson stressed "it was just a scratch" and that the President-elect "is perfectly all right."

Robert suffered a strained neck ligament Friday while skin diving in the Pacific off Acapulco, where he is vacationing with his wife. His injury was described as painful, but not serious.

News Access Pledge Given By Johnson

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson said Saturday that if the world gets through the dangers of the near future it will be because people in government and private life act with that greater sense of dignity and high purpose which the crisis of the age demands.

Johnson, en route to a Paris meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, promised the newspapers of America that the upcoming Democratic administration will give the nation the "fullest possible freedom of information."

The vice president-elect spoke to the closing session of the annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors' Association.

"The people of a free country have a right to know about the conduct of their public affairs," he said. He said he would not say that the people's right to know has been throttled in America, but that it had in recent years been considerably muted.

"This will no longer be true when Sen. Kennedy begins his presidency," Johnson said. "He will not, of course, make any ridiculous promise to conduct all governmental affairs in a goldfish bowl.

"There are now, there will be, and there always have been matters such as those affecting security and executive confidence that must not be publicized in the national interest."

Johnson told some 300 managing editors he came to their meeting at the request of Kennedy, but that it was too early to give them a blueprint of the plans of the new administration. And, he added, when that time comes only one person can speak with authority — President - elect John F. Kennedy.

The vice president-elect also declined to discuss in detail "the completely futile question of the extent of the mandate" given the new administration.

"This," he said, "is an issue which has filled the headlines for the past few days, but which certainly has little relevancy to the realities of our national life. A small majority does not mean that the administration is expected to exercise a small bit of wisdom, a small bit of prudence, or a small bit of effectiveness."

Johnson said: "I can promise you this—the incoming administration went before the American people on a platform which sought to do the greatest good for the greatest number and, we are going to try to the limits of our ability to achieve that goal."

U.S. MOBILE BASES

Terrific Nuclear Fire-Power Due

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. ballistic missile launching planes and submarines will be able to fire about a billion and a half tons of nuclear fury from world-roaming, mobile bases if present building and projected programs are carried out.

This fantastic tonnage would be aside from the massive destruction potential of intercontinental ballistic missiles fired from fixed bases in the United States, intermediate range missiles based abroad, and the tonnages of multimegation bombs dropped from planes.

The Navy now is well along in the first phase of its program for building an eventual fleet of about 45 Polaris submarines. The first such submarine, with 16 missiles ready, is at sea. Each missile has an energy yield equivalent to slightly over 600,000 tons of conventional TNT explosive; the yield is expected to be increased later to about a million tons—one megation—per missile. By comparison, the first atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima was of 20,000-ton size.

The Air Force is pushing its program for a mobile missile launching system called the Skybolt.

These rockets are resigned to have a range of about 1,100 miles when launched from B52 bombers, with each bomber carrying two missiles.

Air Force experts estimated Saturday that if only half of the B52 bomber force of 670 aircraft is equipped for Skybolt missiles, the volume of firepower will be about that of the 720-megaton total for the 45 Polaris submarines.

The Skybolt is being developed for the Air Force by the Douglas Aircraft Co. as prime contractor, with major subcontractors including Aerojet General Corp., General Electric Co., Boeing Airplane Co. and Northrop Corp.

Preliminary tests of experimental designs have shown that the rocket can be launched from planes flying at supersonic as well as subsonic speed. The B52 is subsonic. The rocket itself will fly at the hypersonic speed of a ballistic missile.

The missile will be dropped from a B52, then ignited as it clears the carrier plane. In its first phase it will tilt nose upward and climb to a trajectory peak of more than 200 miles, then arc in toward the target.

The argument advanced for the Skybolt system is the same as that for the Polaris: It gets missile launching away from known, fixed bases, using instead launching sites which are constantly on the move, hard to locate or destroy.

A B52 will be able to carry a combination of Skybolt missiles, mounted externally, and a bomb bay load of gravity-dropped nuclear bombs.

Some of the last B52s still being built can be changed to permit use of the Skybolt, while the changes needed in existing bombers can be made easily and at comparatively moderate cost, Air Force experts say. The missile itself will be propelled with a two-stage, solid fuel power plant.

The Air Force estimates the Skybolt system will begin to come into operation in 1964. This apparently would mean that the system would be completed about 1966, which coincides with the target date for completion of the last of the 45 Polaris submarines.

The trade magazine Aviation Week estimates that development cost of the Skybolt eventually will reach about $380 million instead of an originally estimated total of $138 million.

Hoffa Faces New Probes For Actions

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa, much-investigated head of the big Teamsters Union, is being investigated again by both Congress and the courts.

Sen. John L. McClellan, -Ark., announced Saturday he expects to show in a series of hearings opening Dec. 13 that "notorious underworld criminals and racketeers continue to control" Teamsters locals under Hoffa's rule.

Hoffa himself is expected to be called for testimony at the hearings, which will concentrate on New York City union operations, some of which were said to be still under the control of hoodlum Anthony (Tony Ducks) Corallo.

McClellan said the hearings will concern shakedowns, payroll padding and union welfare fund irregularities.

A federal grand jury at Orlando, Fla., ended a six-month recess and was suddenly reconvened several days ago in an inquiry into Hoffa's alleged misuse of $400,000 of Teamsters' funds in a Florida real estate project.

Hoffa actively opposed the election of John F. Kennedy to the presidency, attacking both the Massachusetts senator and his brother, Robert, who served as chief counsel for another McClellan Senate committee which investigated Hoffa vigorously.

There has been a Democratic charge that the grand jury inquiry in Florida was suspended by the Republicans so Hoffa would be free to campaign against Kennedy.

Jerome Adlerman, associated with Robert Kennedy in the earlier probe, is counsel for the Senate investigations subcommittee that will hold the new set of hearings.

The reopened court and congressional investigations come at a bad time for Hoffa. His attorneys have been on the brink of successfully negotiating a settlement to wipe out the court monitor system that has kept Hoffa under rein for several years.

A hitch developed in these secret settlement talks when a group of anti-Hoffa plaintiffs in the litigation, Teamsters members from New York, balked at accepting the settlement proposed by their attorney, Godfrey Schmidt. They got themselves a new lawyer, Joseph S. McCarthy, and he is insisting on stiffer settlement terms.

McClellan said one reason for resuming hearings is to determine whether the 1959 labor law enacted by Congress is tough enough to curb what he termed racket control of unions.

"It is expected James R. Hoffa will be called as a witness and asked to explain the continuance of racket control of Teamsters locals under his jurisdiction," McClellan said.

The senator said Teamsters Locals 239 and 75 and Local 238 of the International Union of Doll and Toy Workers will be specifically investigated in the coming hearings. Adlerman said hoodlum Corallo, supposedly ousted from influence in New York Teamsters affairs, actually still is in.

McClellan said he expects the new hearings to show racketeer shakedowns of employers to secure labor peace, misuse of union welfare funds, phony payroll payments to dummy union officials, and obvious false filing of union reports to the government.

Kennedys Have Swim Mishaps

Acting Press Secretary Donald M. Wilson told newsmen the President-elect scratched his back on a rock several days ago while swimming in the Atlantic surf at the Kennedy family's Palm Beach estate.

Wilson stressed "it was just a scratch" and that the President-elect "is perfectly all right."

Robert suffered a strained neck ligament Friday while skin diving in the Pacific off Acapulco, where he is vacationing with his wife. His injury was described as painful, but not serious.

Red Summit Meeting Is Near Close

MOSCOW (AP)—The Communist world's summit meeting was reported drawing to a close Saturday after an unusually long session. It opened 10 days ago. But not all sources were unanimous on progress. Some said talks still are under way on whether to take a tougher line in the cold war against the West.

The first indication that the marathon meeting may be ending was the departure Saturday of President Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia for Prague. Some sources, however, said Novotny went home for other reasons and that the Communist meeting continued without him.

(In Budapest, the Hungarian Radio announced the Hungarian Parliament will meet in special session Dec. 1. Although no announcement was made about the Moscow meeting, it seemed likely the Hungarian Parliament session was connected with the summit talks.)

The immediate issue is a dispute within the Communist world on how to come up with a formula satisfactory to both Moscow and Peiping on the theory that war with the capitalist world is not inevitable and communism will triumph without it.

A communique on that is expected this week, but some reports said there might be no communique at all.

From such a pronouncement on Communist ideology Westerners might read the outcome of a dispute on Communist strategy—whether to take a harder line against the West and force the issue on such problems as West Berlin.

Some leaders in Red China have been criticized here for insisting on a hard line. The opposing view, shared by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, is that peaceful coexistence with the capitalist states is essential to avoid nuclear war and permit what the exponents believe will be a slower, certain victory for communism.

Nothing whatever has been published in the Soviet Union about the meeting, but roundabout rumors drifting here from abroad say that sharp disputes have developed in writing the new program.

News Access Pledge Given By Johnson

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson said Saturday that if the world gets through the dangers of the near future it will be because people in government and private life act with that greater sense of dignity and high purpose which the crisis of the age demands.

Johnson, en route to a Paris meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, promised the newspapers of America that the upcoming Democratic administration will give the nation the "fullest possible freedom of information."

The vice president-elect spoke to the closing session of the annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors' Association.

"The people of a free country have a right to know about the conduct of their public affairs," he said. He said he would not say that the people's right to know has been throttled in America, but that it had in recent years been considerably muted.

"This will no longer be true when Sen. Kennedy begins his presidency," Johnson said. "He will not, of course, make any ridiculous promise to conduct all governmental affairs in a goldfish bowl.

"There are now, there will be, and there always have been matters such as those affecting security and executive confidence that must not be publicized in the national interest."

Johnson told some 300 managing editors he came to their meeting at the request of Kennedy, but that it was too early to give them a blueprint of the plans of the new administration. And, he added, when that time comes only one person can speak with authority — President - elect John F. Kennedy.

The vice president-elect also declined to discuss in detail "the completely futile question of the extent of the mandate" given the new administration.

"This," he said, "is an issue which has filled the headlines for the past few days, but which cretainly has little relevancy to the realities of our national life. A small majority does not mean that the administration is expected to exercise a small bit of wisdom, a small bit of prudence, or a small bit of effectiveness."

Johnson said: "I can promise you this—the incoming administration went before the American people on a platform which sought to do the greatest good for the greatest number and, we are going to try to the limits of our ability to achieve that goal."

Kennedy Keeping Tight Lid On Cabinet Choices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-Elect John F. Kennedy is keeping tightly secret the names of men he will place in cabinet posts.

He has ordered elaborate precautions against leaks to newsmen concerning who may have an inside track for any major appointment. There has, however, been a seemingly authentic report that the secretary of commerce post will go to Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina. Hodges is a self-styled moderate Democrat and former vice president of Marshall Field & Co., the big Chicago department store.

Informants said Kennedy is still sorting through batches of names to find the "men of integrity, intelligence, vision and energetic drive" he has said he will place high in his administration.

There have been hints he may have at least one Republican in the Cabinet, and that he would like to include a Negro and a Southerner among his choices.

Hodges is the author of a local option plan to minimize mixing of the races in public schools that hasn't been upset in the courts. He is an energetic man, who has made trade missions abroad and sponsored research in building the industrial resources of his nation and state.

There have been reports that Kennedy might choose a Republican secretary of state, promoting Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon to that post. Or he might ask Republican Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson to stay on. Anderson once was a Democrat.

Kennedy is known, however, to be considering a long list of Democrats for the secretary of state nomination including:

Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas; Adlai E. Stevenson, two-time presidential nominee; former Gov. Averell Harriman of New York; Rep. Chester Bowles of Connecticut; Dean Rusk, former assistant secretary of state, and David Bruce, a former undersecretary.

Picking a new secretary of agriculture is one of the most troublesome Cabinet problems Kennedy faces. These Democratic names have been considered:

The Farmers Union is expected to have a large voice in this selection.

Some Kennedy associates say they will be surprised if he doesn't award a Cabinet job to Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, either as secretary of labor, secretary of health, education and welfare, or postmaster general.

A long list of other Democrats also has been suggested to Kennedy for the important secretary of labor post, including these: Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City; Archibald Cox, Harvard professor and one of Kennedy's top brain trusters; Rep Edith Green of Oregon; Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey, who was another top campaign adviser to Kenney, and officials of two labor unions.

The latter two are Arthur J. Goldberg, general counsel to the United Steelworkers Union and special counsel to the AFL-CIO, and Joseph D. Keenan, secretary-treasurer of the Interntaional Brotherhood of Electrical workers.

Many in the field of labor have questioned privately whether any unionists would take the job. The secretary of labor must enforce the new anti-rocketeering labor law which organized labor generally opposed.

Kennedy may choose his secretary of defense from this field:

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri; Byron (Whizzer) White, who headed the Citizens-for-Kennedy Campaign Committee; Frank Pace, former secretary of the Army; Dan Kimball, former secretary of the Navy; Roswell Gilpatrick, former assistant secretary of the Air Force, and Republican Undersecretary of State Dillon.

White is viewed also as a top contender for attorney general and so is Gov. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, with the idea of an ultimate Supreme Court nomination for Ribicoff.

If Secretary of the Treasury Anderson is to be replaced, the post may go to one of these men: John J. McCloy, a Republican former high commissioner to Germany ond now board chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank; President Eugene R. Black of the World Bank, or Board Chairman Henry Alexander of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York.

The name of big, tobacco-chewing, hot tempered Michael W. Straus, a former reclamation commissioner, has been suggested to Kennedy for secretary of the interior. Straus serves as a consultant to both Senate and House Interior Committees.

Other Democrats considered for this job are C. Girard Davidson of Portland, Ore., a former first assistant secretary of the interior; Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Rep. Stewart Rudall of Arizona.

From the day Kennedy won his presidential nomination there has been speculation that he might name John Bailey, Democratic state chairman of Connecticut, Postmaster general. Rep. William Dawon of Illinois; a Chicago Negro, and Michigan's Gov. Williams also have been mentioned for the job since.

The name of Robert Kennedy, brother of the president-elect, was added to the list of possibilities for the attorney generalship Saturday. The New York Times said Sen. Kennedy is giving serious consideration to appointing his brother, 34, who served as his campaign manager. Robert Kennedy is a lawyer with considerable experience as an investigator.

IN CALIFORNIA

Absentee Votes Give Nixon Win

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Californians who went to the polls Nov. 8 gave Democrat John F. Kennedy a 34,000-vote edge. But on Nov. 17 the headlines read, "Nixon takes California."

The voters who weren't there Nov. 8 had been counted. They swung California's 32 electoral votes to Richard Nixon, giving his home state Republican prestige, though not the presidency.

The votes that put the vice president over the top by 20,000 had been cast under California's liberal absentee voter law.

It permits any registered voter to cast his ballot before election day—by mail or in person—if for any reason he won't be around on the regular day.

He merely need apply for a special ballot up to five days before the election. If the signature on the application matches that on the register, he's sent an absentee ballot. Or he may register in person—between Oct. 19 and Nov. 3—and vote on the spot.

It may be nothing more than a fishing trip or vacation tour that calls the voter away. Or he may be in the hospital or otherwise too ill or lame to come to the polls. Or he may be in the armed services. There are even previsions to allow special away-from-home registration.

Though voters don't have to give reasons, election officials say most absentee voters—and there were about 250,000 this year—are servicemen and their dependents.

This year's absentee total is high. So was the number of regular ballots cast—6.4 million. In the regular balloting, President-elect Kennedy led Nixon, according to unofficial returns, by 3,121,558 to 3,087,227, or 49.7 per cent for Nixon.

But with most of the absentee vote totaled, the figures are Nixon 3,237,451, Kennedy 3,216,745. Nixon's lead in absentee balloting was 150,174 to 95,267, giving him 61 per cent of the absentees.

The pattern of a higher percentage for the Republican candidate in absentee voting is typical in California, despite Democrats' having a 3-2 edge in voter registration.

No one can quite explain why, though Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown made a facetious stab at it during a recent news conference before leaving on a South American trip.

"Republicans usually can afford to do more traveling than Democrats," said the governor.

The Republicans did put on an intensive campaign for absentee ballots. But so did the Democrats.

Miss Janr Zimmerman, San Francisco secretary who was state precinct chairman for the Republicans, said the quest for absentee votes was part of normal precinct work.

"The main difference from previous elections," Miss Zimmerman said, "was that we had more people working at it and more interest—both by the workers and the voters."

She estimated around 25,000 GOP precinct workers combed the state, armed with printed cards for the aged, the shut-ins and travelers. The cards were prepared forms addressed to the registrar requesting absentee ballots.

Brown and several other Democratic leaders predicted Kennedy would sweep California, but despite the final result they plan no investigation of the balloting.

Actually, it would be difficult to get away with anything under California's strict election laws, especially in absentee voting.

A good illustration of how election officials guard against the possibility of a double vote — voting absentee, then voting at the polls on election day — was supplied by Nixon himself.

Nixon, who had originally received an absentee ballot, decided at the last moment to vote Nov. 8 at his home precinct in Whittier, Calif.

But before he was allowed to cast his vote, he had to turn in his absentee ballot, which was torn up.

Like all other voters, Nixon had to have his name checked off a register before voting, and his name had been marked as having received an absentee ballot.

Which meant he couldn't vote until he turned in his unmarked mail ballot.

Direct Dialing Service Begins

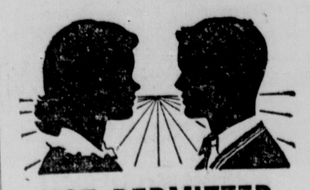

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Direct long distance telephone dialing went into effect just after midnight Saturday in six southwest Louisiana communities.

The Southern Bell Telephone company said more than 67,000 subscribers in Lafayette, Lake Charles, Crowley, New Iberia, Opelousas and Eunice would be able to call many places in the nation without the aid of an operator.

The present manual exchange in Jennings will be converted to dial Dec. 1.

Southern Bell officials predict the new long distance dial service will be installed almost universally within a few years.

Steve Canyon

by Milton Caniff

BUT, MISS CANYON, YOU CAN'T WANDER ABOUT JAPAN LOOKING FOR A BOY WHOSE NAME YOU DON'T EVEN KNOW!

THAT'S WHY I WAS ASSIGNED TO HELP YOU! YOU'RE IN A STRANGE COUNTRY—AND UNDER AGE!

THEY'RE RAILROADIN' COUSIN STEVIE B.!

NO ONE IS RAILROADING COLONEL CANYON! REMEMBER THE CIRCUMSTANCES...

YOU ARRIVED AS A TOURIST, NOT AS AN AUTHORIZED AIR FORCE DEPENDENT!

THEN YOU DISAPPEARED... AND, AS YOU SAY, WERE HELD BY RED AGENTS UNTIL THEY LEFT YOU IN A BOAT WITH A LIVE BOMB!

THE DISTRESS CHANNEL MONITORS RECORDED YOUR VOICE ASKING FOR HELP—WHICH YOU SAY WAS ON TAPE

COL. CANYON AND THE DEAD NAVY CO-PILOT WERE APPARENTLY DRAWN TO THE SPOT—AND THEY CRASHED!

YOU SAY A JAPANESE BOY UNTIED YOU AND TOOK YOU ASHORE IN HIS SMALL BOAT—THEN DISAPPEARED

YOU ALSO STATE THAT THE NAVY PLANE CAUGHT THE BOMB BOAT WITH ITS OWN LANDING HOOK AND TOWED THE DANGEROUS CRAFT OUT TO SEA...

YET YOUR KEY WITNESSES ARE ALL MISSING! THERE WAS NO EXPLOSION...

THE NAVY PLANE COULD HAVE HOOKED THE BOAT ACCIDENTALLY

THERE IS NO JAPANESE BOY! —NO REDS WHO HELD YOU!—AND COL. CANYON'S CO-PILOT IS DEAD!

DON'T YOU BELIEVE THE AIR FORCE WANTS TO HELP YOU? YOU'RE ONE OF US!

SHOWE

GONNA BAWL...

OF COURSE, DEAR! THAT'S THE WAY A GIRL ALWAYS CLEANS THE SLATE!

by MORT WALKER and DIK BROWNE

HELLO, THIS IS LOIS—IS THAT YOU, HI?

HELLO, THIS IS MR. HIRAM FLAGSTON, ASSISTANT TO MR. FOOFRAM.

DID YOU PICK UP THE CANNED SPINACH?

WE HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO FURTHER EXPEDITE YOUR ORDER AT THIS TIME - BUT WE HOPE THAT OUR CURRENT PROGRAM...

HI FLAGSTON, YOU STOP TALKING THAT GIBBERISH! THIS IS LOIS!

SORRY, DEAR— I COULDN'T TALK—THE BOSS WAS STANDING NEXT TO ME.

YES, DEAR--YES, I WILL ... OKAY, HONEY.. SEE YOU TONIGHT. BYE.

FLAGSTON, I COULDN'T HELP OVERHEARING YOU. BOY, HAS YOUR WIFE GOT YOU BUFFALOED!

HUH?

DO YOU THINK I TREAT MY WIFE LIKE THAT? NO, SIR!! SHE DOESN'T GET AWAY WITH ANYTHING, BOY!!

FROM THE MOMENT I WAKE UP IN THE MORNING TILL I HIT THE SACK AT NIGHT, I LET HER KNOW WHO'S BOSS!!

WELL, I--

I LAY DOWN THE LAW--- WHETHER SHE LIKES IT OR NOT!!

BAM

SAY-- DO YOU SUPPOSE THAT'S MY TROUBLE?

YES, THE TRUTH CAN HURT US TERRIBLY! BUT IT'S BEST TO SEE OURSELVES AS WE ARE! JOHNNY COULD NEVER WANT ME, BLIND!

NOW Y' ARE TALKIN', CRAZY!

THIS IS THE LAST NIGHT I'LL WAIT HERE UNDER THE LIGHT AT THE END OF THE LANE, WHERE WE SAID GOOD-BY THAT OTHER NIGHT, TEN YEARS AGO!

IT SEEMED SO SIMPLE, SO SURE; HE'D BE A SOLDIER FOR A WHILE; I'D WAIT AND PRAY FOR HIM, AND, THEN HE'D BE BACK! IT ... IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL D-DREAM!

THAT'S ALL, ANNIE! JUST A GREAT BIG WONDERFUL DREAM THAT HAD TO END! NOW, LET'S GO HOME! IT'S COLD!

DREAMS DO COME TRUE!

IN FAIRY STORIES, PERHAPS! BUT I'M TOO OLD NOW FOR MAKE-BELIEVE!

I DON'T CARE WHAT YOU SAY! I STILL THINK TH' PADRE'S RIGHT!

THE PADRE IS GOOD, AND THE KINDEST MAN I'VE EVER KNOWN! BUT WE CAN'T EXPECT FAITH TO DO THE IMPOSSIBLE!

WE CAN KEEP HOPING!

NO! IT'S NO USE! MY JOHNNY IS GONE! I KNOW NOW HE'LL NEVER COME BACK! NEVER; NEVER IN THIS WORLD!

CARE TO BET ON THAT, MARLENE?

J-J-JOHNNY! YOU ... YOU HAVE COME BACK!

I PROMISED, REMEMBER?
